NATION'S LARGEST BUDGET

KITCHIN INDORSES MEASURE

"Little Navy" Men Won Compromise—Disarmament Conference After War Proposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A naval appropriation bill that ignores the five-year building program of Secretary Daniels but authorizes new construction to the amount of $160,000,000 was voted by the House Committee on Naval Affairs today. The naval budget will be a "no battleship" bill, but the committee provides for five battle cruisers, costing more than dreadnoughts and with great speed. Secretary Daniels asked for two battleships and two battle cruisers for the next fiscal year.

Here is the construction program voted by the committee:

Five battle cruisers, each with a speed of 35 knots an hour and costing $20,433,531 each.
Twenty submarines—three of the fleet type and seventeen for coast defense—their total cost being approximately $16,000,000. The three 800-ton fleet-going submarines will cost in the aggregate $3,600,000.
Four scout cruisers, costing $5,572,000 each.
Ten destroyers at $1,325,000 each.
One hospital ship to cost $2,500,000.
One fuel ship, costing $1,364,000.
One ammunition ship at a cost of $2,715,000.

The total of the Naval Appropriation bill will reach $240,000,000, and the budget for the fiscal year 1917 will be the largest ever reported for the navy. It is more than $90,000,000 in excess of the total of last year's measure.

Partisan Line-up Throughout.

By a curious combination of circumstances the bill will go to the House as a partisan measure. The eight Republican members of the committee fought all along the line for a bigger navy. In every instance the Republicans voted for a greater number of vessels than authorized in the bill, yet they voted against a smaller number. For instance, the Republicans fought for six battle cruisers, but voted against five when the Democratic members combined on that number. Again, the Republican members stood for as many as fifty submarines, but refused to vote for the twenty eventually proposed by Chairman Padgett and his Democratic colleagues on the committee. Several Republican members of the committee voted for the motion of Representative Stephens of California for the immediate construction of seventy-eight submarines.

The minority members also voted for an authorization of two dreadnoughts, as proposed by Secretary Daniels. They attempted to authorize two dreadnoughts, and four battle cruisers, sponsored the construction of at least twenty-eight destroyers, contended for two gunboats and other auxilaries. They disagreed throughout the balloting with the Democratic members.

The Democrats met prior to the committee session and reached a compromise which called for the abandonment of the five-year program submitted by Secretary Daniels and the omission from the bill of battleship authorization.

The so-called "small navy" Democrats of the committee, led by Representative Walter I. Hensley of Missouri, agreed to the building program as it finally came from the committee. After this conference the Democratic members, heretofore split on the question of the naval increase, were enabled to stand together against the eight Republican members and to carry out their plans by a vote of 13 to 8.

Chairman Padgett said the Democrats of the committee held to the view that the navy needed battle cruisers instead of dreadnoughts at this particular juncture in its development.

The number of submarines allowed is below that recommended by Secretary Daniels, but this number may be increased before the bill becomes a law.

Defeat of the Dreadnoughts.

The surprise of the committee session was the defeat of proposals to build additional dreadnoughts. "Small navy" Democrats of the committee have been opposed to the dreadnought, and a compromise was effected on the battle cruisers.

There was no discussion in committee of the Secretary's five-year program. The committee took up the construction for the next fiscal year, as it has done heretofore, without reference to future plans for the upbuilding of the navy.

At the outset of the committee meeting Representative Stephens of California proposed to spend sufficient money during the next fiscal year to put the American Navy in second place. This proposal received little support.

Representatives Stephens, Britten, Roberts, Butler, and other Republican members began a systematic effort to bind the committee to a big construction program. The balloting proceeded, with the Republicans gradually reducing the number of vessels proposed, until they reached a point where the Democrats were willing to vote with them. The minority then switched and voted against the smaller increases.

Representative Claude Kitchin, the Democratic floor leader, announced after the meeting of the committee that he would support the bill prepared, and might make a speech for it. Mr. Kitchin has been listed among the "small navy" Democrats, and he was especially antagonistic to appropriations for dreadnoughts. Kitchin, who has espoused large appropriations for submarines and auxiliaries, said:

"The failure of the five-year building program and the refusal of the commit-

DISARMAMENT RIDER IS PUT ON NAVY BILL

House Committee Adopts Clause Empowering President to Call World-Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The House Committee on Naval Affairs voted unanimously today to include in the annual Naval Appropriation bill an unusual rider in the interest of universal peace and disarmament following the end of the European war.

The resolution was offered by Representative Walter Hensley, a Missouri Democrat, one of the pacifist members of the committee. In some quarters the adoption of the resolution was regarded as a concession to the "small navy" Democrats of the committee, who had voted for a building program costing $160,000,000.

Representative Hensley's resolution reads:

"Upon conclusion of the war in Europe or as soon thereafter as it may be done, the President of the United States is authorized to invite all great Governments of the world to send representatives to a conference, which shall be charged with the duty of suggesting an organization, court of arbitration, or other body, to which disputed questions between nations shall be referred for adjudication and peaceful settlement, and to consider the question of disarmament and submit their recommendations to their respective Governments for approval; that the President is hereby authorized to appoint nine citizens of the United States, who shall be qualified for the mission by eminence in the law and by devotion to the cause of peace, to be representatives of the United States in such conference; that the President shall fix the compensation of the said representatives, and such other employes as may be needed are hereby authorized, and $200,000, or so much thereof as may be needed, is hereby appropriated for that purpose and placed at his disposal."

GOETHALS IS SKEPTICAL ON TEUTON CANAL PLOTS

General Believes Activities On Isthmus Have Solely to Do With Trade Propaganda.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, May 18.—General George W. Goethals advised THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that he did not regard the reported German activities on the Isthmus as any menace to the Panama Canal. He has known for some time that such activities exist, but he doesn't believe there is more of it here than in other sections of Central America.

He believes that information is being gathered as a part of a German plan to secure all the data possible in furtherance of a commercial propaganda after the war. General Goethals says that while members of the crews of interned German ships are accorded shore leave, they cannot leave the Isthmus, and he intimates that reports coming from abroad regarding alleged German intentions toward the canal have caused much extra trouble here, owing to investigations which have been requested with negligible results.

Such a case is that of the steamer San Ramon, twice searched recently under a belief that she might contain explosives to be used against the canal works. The extensive searchlight installations here are under the direction of Lieutenant Garlington, and not by any Germans.

AMERICAN SOLDIER KILLED BY MEXICANS

Juarez Customs Guards Found Furman on Mexican Soil and Say He Fired First.

EL PASO, Texas, May 18.—Sergeant Harry Furman of the machine gun company of the Twenty-third Infantry was shot and killed on Mexican soil a mile and a half east of Juarez today by Mexican customs guards. General Gabriel Gavira, the Juarez commander, and other Mexican officials, say Furman crossed the international boundary in an intoxicated condition and fired on the customs guard before he was made the target of their fire. Furman's company commander says that he saw the Sergeant only a short time before the shooting, and that he appeared perfectly sober.

The shooting was reported by General Gavira to General George Bell Jr., at Fort Bliss. General Bell detailed Major George D. Moore and Captain William Graham of the Twentieth Infantry to make a joint investigation, in company with a Mexican Military Judge and two officers named by General Gavira.

This investigation disclosed that Furman, while searching for stray mules, rode a horse upon a strip of Mexican soil left north of the Rio Grande by the shifting of the river bed. American army men admit that he was not within his rights in penetrating Mexican soil. His revolver had been recently fired, two chambers being empty.

General Bell said tonight he had no evidence to show whether Furman or the Mexicans fired first.

Sergeant Furman was one of the most popular men in the regiment, being its crack machine gun operator, an all-around athlete, and a fine horseman. The idea that he was intoxicated is scouted by officers and men.

Furman was serving his second enlistment, having signed at the Columbus, Ohio, Barracks. He has two sisters in Brooklyn, N. Y., one of them being Mrs. Fabre, at 2 Manitou Street.

General Gavira says that American soldiers witnessed the shooting, but made no effort to return the fire of the Mexicans. At Camp Cotton tonight it was said that while shots were heard nobody witnessed the incident.

The Brooklyn City Directory does not list any Manitou Street.

MAYO TO COMMAND FLEET.

Vice Admiral Is to Succeed Fletcher on June 19.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Atlantic fleet will have a new Commander in Chief when it begins its real Summer manoeuvres off Newport on June 19 next in the person of Henry T. Mayo, now Vice Admiral and second in command.

Secretary Daniels announced today that Admiral Fletcher, the present Commander in Chief, would be relieved on June 19, and that on that date Vice Admiral Mayo would succeed him. As Admiral Fletcher under the law is only entitled to the rank and pay of Admiral while serving as Commander in Chief of the fleet, he will revert to the rank and pay of a Rear Admiral. At the same time Vice Admiral Mayo by reason of his promotion will become Admiral and draw the pay of that rank.

The promotion of Vice Admiral Mayo, who figured in the "Salute the Flag" incident at Tampico, will cause a vacancy in the Vice Admiral list, which will be filled by the promotion of Rear Admiral De Witt Coffman, who is now commanding the new Seventh Division of the Battleship Squadron. The duty to which Admiral Fletcher will be assigned has not been announced.

PRESIDENT SENDS PLEA TO BRITAIN FOR NEW YORKER

Asks Delay of Death Sentence on Jeremiah C. Lynch, Ordered Shot This Morning.

CONVICTED AS IRISH REBEL

Is an American Citizen and Had Been an Insurance Agent in Dublin.

FRIENDS HERE ACT QUICKLY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The White House announced tonight that President Wilson, acting on the request of Senator O'Gorman of New York, had directed Counselor Polk of the State Department to do what he could to save the life of Jeremiah C. Lynch of New York, a naturalized American, sentenced, according to a report received in New York, to be shot for complicity in the Dublin insurrection. Mr. Lynch was court-martialed and ordered shot at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning, British time, or at 11 o'clock tonight in the United States.

It was about 8 o'clock when the President directed Mr. Polk to cable Ambassador Page, directing him to ask the Foreign Office to have the sentence suspended pending an investigation.

Mr. O'Gorman had been appealed to by Mr. Lynch's relatives, and he took the appeal straight to the President in person.

LONDON, May 18.—Jeremiah C. Lynch of New York has been tried and convicted by a court-martial in Dublin on a charge of participating in the Irish rebellion. The sentence was to be promulgated today, but no word has been received by the American Embassy here as to what sentence was imposed.

The news that Lynch had been convicted was received by the embassy from the American Consul in Dublin. Previous to this the last news the embassy had of Lynch was that under the Defense of the Realm act he was prohibited from leaving the five-mile zone of Dublin. This provision as a rule only applies to hostile aliens, but can be extended to friendly aliens. It was extended to Lynch, as he had been making trips to Western Ireland.

Lynch has been a resident of Dublin for some time.

Jeremiah C. Lynch is well known to hundreds of Irishmen and other people in New York. He is particularly well known at the Waldorf-Astoria, where he lived when in New York, and yesterday afternoon George C. Boldt, President of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Company, telegraphed to Secretary of State Lansing asking him to obtain, if possible, a stay of sentence in Lynch's case.

Mr. Boldt's telegram read:

"J. C. Lynch, reported condemned by court-martial in Dublin to be shot tomorrow morning, is an intimate friend of members of my staff, and I would respectfully ask if it would not be possible to obtain a stay of sentence until full inquiry can be made, especially as Lynch is an American citizen."

James Lee, the paymaster of the hotel, Dennis Coleman, the Chief Porter, and James Donnelly, of the hotel office, are close friends of Lynch. Mr. Lee, who has been using every effort to get action in Lynch's behalf, has been an intimate friend of his for many years.

"While Mr. Lynch's name is Jeremiah C., he has usually used the Gaelic form of Jeremiah, which is Diarmid," said Mr. Lee yesterday. "He was born in Cork, and first came to this country eighteen or nineteen years ago. He worked with A. B. Farquhar, in the Cotton Exchange Building until he went back to Ireland in July, 1907, to go into the insurance business. He is now, or was, manager for the Equitable Assurance Society of New York in the south of Ireland.

"As soon as possible after he first came over here, Mr. Lynch took out his first papers as an American citizen and got his second in due time. I know that he kept up his citizenship. When he went back to Ireland in 1907 it was as representative for the State of New York on the executive body of the Gaelic League, a non-political and non-sectarian organization.

"It was two years ago last February that Mr. Lynch came over here the last time, in the interests of the Gaelic League, his mission being to collect funds for the support of the educational work of the league in Ireland. He is about 39 years old, and a bachelor. He went back to Ireland in October, 1914, his object being, so far as I know, to continue his life insurance business over there."

Cabinet Also Informed Germany Was Sending Arms, Sir Matthew Nathan Tells Commission.

LONDON, May 18.—From testimony developed today at the hearing opened by the Royal Commissioner, under the Presidency of Baron Hardinge, to inquire into the Irish rebellion, it appeared that the Government had received advance information of preparations for an uprising, with help from German sources.

The testimony was given by Sir Matthew Nathan, who resigned as Under Secretary for Ireland after the rebellion broke out. The Government had received advices, said Sir Matthew, that an attempt would be made to land arms in Ireland from German submarines, also that rifles had been purchased from Irish soldiers on home leave, while others had been taken into the country in passengers' baggage.

The former Under Secretary gave this testimony in the course of a long state-

President May Give Peace Hint to Europe in Speech to be Delivered Next Week

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Discussion of the possibility of an early peace in Europe and plans to prevent war, was increased among diplomats and officials here today by an announcement at the White House that President Wilson had accepted an invitation to speak either on Friday or Saturday of next week before a meeting of the League to Enforce Peace, of which William H. Taft is President.

It is understood that the President will make a statement on the subject of peace calculated to attract deep interest in European capitals. The address will be carefully thought out in advance, since the President fully realizes the significance of anything he may say on the subject at present.

Attention was centred on the peace question here today because it was the anniversary of the first league conference, observed by meetings in several cities of the United States and in other neutral nations celebrating the occasion. The Washington branch of the Woman's Peace Party adopted resolutions urging the President to call a conference of neutral nations to try to end the war. Mr. Wilson is known to be giving deep consideration to the possibility of bringing about peace, and to have collected every authoritative statement on the subject made by any responsible official in the belligerent nations since the outbreak of the war. While officials realize that much of the peace discussion may be propaganda, aimed to fix the responsibility for continuing the war, they nevertheless believe it is entirely possible that the day is not far off when peace proposals may be welcomed by all the belligerents.

It is believed that the only reason the President has not repeated formally the offer of mediation made soon after the outbreak of the war is that he has regarded it as best to wait until there were reasonable grounds for thinking that such a step would be favorably received.

CONSULS IN MEXICO CALLED TO BORDER

Will Confer with Funston, Presumably on Carranza's Campaign Against Bandits.

INSIDE DETAILS SOUGHT

May Help Shape Our Policy—Langhorne's Troops at Standstill—Soldier Killed on Border.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Pending further developments, the United States Government is re-canvassing the general situation in Northern Mexico with respect to its military, industrial and political aspects. The first step in this direction has been the issuance of instructions to the American consular officers at Chihuahua City, Juarez, Nogales, Durango, Aguascalientes and Monterey to proceed immediately to El Paso for a conference with Major Gen. Frederick Funston.

The announced purpose of this conference is to promote co-operation between the American military and consular authorities in Mexico in watching developments in the border region. The stay of the American forces in Mexico will be dependent upon the success of the Carranza Government in coping with banditry and in bringing about the restoration of order in Northern Mexico. The American troops are to remain until that has been surely accomplished, and if the Carranza Government is unable to make good its pretensions of ability to master the situation the stay of the American forces will be indefinite.

While State Department officials assert that there is no special political significance to be attached to the conferences of American consuls on the border it is believed in circles here well informed in Mexican matters that upon the result of this conference may depend the ultimate policy of the United States with respect to the preservation of order in Northern Mexico. On account of difficulties of communication the State Department has had trouble in obtaining accurate first-hand information from its consular officers regarding the real situation in Northern Mexico, and it is expected that as a result of the conference the consuls will not only supply information which General Funston is anxious to obtain, but there will be a better understanding by the Washington Government of real conditions in Northern Mexico.

Seeks Confidential Information.

What the Washington Government is anxious to obtain is accurate and impartial confidential information, much of which will be of a character that cannot be intrusted to official communications, and this is expected to be brought personally to Washington after the El Paso conference by Marion Letcher, American Consul at Chihuahua City, who will probably come to Washington from El Paso to report an oral summary of the information to be delivered by word of mouth by the Consuls in the El Paso meeting.

Telegraphic reports from Consuls in Mexico are causing considerable concern regarding industrial and economic conditions. As nearly as can be ascertained from these reports there are now numerous strikes in Mexico, the result of widespread discontent, which may paralyze what is left of industry in some parts of Mexico, and these strikes include railroad and telegraph operations, where walkouts have crippled train movements and interfered with telegraphic communication. It is also intimated that the low value of Carranza currency, which the de facto Government is insisting must be accepted as legal tender, is largely responsible for strikes and walkouts.

An announcement by Secretary Lansing today read:

> The department is in receipt of advices from Mexico City stating that the American colony there is conservatively estimated to number 1,200. The department is in receipt of a telegram from Saltillo stating that there are twenty-three Americans at that place.
>
> Telegraphic advices from Piedras Negras state that the shop men have gone on strike. No trains have arrived in Piedras Negras from the south since the 14th. The general situation in the Piedras Negras district is quiet.
> Advices from Guadalajara state that a railroad strike began May 16 and that a strike of telegraph employes is threatened.
>
> Advices from Aguascalientes state that as a result of the strike there is no railroad communication with that city.
> Telegraphic dispatches from Vera Cruz state that the situation there is quiet.
> Conditions are unchanged at Guaymas, and Mazatlan and Topolobampo are reported quiet.

Reports from other points indicate that there may now be less than 3,000 citizens of the United States in all Mexico.

Possible Trap for Bandits.

No important military developments in Mexico or along the border were reported to Washington today. Officials here are closely observing the campaign begun by General Trevino in Southern and Western Chihuahua and against the outlaws who raided the Big Bend district. Official dispatches today stated that Colonel Sibley, in charge of the pursuit of the outlaws who raided Glenn Springs and Boquillas, had a temporary base about forty miles south of the boundary. With Carranza troops reported moving northward toward the Coahuila-Chihuahua border, army officers believed it possible that the bandits might be caught between the Carranza and American forces.

SUBMARINES SINK THREE GERMAN SHIPS

QUICKLY STOP ORE TRAFFIC

Steamers Kolga, Bianca, and Hera Shelled and Then Torpedoed Off the Swedish Coast.

LONDON, May 18.—Three German steamers, the Kolga, the Bianca, and the Hera have been sunk by submarines in the Baltic Sea. Some Russian submarines and a large number of British undersea craft are operating in the eastern and southern portions of the Baltic, which is now ice free. It was a British submarine which sank the Hera.

The Kolga and the Bianca were torpedoed yesterday afternoon off the Swedish island of Landsort, in the Baltic. The Kolga was attacked at 5 P. M., being shelled by the submarine for twenty minutes. Two members of the crew were slightly injured. The Kolga was then torpedoed and sunk. Thirteen of the crew were picked up by a Swedish steamer. Four others, including the Captain and second mate, are missing.

Half an hour later the Bianca was shelled and then torpedoed. The attack occurred in the same vicinity as that on the Kolga. The Captain was taken prisoner. Two members of the crew were injured slightly. They and the other members of the crew were picked up by the vessel which rescued the men from the Kolga.

STOCKHOLM, Wednesday, May 17.—The German steamer Hera was sunk this morning off Landsort, in the Baltic.

The sinking of the Hera marks the first activity of British submarines in the Baltic this season. The Hera left Stockholm on Tuesday to take on a cargo of 2,000 tons of iron ore at Oxloesund. Her Captain was ordered on board the submarine with the ship's papers and made prisoner. Sufficient time was given to the crew to leave the ship. Although the weather was rough all on board were saved.

The report of the submarine's activity has stopped the movement of numerous German vessels with cargoes of ore now at Oxloesund and other ports.

Strike at Ore Trade.

Last Fall British submarines, which made their way into the Baltic through the Skagerrack and Cattegat, carried on an energetic campaign against shipping between Scandinavian and German ports through Baltic waters. They appear to have worked havoc with the ore trade between Scandinavia and Germany, sinking several ore vessels, and, according to some reports, virtually paralyzing this traffic for weeks.

Special dispatches from Scandinavian sources to British newspapers in mid-October said that German commercial traffic had been cleared from the Baltic by the British submarine activity, one list printed containing the names of twenty German ships sunk during October. German accounts, however, denied that there was any such stoppage of traffic, citing the movement of hundreds of ships from various Baltic ports during the period of submarine operations in those waers. In an effort to prevent the entry of more submarines Germany laid additional mines to block the narrow entrance to the Baltic and placed obstructions to trap incoming craft.

The Winter put an end to the British undersea activity in the Baltic. It was reported that the British craft had put up for the cold season in Russian Baltic ports whence they apparently have emerged with the Baltic now ice-free, again to engage in operations against German shipping.

Of the ships recently sunk, the Kolga, 2,086 tons gross and 260 feet long, was built in 1903 and owned in Lubeck.

The Bianca was owned in Hamburg. Her gross tonnage was 1,054. She was built in 1907 and was 226 feet long.

The Hera was the largest of the three vessels, with a gross tonnage of 4,705. She was owned in Hamburg, was 374 feet long, and was built in 1912.

DOUBT ABOUT THE BATAVIER.

Dutch Officials Not Fully Satisfied That She Struck a Mine.

LONDON, May 18.—The Dutch authorities are not altogether satisfied that the steamship Batavier V., which was blown up in the North Sea with the loss of four lives, was sunk by a mine. They have ordered an examination of the ship by divers to establish the cause of the disaster. This will be comparatively a simple task, as the wrecked steamship lies in shallow water. All but three of the lifeboats were destroyed by the explosion. These three boats were launched.

The death of Luigi Mancini, an American citizen, is something of a mystery, as he is known to have had a lifebelt. It is assumed, however, that he was hit by wreckage or drawn down by suction.

None of the survivors saw any trace of a submarine.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A report on the sinking of the Dutch steamer Batavier V., in which Luigi Martini Mancini of Roswell, N. M., lost his life, and two other Americans, Howard Comstock and John J. Kaleta of Brooklyn, N. Y., were saved, was received

SEYMOUR WIRES WERE TAPPED TO CATCH MORGAN CLERK WHO SOLD WAR SECRETS; MAYOR DENOUNCES THOMPSON'S MEDDLING

GOVERNMENT PLANS BALKED

GERMAN PLOT INVOLVED

War Munitions, Ostensibly for Allies, Said to Have Gone to Mexican Bandits.

FRENCH ORDERS STOLEN

A Morgan Employe Delivered Copies of Cables to Office Where Wire Was Tapped.

The existence of a plot whereby secret information regarding the buying of munitions for the French Government by J. P. Morgan & Co. was stolen from the Morgan firm and sold to munitions manufacturers in this country was revealed through the tapping of the telephone wires of the law firm of Seymour & Seymour, 120 Broadway.

This fact was disclosed yesterday by the insistence of Mayor Mitchel that all the circumstances surrounding the tapping of the law firm's telephone wires should be laid before the public in order to justify the Police Department in tapping wires and listening-in whenever the commission of a crime is suspected. The Mayor practically forced the Thompson Legislative Committee to reveal the whole story after Senator Thompson, its Chairman, had shown a disposition to delay his investigation of the subject.

It was also disclosed that the wires of the same law firm were tapped for the purpose of obtaining information regarding the alleged shipment by German agents in this country of large supplies of munitions to Mexican bandits, although they were ostensibly purchased for the Allies.

Federal Authorities Concerned.

All the circumstances of this phase of the case were not disclosed, however, as the Mayor and Police Commissioner Woods insisted that the matter affected the National Government and would handicap Government officials in getting at the facts in the case. Unless the premature revealing of the wiretapping already has spoiled the Government's case, matters of a startling nature will soon be made public, the city officials said.

Later, in criticising the course of the committee and those who have objected to the policy of police wiretapping, Mayor Mitchel said:

"I want to say one thing, that anybody who has been warned that vital interests of the United States as a Government were involved, and who, knowingly, deliberately jeopardizes those interests, while he may not be guilty under any statute of treason to the United States, is a traitor to his country at heart."

Important developments are also looked for within the next few days regarding the theft and sale of secret records in the Morgan firm's office. District Attorney Swann is in full possession of all the facts in the case, and is expected to take vigorous action. The names of three men who had desk room in the offices of Seymour & Seymour are known to the police and the District Attorney. Another individual is said to have taken alarm and disappeared. The name of the employe of the Morgan firm who is accused of stealing the records is not known, although it is said he is still working in the office.

The facts regarding the theft of the Morgan information were told late yesterday at a secret session of the Thompson Committee, at which were present, besides Senator Thompson and other members of the committee, District Attorney Swann, Police Commissioner Woods, Corporation Counsel Lamar Hardy, and Frederick C. Seymour.

Senator Thompson later announced that he would go thoroughly into the Seymour wiretapping case this morning and put on the stand everybody connected with it. Police Commissioner Woods will take the stand first. He has the Mayor's permission to tell everything he knows about the case.

Witnesses to be Called.

O. B. Phillips, William H. Hills, Jr., and Mortimer Sultzer, who are said to have had desk room in the office of Seymour & Seymour, will also be asked to testify, as well as the Seymour brothers.

It developed yesterday that Sultzer is now under indictment and will be tried on Monday on the charge either of forgery or larceny, or both, of an $800 note. This case is an old one and has no connection with the wiretapping affair.

According to information submitted to the Thompson Committee at the secret session the Morgan firm employed William J. Burns, head of the Burns Detective Agency, several months ago when it was discovered that the Morgan firm's secret records were being tampered with. Burns's suspicions were directed toward the office of Seymour & Seymour, and he installed a dictaphone in a room adjoining the office. He also entered the firm's office at night and

Germany Warns Its Citizens in America That They Must Scrupulously Obey Our Laws

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Announcement was made by Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, today, that he had instructed all German Consuls in the United States to warn German citizens living in their respective districts throughout the country to obey American laws.

The Ambassador acted on instructions from Berlin, which were said to have been issued at Count von Bernstorff's suggestion. The purpose, it is said in German Embassy circles, is to convince German citizens in this country that the German Government is opposed to, and frowns upon, plots, acts, and propaganda in this country in violation of American laws.

It is declared to be the hope of the German Government that the warning will end the various alleged violations of American neutrality and other illegal acts, in contravention of American laws, such as have been disclosed in recent trials of German citizens in this country on charges of conspiracy in bomb plotting and other outrages. The text of the German announcement, as issued by the Embassy today, follows:

"In consequence of cases that have occurred of late, the German Ambassador has sent instructions to all the German Consuls in the United States to strongly impress on German citizens living in their districts that it is their duty scrupulously to observe the laws of the States in which they reside."

Count von Bernstorff's instructions were received last night and were forwarded at once to the various German Consular offices throughout the country. The announcement is construed as an official admission on the part of the German Government that German citizens have been violating American laws, for it is not to be assumed that the German Government would issue such a warning if it were not convinced that some of these subjects had been guilty of violations of American laws.

The words "in consequence of cases that have occurred of late" in the German Ambassador's announcement are accepted as a recognition of violation of American laws by some German citizens in this country. While it was not disclosed at the Embassy that certain specific cases had been brought to the attention of the German Government, it is known that the Berlin Government has been informed regarding the various convictions of Germans in the United States for such violations, and of the sentences that have been imposed for such lawless acts.

The latest of these convictions was that of Lieutenant Robert Fay, and his brother-in-law, Walter Scholz, in the Federal Court in New York City, on charges of conspiring to destroy munitions ships of the Allies through bomb contrivances. The men were sentenced on May 9 to serve eight years each in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta. Paul Daeche, also convicted at the same time, but with a recommendation of leniency, was sentenced to serve two years. This was only one of many cases in which indictments have been returned against German citizens for alleged violations of American laws.

Among the recent indictments returned is that against Carl A. Luederitz, German Consul at Baltimore, Md., against whom an indictment was returned at New York on May 8, charging that he procured a false passport for Horst von der Goltz, confessed spy. At the same time indictments were handed down charging Wolf von Igle, former secretary of Captain Franz von Papen, the recalled German Military Attaché; Dr. Walter D. Scheele, already indicted in the alleged "fire bomb" plot, and "Gustave" Steinberg, alleged aid of Franz von Rintelin, German Agent, with conspiracy to falsify a ship's manifest in sending a cargo of lubricating oil to Germany.

BURTON BACK IN NEW YORK

Old Guard Leaders Think That Hughes Wouldn't Accept After Long Balloting.

Persons who went to the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday to obtain information regarding a bulletined all-day conference of the du Pont Business Men's Presidential League learned, some with surprise, that the T. Coleman du Pont Presidential boom had blown up and vanished the day before. Telephone inquiries at the home of Ormsby McHarg, who has been in charge of the du Pont Presidential propaganda, brought out the information that Mr. McHarg was on his way to Texas.

The boom for Mr. du Pont has been housed in pretentious headquarters at the Waldorf for three weeks past. Prior to moving uptown, du Pont headquarters were maintained in the City Investing Building in lower Broadway. Mr. du Pont started out with the six delegates of his home State, Delaware, pledged to him, and there has been nothing to indicate that the boom has reached out and acquired additional strength from other States, although the country has been flooded with literature advocating the nomination of Mr. du Pont as a business men's candidate.

Mr. McHarg, who has been in charge of the du Pont headquarters, gained a good deal of publicity four years ago in connection with the work he did in the South corraling negro delegates for Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. Unlike so many other Roosevelt boomers, he did not leave the Republican ranks and become a Bull Mooser. The du Pont boom was his second venture this year. He was in charge of the ill-fated Henry D. Estabrook boom, which never made any noticeable headway.

Finds Root Sentiment in West.

Ex-Congressman John M. Dwight, Manager of the Root boom, returned from his Western trip yesterday, declaring that he was well pleased with the way the propaganda for Elihu Root was taking hold in the Northwest and the Middle West.

"I was astonished to find how receptive the West was to Mr. Root's candidacy," said Mr. Dwight at the Hotel Manhattan. "They know him out there as a great big man, just as we do here. Everywhere I went, I found how highly he is regarded. I did not meet a Republican who was not glad to know that he is a candidate. I tell you, the West appreciates Elihu Root."

Mr. Dwight said he had rented a vacant store close to the Congress Hotel in Chicago and would open headquarters there for Mr. Root on May 23 on which date the Root headquarters at the Hotel Manhattan in this city will be closed.

"After leaving Chicago, I went up to

Mayor Sends Representative to Savoy Dinner at Which Arrangements Are Discussed.

The first gun in the Billy Sunday campaign in New York, which is expected to start Jan. 1 next and continue throughout February and March, was fired last night when three hundred prominent business and professional men attended a dinner in the Hotel Savoy given by the recently formed Executive Committee. Sites and the preliminary features of the movement were discussed. James M. Speers, President of James McCutcheon & Co. and Chairman of the committee, presided, and the speakers included men who had been allied with the campaigns in Syracuse, Philadelphia, Trenton, and Baltimore. Robert Adamson, who represented the Mayor, and E. E. Olcott, Treasurer of the campaign, also spoke.

According to Mr. Olcott, the Committee on Sites, appointed by Mayor Mitchel, has decided on three places, the exact location of which it was not thought advisable to make public at this time for real estate reasons. One is in Harlem adjoining a subway station and the others are just over the Queensboro Bridge, the speaker said. This committee, composed of Joseph P. Day, Chairman; Lamar Hardy and Robert Adamson have conferred with Mr. Sunday, who wants to have erected a tabernacle capable of holding twenty thousand.

Following the address of Chairman Speers, who outlined the work that must be done, and who urged the co-operation of every business man in the city, the Rev. James M. Empringham, former rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Syracuse, told of the work of the evangelist in that city and of the permanency of its results. Burt Salisbury, President of the Onandaga Pottery Company, and E. C. Eddy of Syracuse spoke along similar lines.

The success of Billy Sunday in Philadelphia was attested by Harry E. Paisley, Treasurer of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, and Benjamin T. Welch. Trenton was represented by Judge Reilstab, Scranton by A. M. Sanders, and Baltimore by the Rev. Hugh Birckhead, former rector of St. George's Church in this city.

A telegram was sent to Mr. Sunday in Kansas City, notifying him of the choice of sites and requesting him to come to New York or send a representative to decide on one of them.

Among those present were George W. Perkins, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., George Gordon Battle, Newcomb Carlton, Darwin P. Kingsley, Francis Lynde Stetson, William Jay Schieffelin, the Rev. Christian F. Reisner, S. Stanwood Menken, William M. K. Olcott, the Rev. Henry A. Stimson, the Rev. A. E. Keigwin, George T. Brokaw, and Francis L. Hine.

obtained what he said were letter heads of the Seymour firm on which were written exact copies of the orders that Morgan & Co. had received from the French Minister of Finance, as well as the exact amounts that Morgan & Co. were willing to pay for munitions.

This information, according to District Attorney Swann, was peddled around to every manufacturer of munitions in the country, giving them the exact amount of munitions that Morgan & Co. would buy and the top-notch price they would pay. Then the munitions manufacturer who obtained the contract would pay the men who had furnished them this inside information.

Sold the Information.

According to District Attorney Swann, the scheme has worked very successfully, and considerable money has been made by those who sold the information. When he was asked if any of the men under suspicion were agents of a foreign Government and if it was known that munitions were bought for shipment to Mexico, he said:

"I do not know that. As the matter rests in the District Attorney's office at present, it is that Morgan & Co. had a clerk who was in a conspiracy to deliver their secret cables and their orders for munitions to certain persons in the Seymour office."

Mr. Swann was asked if Frederick C. Seymour had made a complaint to him.

"Yes," he replied. "He came to see me and I told him what information we had and asked him if he wished to make a complaint against any one for installing a dictaphone in his office, tapping his telephone wires, and entering his office at night and taking his papers. I told him that Mr. Burns had told me he had done this.

"Mr. Seymour said he didn't want to make a complaint against an underling, but would like to know who it was who ordered the work done. I told him that it was J. P. Morgan & Co., and that the doors of the Grand Jury room swung inward if he wished to make a complaint. He refused to make a complaint and went away."

Munitions Secrets Obtained.

When Senator Thompson was asked what had been disclosed at the secret session of his committee, he said:

"It appears that Morgan & Co. believed that their correspondence from France was being tampered with and they employed W. J. Burns. Mr. Burns then produced copies of cablegrams and correspondence containing orders from France written within two days of the date they had been received here. These copies were made on the letterheads of Seymour & Seymour and the information of the detective was that these copies were sent to every manufacturer of munitions at once. The lucky manufacturer, that is, the one whose bid was accepted, was to pay these men a commission for receiving the information. It was worked very much the same as a race track tout works. The information was furnished to all, and the collection was made from the one who got the contract."

"Was the question asked at the meeting if there was any evidence that these letterheads had been 'framed'?" Senator Thompson was asked.

"Yes," he replied, "but Mr. Seymour said he didn't know anything about it. He said the only interest he had in the matter was a subcontract for munitions which a client of his had from the Morgan firm. In this case Morgan & Co., paid the money and made the shipment."

"Was there anything said to indicate that any shipment was to go to Mexico?"

"There was not," said the Senator. "The only question, so far as the police were concerned, was whether somebody was stealing Morgan & Co.'s correspondence. That's the way it came to the Police Commissioner. There was reasonable cause to believe that a crime had been committed, and it was supposed that a clerk in the Morgan office had done it."

"Do you consider it was within the Police Commissioner's rights to tap the telephone wire?"

Woods to Testify Today.

"That is just the question," replied Senator Thompson. "That is what we have to determine. We will call Commissioner Woods to the stand tomorrow, as well as O. B. Phillips, William Hills, Jr., and Mortimer Sultzer. In fact, everybody connected with the case will be called. District Attorney Swann said at the meeting that he didn't find enough evidence to present the case to the Grand Jury. He didn't say he had looked for a 'frame-up' in the case."

After the committee's secret session Commissioner Woods had a conference with the Mayor, and both made statements justifying the right to have the telephone wires tapped.

"The reason we took up the case," he said, "was because we had information that some one in the Seymour office was in collusion with some one in the Morgan office and that copies of cablegrams regarding contracts made by the Morgan firm had been stolen. We felt that a crime had been committed and undertook to run it down. That was one reason we listened-in. There was another reason but I am not at liberty to tell it because it has to do with most important matters affecting the national Government."

"Does it concern the shipment of munitions to Mexico?"

"I don't want to say anything about that," Mr. Woods replied.

"Did the information you got over the telephone justify the information you had received before the wires were tapped?"

"We would have got it had there not been a premature disclosure of the incident. But the matter is still alive. We may get all we are after yet."

The Mayor's View of It.

Mayor Mitchel then interrupted to say:

"The case is still alive, but it represents one of the evil results that flows from the overdiscussion of the detective work of the Police Department in this connection. It illustrates a case in which the final evidence of the crime which has been patently committed is lost because of the public discussion which frightens those involved from further communications which the police might have been able to get, and on which conviction might have been obtained.

"I want to add to what the Commissioner has said that, in this case, the information brought to him was of the commission of a crime, that is, a theft. The District Attorney, I believe, has already told you that he obtained other and additional evidence of that, and I think he has stated—he certainly did state to Mr. Thompson and others in the executive session—that from his point of view as District Attorney the Police Commissioner was fully justified in supervising this telephone wire for the detection of crime.

"As the Police Commissioner has said, there was another element in this case which lent additional justification, but which, as it involves interests of the National Government, we feel that there is a major obligation upon us not to disclose at this time, at least."

The Tapping of Wires.

Mayor Mitchel than said he wanted to present to the public his views regarding the whole subject of wiretapping. He said:

"Through a period of persistent misrepresentation and falsehood concerning the supervision of telephone wires by the Police Department, the Police Commissioner and I have remained silent, because of the importance of the work of crime detection and crime prevention involved, particularly because this work has touched the interests of the United States in the international relations of our Government.

"We have expected that at a proper time the opportunity would be offered to state fully the justification and necessity for what has been done in local crime detection. This opportunity will come in the hearing of the Thompson committee tomorrow, when the Police Commissioner will testify. In the meantime, the public should understand the necessity for the practice of supervising telephones by the police for the detection and prevention of crime.

"Entirely aside from the merits and justification of telephone supervision for the purpose of detecting crime in individual instances, I wish to correct a general misapprehension which has been studiously and intentionally created in the public mind. The impression has been given that private citizens are subject to eaves dropping over their telephones by the police at the instance of any one who may have influence enough with the Commissioner to get him to institute supervision. This is utterly false and contrary to the facts.

Plea of Justification.

"In the first place, no telephone wire has been supervised during the term of the present city administration except upon substantial ground for belief by the Police Commissioner that a crime has either been committed or is in contemplation and that evidence thereof may be obtained through the supervision of the telephone.

"In the second place, a record has been made of each such supervision, the authority for the same being given over the signature of the Police Commissioner.

"In the third place, the privacy of such telephone communications, when obtained by the police, has been protected in every instance, except where it has been communicated to duly authorized agents of government for the purpose of obtaining still further evidence of the commission of the crimes in question.

"If the impression has been given that an individual, by complaining to the Police Commissioner, can obtain the supervision of the telephone wire of another individual and then learn the substance of conversations taken over that wire, that impression is wholly misleading and false. No such thing is possible.

"The Police Commissioner has never authorized and will not authorize the supervision of a telephone line unless he has satisfied himself that there is substantial reason for believing that evidence of crime can be obtained. When he does authorize it he protects the privacy of communications, except when used for the purpose of obtaining further evidence or in prosecutions.

No Invasion of Rights.

"We recognize the inviolable right of individual citizens to individual privacy in their telephone communications as in other relations of life. It is, however, absolutely essential to the protection of the community against the commission of crime that the police should use this powerful weapon for crime detection. It of course must be safeguarded against abuse, and it has been so safeguarded in every instance in the present city administration.

"The importance of this work and the substantial results obtained in the conviction of criminals, who would otherwise have gone free, will be pointed out by the Police Commissioner on the stand tomorrow. Conviction on conviction has been obtained which otherwise would have been impossible. The Baff murderers, as well as dozens of other criminals, would still be at large had the police not used this means."

When Mayor Mitchel was told in the afternoon that Senator Thompson had decided not to have Police Commissioner Woods testify during the day, and that the investigation into the wiretapping subject was to go over for the time being, the Mayor was thoroughly angry. He took the view that his Commissioner should have an opportunity to justify himself, and he hurried over to the Municipal Building, where the committee was in session.

The Mayor Aroused.

"If they don't call Commissioner Woods this afternoon," he said, "I shall issue a statement that will tear things wide open."

When the Mayor reached the committee room Senator Thompson was about to proceed with the investigation of the contracts for third-tracking the Manhattan elevated lines, which the committee has been digging into for months. With the Mayor was Commissioner Woods and Corporation Counsel Hardy. The Mayor had a portfolio containing all the documents in the wiretapping case and putting them on the table he demanded of Senator Thompson that Commissioner Woods be called as a witness.

Senator Thompson was taken aback and hurriedly called a conference in a private room. The Mayor, Mr. Woods, and Mr. Hardy went inside with Senator Thompson, and Frank Moss, counsel to the committee, and discussed the case for about an hour. Then the Mayor and the other officials came out and the committee mulled over the situation itself.

Senator Thompson took the ground that he needed more information before proceeding with the investigation. The Mayor insisted that the matter had gone far enough, and that his administration should be set right before the public. While waiting outside the Mayor said he believed that Senator Thompson was not trying to injure him or his administration.

"Our only concern in this proceeding," he said, "is that the interests of the United States are involved, and I think the committee and the City Administration both feel that they ought to conserve those interests. I have insisted that the public shall be apprised of the Police Commissioner's justification today, subject only to the reservation that the Government's interests shall be conserved."

After the conference Senator Thompson sent for District Attorney Swann and Mr. Seymour and another secret session was held, in which each laid before the committee everything that had happened in the case.

The Short and Ugly Word.

Earlier in the day the Mayor used the short and ugly word in connection with a statement published in a morning newspapers attributed to William S. Butler, attorney for Father William B. Farrell, whose wire had been tapped in connection with the recent charities investigation. The statement was to the effect that the lawyer had information that Mayor Mitchel had personally listened in on Father Farrell's telephone wire.

"Any one who said that is a d—d liar, and you can print it," said the Mayor. "It is a lie, and I believe that the man who stated it knew it was. It is just a part of the general misrepresentation that has been designedly indulged in. I didn't listen in on the wires of any one on earth. I am not a detective and I don't do the city's detective work."

TO NAME MAYOR'S ACCUSERS.

Priest's Lawyer Will Tell Who Informed Him Mitchel "Listened In."

William S. Butler of 190 Montague Street, Brooklyn, attorney for the Rev. William B. Farrell of the Roman Catholic Church of SS. Peter and Paul, that borough, whose allegation that Mayor Mitchel had personally "listened in" on Father Farrell's telephone wire was declared to be false by the Mayor, said yesterday afternoon that he would reveal the names of his informants "at the proper time."

"My statement, so sharply criticised by Mayor Mitchel, speaks for itself," said Mr. Butler. "At the proper time I shall make known the sources of my information. I would rather take the testimony of my friends than the word of our fervidly rhetorical Mayor. Mayor Mitchel's extravagant and intemperate language in calling me a liar does not meet the situation; but it does give another indication of his irresponsible speech and a reflection of the theatrical methods he pursues."

Mr. Butler said he would probably have another public statement to make in the matter this afternoon, and it was thought that this might include the names of the persons who gave him the alleged information.

Among the witnesses examined yesterday by the Kings County Grand Jury in its investigation of the wire-tapping activities of the police were Commissioner Charles H. Strong and Dr. Daniel C. Potter. Dr. Potter, whose telephone wire was among those tapped, was in the jury room for nearly two hours. Father Farrell will be recalled before the jury today, and it is expected that several Burns detectives also will be witnesses.

Mexico City saying construction had begun on the new railway line which will cross the States of Yucatan, Chiapas, Campeche, and Tabasco from the Caribbean Sea to the Pacific. The advices also stated that the National Monetary Commission shortly would promulgate regulations to become effective June 1, to set forth the method and basis of settlement of obligations contracted for payment in metallic money, before the issuance of the present paper currency; that offices had been opened in the capital where claimants to properties seized by the Constitutionalist Government during the recent revolution may present their applications for reinstatement to their titles; that the mining camps of Guanajuato were rapidly resuming operations, and that General Carranza had ordered the beginning of harbor improvements at Guaymas, Mazatlan, Manzanillo, and such other of the Pacific Coast ports of Mexico as are in need of such work.

Rodgers Reported Summoned Home.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 18.—Unconfirmed reports reached General Frederick Funston today that James Linn Rodgers, special agent of the State Department at Mexico City, had received instructions to return to the United States. Mr. Rodgers has had difficulty in communicating with Washington and his summons to this side of the border was said to be merely for the purpose of reporting more fully conditions in Mexico.

TROOPS IN COAHUILA TO GO NO FURTHER

Sibley-Langhorne Expedition's Work Practically Done—Will Rest in Camp Two Weeks.

From a Staff Correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOQUILLAS, Texas, May 18, (by Courier to Marathon, Texas.)—Large quantities of food for the American soldiers in the field on the expedition into Coahuila and oats for their horses are being rushed to the front by motor truck and mule train today, but, in spite of the aspect of permanence that this lends, the officers and men of the expedition feel that its end is near. The food is badly needed for the immediate present and for the return of the troopers to United States soil. The Quartermaster's Department doesn't make the brilliant dashes that the cavalry sometimes makes, as in the case of the present dash into Coahuila, and the twenty-seven motor truck loads of food asked for a week ago are just getting started from Marathon.

The expedition started out with a dual purpose—as a rescue force and a punitive expedition. In record time it has accomplished the one end entirely in effecting the rescue of the Americans held captive by the Mexican raiders, and the other in large part by dispersing the bandits and killing or capturing the bandit leaders. And so the American officers now in the field feel that the Coahuila expedition has little more to do.

The general belief of the officers is that the present American force in the field south of here will be retained approximately in its present position, as in the case of General Pershing's force, for a short time, probably a couple of weeks, and will continue to scout the vicinity in search of scattered members of the outlaw band that raided Texas territory, and then will be withdrawn to the border.

Ninety Miles South of Border.

The present plans are that the troops in Coahuila shall not go forward any further unless there are new developments calling for an advance. Major Langhorne's two troops of the Eighth Cavalry are now at Santa Fé Del Pino, about ninety miles south of the Rio Grande. Colonel F. W. Sibley's two troops and machine gun company of the Fourteenth Cavalry are one day's march north of Major Langhorne's men and are expected to join the Langhorne party. The small detachments sent out by Major Langhorne to try to locate bands of outlaws have been drawn back to the camp at Santa Fé, that being the best watering place the Major found on his entire trip after the broad Rio Grande had been left behind.

Major Langhorne himself is eager to forge ahead with the eighty men under his command. The bandits are scattered into little groups and have been driven far into the interior of Mexico. There were only fifty-eight of them in the original raiding party, according to information Major Langhorne received from Deemer and Paine, the captives he liberated, and the survivors are now in small parties. It is on the question of the practicability of further pursuit that Colonel Sibley, ranking officer of the expedition, differs from Major Langhorne.

The present lull will give Major Langhorne and his men a chance to catch up on sleep and to establish communication with the force behind them and the authorities in the United States. A buzzer from Marathon to Boquinas is being finished by the Signal Corps today, and over this line it will be possible to transmit the reports to General Funston. Up to the present it has been necessary to send them by automobile over ninety-one miles of bad road from this point. If the expedition is to continue the buzzer will be extended into Mexico.

Constantly in Movement.

Until yesterday no word of any sort had been received from Major Langhorne. He was on the go every minute, and the men under Sibley behind him could not catch up, though they were wearing out their horses in the effort to do so. That is why the news of the rescue of Deemer and Paine did not get out until yesterday. On Sunday, when Deemer was rescued, Major Langhorne had to resort to the slow process of sending reports back by a friendly Mexican on his burro, and the three newspaper correspondents with the expedition attempted to get word back by the same medium. Tuesday morning the lull began, and the correspondents started back by automobile. That night they overtook the burro courier with the official and newspaper dispatches.

Regardless of the brilliant work of his small expedition, there is one thing over which Major Langhorne loses his temper every time it is called to mind. It has to do with $5 worth of gasoline. Had the Government provided the gasoline and automobiles to transport it as rapidly as his column moved, Major Langhorne feels convinced that he would have captured more of the bandits.

On Monday morning, at dawn, a detachment of twenty-five men, with others who had accompanied this group in the two "flivvers," the motor truck, and the Major's own touring car, were to attack about thirty of the bandits, supposed to be at Cerro Blanco, twenty-four miles south of Santa Fé. More cavalrymen were on the way, due to arrive in a few hours as reinforcements if needed.

As on the previous morning at Santa Fé, the Americans formed into tactical units, crept silently around the little group of ranch houses, then made a rush. Again the bandits had gone. The few natives in the house said they had been warned and had left at 1 A. M., four hours before the attack. They had split up into tiny bands, the largest two containing ten men each, and one of these headed southwest toward Sierre Mojada, the terminus of the Mexican Northern Railroad, forty miles distant. Another had gone to the Castillon Rancho, to the west.

Gasoline Tank Empty.

Lieutenant Cramer and ten men were sent after the latter and Major Langhorne decided on a circuitous dash to head off the band going to Sierre Mojada. There was but one watering hole in the forty miles, and Major Langhorne planned to beat them to it. The chauffeur of the motor truck examined his gasoline tank. It was empty, and no more gasoline was to be had. The other cars had only a meagre supply.

The warning, it is believed, was carried to the bandits by a lone member of their party who escaped Sunday afternoon after a hot automobile pursuit. When the troops and horses, exhausted after their three days of continuous marching, reached Santa Fé, the Major and a tiny group of selected men went on in the autos. Six miles south the men in the Major's own touring car sighted a Mexican a long distance away, riding what through glasses seemed to be a United States Cavalry hose. Nine cavalry horses were stolen by the raiders when they overpowered the small American garrison at Glenn Springs.

Out over the mesquite and cactus covered prairie the Major's auto started in pursuit. The lone bandit whipped his horse in desperation over a little rising, but the machine was gaining on him rapidly and the men in it already had begun to fire, when the civilian driver, watching the bandit more closely than the prairie, ran into an arroyo. The Americans escaped with their lives by rare luck. So did the bandit. Up to this time, according to information received by the expedition, the bandits ahead did not know the Americans were so close. Captain G. W. Kirkpatrick had had charge of this part, and whenever the troops camped he established a blockade beyond which no Mexican was allowed to pass, whether seemingly friendly or not.

"Lieutenant Colonel" Balks.

The long nights and days in the saddle, the scarcity of food and water—these were too much for one man who was along with Major Langhorne's party. It was the "Lieutenant Colonel." Nobody knew him by any other name. This black-bearded man, too, was a veteran at campaigning in Mexico. He was the most important one of the three prisoners captured before the expedition started by seven American mine workers when they escaped from the raiders. Major Langhorne took the Lieutenant Colonel along; he might be exchanged for Deemer. When we reached Santa Fé the Lieutenant Colonel tumbled off his horse and fell sound asleep where he fell. So did the Americans, but they were ready to go on in an hour. When the Mexican prisoner woke up, however, he uttered a violent wail that this was no way to treat a Mexican bandit in good standing. He had soldiered under Villa's commanders for years, he said, and had been in many campaigns, but he had never seen any riding like this.

The same impression was made on the picturesque cowboy guides from Texas. It was the "goingest bunch" they ever had seen, they said. During the first sixty hours of this expedition the men with Major Langhorne stopped just two hours for sleep. That was the first night. They had to nurse their horses along and use remounts as much as possible to enable them to stand it.

ATTACKED BY FILIBUSTERS.

Supposed Attempt to Board Wreck of Mexican Ammunition Ship.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, May 18.—J. J. Garza, Carranza Consul, today reported to Colonel A. P. Blocksom of the border patrol that a supposed filibustering schooner had approached the wreck of the schooner La Providencia on the Mexican Gulf coast south of here, and fired a shot at the soldiers guarding the wreck, seriously wounding one.

It was believed that the object was to board the wreck, which, at the time of its disaster, was reported to be carrying arms and ammunition to Mexico.

2 Mexican Bandits to Hang Today.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 18.—Two Mexicans, Joe Chapa and Malquidas Burrostro, will be hanged at Brownsville tomorrow for complicity in bandit raids last Summer. It was announced officially today that Governor James E. Ferguson would not interfere to prevent the executions.

FINDS ERETRIA HIT A MINE.

American Consul So Reports on Fate of British Steamer.

PARIS, May 18.—It has been definitely established that the British freight steamship Eretria, sunk on Friday last, struck a mine, according to Kenneth S. Patton, American Consul at La Rochelle. The first report was that the Eretria, which had three American citizens on board, had been torpedoed, but Consul Patton says the investigation by the Maritime Prefect of La Rochelle definitely establishes that the sinking of the Eretria was due to a mine.

The three Americans on board, who were among the saved, were Charles Myers, chief steward; Jonas Carlsen, fourth engineer, and Jerry Hayes, fireman.

TUBANTIA CASE IN DOUBT.

U-Boat Commander Denies Attacking the Dutch Steamship.

THE HAGUE, May 18.—The Dutch Naval Department tonight issued the following communication:

"The discussions of the Dutch torpedo experts in Berlin regarding the sinking of the steamer Tubantia have not led to any conclusive result. After an examination of the pieces of metal found in the Tubantia's boat the German Admiralty acknowledged that these formed part of a torpedo belonging to a German submarine. But the submarine commander has declared that this torpedo was not fired at the Tubantia on March 16, but at a British warship on March 6, missing its target. The Government intends to press for a deeper inquiry."

U-BOAT SHELLS FISHERMEN.

One Man Killed on British Craft—French Steamer Sunk.

LOWESTOFT, England, May 18.—The crew of the fishing smack Research landed here today, bringing an account of the shelling of their vessel by a German submarine. One member of the crew was killed and two were injured. They say the submarine began shelling the craft before they had time to board their small boat.

LONDON, May 18.—Lloyd's announces that the French steamer Mira has been sunk. The announcement gives no details of the disaster.

The steamer Mira was a vessel of 3,050 tons, built at South Shields in 1895 and owned in Marseilles. She was last reported as having arrived at Penarth, Wales, on April 21, from Algiers.

POPE AGAINST U-BOAT WAR.

British Hear That He Appealed to Germany to Stop It.

LONDON, May 18.—Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, announced in the House of Commons today that the Government had been informed by Sir Henry Howard, British Minister at the Vatican, that representations have been made to Germany by the Vatican with a view to inducing Germany to abandon submarine warfare.

PARIS, May 18.—Georges Clemenceau's newspaper, L'Homme Enchaine, says that Armand Nisard, who was the last French Ambassador to the Vatican before the Concordat ended, has had two long interviews with Pope Benedict. It is assured, adds the newspaper, that he has been charged with a mission to the Pope.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Confidential advices received here from Berlin tell of a message being sent to the German Government by the Vatican, but it was described as being similar to the one recently sent to President Wilson, when the severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany appeared imminent.

It is denied here that the message to Berlin contained any request for abandonment of submarine warfare.

British to Pay for American Ship.

LONDON, May 18.—The British Admiralty has agreed to pay $13,000 damages to the owners of the American schooner Edward B. Winslow, damaged in a collision with the British auxiliary cruiser Caronia off Fire Island, on the American coast, on April 14, 1915.

Publishers Give Books to Soldiers.

Some 300 German publishing firms have supplied 1,080,000 books for the use of the soldiers in hospitals and at the front since the war began, according to a report by the committee in charge of the work of distributing this reading matter appearing in a recent number of the Börsenblatt für den Deutschen Buchhandel. The value of these books was estimated at nearly $140,000.

There are two ways to Prevent Smoke

New York ordinance prohibits smoke and you can comply in two ways: You can burn hard coal (the expensive way) or burn soft coal smokelessly.

Just because it costs more money building owners sometimes think hard coal is the better coal—but it isn't. Soft coal usually contains as much heat, or more, and a dollar spent for soft coal buys more heat value than the same money spent for hard coal.

CUT HEATING COSTS

A Kewanee Smokeless Boiler first saves you money by permitting you to burn the most economical coal you can buy—soft coal.

Further. Most boilers use only 60% of their fuel. The rest of it goes up the stack unburned. But a Kewanee Smokeless Boiler burns any coal so perfectly that none of it is wasted to make smoke.

Tests have proven that they get from 21 to 33 per cent more heat from a ton of coal than ordinary boilers.

DU PONT'S BOOM GONE WITH M'HARG

Minnesota," said Mr. Dwight. "You know, I used to live there and know a good many people, business men as well as politicians. Nobody could drop off in Minneapolis or in St. Paul and have any doubt how highly they think of Elihu Root. They all regret that he did not allow his name to be voted on at the primaries. There is a lot of Root sentiment there and it will find expression in the convention.

"From St. Paul I went down to Omaha and saw a few friends there. They feel very kindly toward Mr. Root in Nebraska. After my experience in the Middle West, nobody need tell me that Mr. Root will not be a strong candidate in that section, and the West is Republican this year, too. You cannot travel out there and be mistaken on that point."

It was said last night that Mr. Root would have some delegates from Michigan, after the Michigan delegation had discharged its obligations to Henry Ford, the pacifist, for whom it has been instructed.

Still Figuring on Hughes' Mind.

With the division of the vote on the first ballot in the Republican National Convention pretty generally known, and with its effect practically discounted from the fact that, except in the cases of Colonel Roosevelt, Justice Hughes and Mr. Root, it will be little more than complimentary and sentimental, the Old Guard leaders at present are devoting their efforts toward preventing any large number of delegates whose obligations to their candidates will be discharged after the first ballot from going on the second to Justice Hughes, who just now looms up as the strongest candidate among those to whom the Old Guard leaders object.

The leaders of the anti-Hughes element have made up their mind that if Justice Hughes should fail to receive the nomination on the second or third ballot, he would be compelled, out of regard for his present position, to put a stop to the further use of his name.

Justice Hughes has already declared emphatically that he is not a candidate and his position has not changed in any way despite the demand for his nomination which has come from all sections of the country. Persons who feel that they can interpret correctly the attitude of Justice Hughes believe that, while he would submit to being "drafted" to lead the Presidential fight this Fall, he would under no circumstances consent to the use of his name if the nomination could come to him only after a fight in convention. The Old Guard leaders in their fight to "stop" Justice Hughes as they believe they have "stopped" the Colonel are relying on the delicacy of his position as an adjunct in their struggle to eliminate him.

Burton Keeps Close to New York.

Ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton, Ohio's favorite son, has returned to the East again. On Wednesday night he made a speech in Oneonta, in the heart of the Congressional district now represented by George W. Fairchild. For some reason the Root leaders are viewing with complacency what ordinarily would be termed "poaching on the Root preserves." The relations between the Root and Burton interests are so friendly that when ex-Senator Burton recently wanted a list of the New York delegates for campaign purposes he went to the Root headquarters and got it. Mr. Burton has made a score of speeches in this State outside of New York City since the pre-convention campaign has been in progress.

The visit of Mr. Burton to the Fairchild stronghold led to the interesting rumor that Congressman Fairchild might be picked as a running mate for Mr. Burton, provided he should land the Presidential nomination, since Governor Whitman is not an aspirant for second honors. Mr. Fairchild is a candidate for re-election, but he is likely to have such a stiff fight on his hands in the Fall primaries that some persons believe he would vastly prefer the easier road to the Vice Presidential nomination. His prospective rival for a seat in Congress is State Senator Samuel A. Jones of Chenango, who, during the two years he has been at Albany, has become known as the "Billy Sunday of the Senate." Senator Jones has a strong following in the political bailiwick of Congressman Fairchild.

George W. Perkins, National Executive Chairman of the Progressive Party, had a statement commenting on the result of the Pennsylvania primaries all prepared for publication yesterday, but on further consideration he decided not to issue it. Mr. Perkins said he would hold it until after a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Progressive National Committee, scheduled for next Wednesday.

Ex-Congressman William Harris Douglas, who is a delegate from the Seventeenth Congressional District, telegraphed THE TIMES last night that the statement that he might vote for Burton was incorrect, and that he would stand strongly for the nomination of Justice Hughes.

BRIAND HAS HIS WAY.

Challenges Chamber to a Vote of Confidence and Carries His Point.

PARIS, May 18.—Premier Briand in the Chamber of Deputies today, asking for a postponement of certain interpellations, among them one regarding the defense of Verdun and another concerning the censorship, took occasion to challenge the Chamber to a vote of confidence.

"At a moment when we can cherish the best of hopes," he said, "confidence between Parliament and the Government should be deep, real, and fraternal. Solidarity is essential. If Parliament cannot give its confidence, let it say so and the Government will retire. If ever a Government had need of standing proudly before the world it is that of France in all her greatness.

"It would be unworthy of you to permit the formation in time of war of that atmosphere of mutual mystification between the Government and Parliament which is often found in time of peace. If such atmosphere should form, or if it existed and you did not destroy it, you would commit a crime against the country.

"You must exert yourselves to collaborate with the Government, in view of the fact that the Government does not refuse to discuss with you the big problems which may arise out of events. What I ask of you is that questions such as the censorship, which has been once lengthily discussed, shall not be brought up again a fortnight later.

In political circles the speech of Premier Briand is considered to have cleared the air and to have checked the manoeuvres of the small but tenacious critical element.

After listening to the Ministers the committee passed two resolutions. The first expressed the hope that the censorship would be reorganized in accordance with the promise of the Government so as to avoid the repetition of incidents such as occurred during the first week of the Verdun operation, and also so that the treatment of the press might not give the impression that certain newspapers were privileged; the second resolution stated that the committee, while strictly refraining from any interference with the conception or execution of military plans, considered it was its duty to see that on all points of the front railroads and munition supplies were looked after with a care and foresight corresponding to the heroism of the soldiers. This resolution concluded with the recommendation that a permanent committee should be organized to visit the war zone and perfect a scheme of co-operation with the commanders in the field.

Premier Briand and General Roques attended a second meeting of the Chamber Committee today. Afterward the committee issued a statement stating that after hearing the Premier they found that they were in agreement with him on the general principles of Parliamentary control of the military administration.

The interpellations were postponed.

BRITISH AVIATORS KILLED.

Aeroplane Falls 1,000 Feet Near Portsmouth.

LONDON, May 18.—Lieutenants Selwyn and Bateman, military aviators, were killed instantly today at Gosport, in Hampshire, near Portsmouth. The aeroplane in which they were flying dived from a height of 1,000 feet.

The cause of the accident has not been determined. Both Lieutenants were experienced aviators.

FRANCE TO LEVY NEW TAXES

Finance Minister Proposes Heavier Impost on Alcohol.

PARIS, May 18.—M. Ribot, the Finance Minister, presented to the Chamber of Deputies on its reassembling today a measure covering the credits for the third quarter of the year. The credits aggregate 8,310,000,000 francs.

The Finance Minister accompanied the measure with a statement showing a satisfactory condition of the Treasury and of the Bank of France, and outlining the steps taken to remedy the exchange situation.

M. Ribot called attention also to the necessity of providing now, before the end of the war, for interest charges on new loans, and he proposed, to that end, increases in direct and indirect taxes that will increase the revenue 900,000,000 francs annually on alcohol, wine, beer, cider, sugar, and tobacco. The tax on alcohol is increased to 400 francs per hectolitre.

The Finance Minister added that the declarations of the revenues under the new income tax law totaled 2,949,000,000 francs from 163,000 persons.

The measure submitted by M. Ribot would double the tax on horses, carriages, automobiles, billiard tables, clubs, hunting preserves and mines. It would tax house dogs ten francs each and hunting dogs five francs each.

The measure also would increase from 5 to 6 per cent. the tax on unlisted foreign securities and increase from 25 to 40 francs per hundred kilos the customs duties on sugar.

Official statistics for the month of April show that France exported goods to the value of 83,500,000 francs more than for the same month last year. In importations the amount was 103,000,000 francs more than for April, 1915.

Dealing with the question of exchange, M. Ribot said in his speech to the Chamber today:

"The United States, which today is our greatest provider, understands more and more that it has an interest in facilitating our purchases by furnishing us the necessary credits and thus assuring important advantages, after the question of peace arises, in reconstructing our industries and establishing our economic relations on a more extended basis.

"The arrangements made with the British Treasury and between the Bank of France and the Bank of England are to the advantage of both countries in maintaining the exchange rate of London on other countries, and in particular on the United States, to the extent necessary to enable the maintenance of gold payments by the Bank of England.

"Under this arrangement England opens to us a credit of which we have need for our disbursements, while we aid them effectively by advancing gold, which is repayable after peace returns. This united action by the Allies, who are struggling for liberty and civilization, and the unshakable resolution never to lay down arms before winning a peace that protects us against new aggressions, are certain guarantees of final victory. No sacrifice will be too dear which achieves the end France has determined to reach."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 18.—"It is the inauguration of a new financial policy," is the Temps' comment on M. Ribot's proposals introduced in the Chamber today. They mark the first attempt on the part of France to pay for the war. Hitherto money has been raised on credit without alteration of existing taxes or suggestions as to how it is to be repaid.

The most important feature of the new measures is an increase of the income tax. This is likely to be fought to the uttermost in Parliament. The Temps complains that it indicates that the tax originally imposed purely as a war extra is to be maintained until, as in England, it becomes a part of the regular charges. Further proof that this is the case is afforded by M. Ribot's concluding hint that he may later have recourse to inheritance taxes, or "a direct war contribution on fortunes."

GERMANS AGAIN FAIL IN VERDUN ASSAULT

Heavy Attack on the West Bank of the Meuse Stopped by a Curtain of Fire.

FRENCH GAIN AT HILL 304

Capture of a Fort Reported by Paris —Germans Active on the East Bank of the Yser.

LONDON, May 18.—The Germans delivered another strong attack on the west bank of the Meuse this afternoon, aimed at French positions in the Avocourt Wood and on Hill 304. This movement failed entirely, the Paris report issued tonight says. A curtain of artillery fire and machine guns, the report adds, appeared to have caused serious losses in the German ranks.

Early this morning the French captured a German fort on the slopes of Hill 304, the afternoon report says. Attempts made by the Germans to capture a redoubt at Avocourt last night were frustrated.

The Berlin communication says three French attacks on positions at Hill 304 were repulsed this morning.

The Belgian staff tells of the repulse of a German attack on a post east of the Yser.

There has been little activity on the British front except artillery battles. Thirteen more aerial combats are reported in tonight's official communication.

The official communication issued by the French War Office tonight reads:

> North of the Aisne we dispersed an enemy detachment which attempted to reach one of our trenches to the south of Nouvron.
>
> On the left bank of the Meuse the enemy, after a violent bombardment, launched about 5 o'clock a strong attack on our positions in the Avocourt Wood and on Hill 304. Our curtain of fire and the fire of our machine guns stopped the enemy, who appeared to have suffered serious losses.
>
> The artillery action continued very violently on the whole of the sector.
>
> There was an intermittent bombardment on the right bank, more intense at Les Eparges.
>
> There is no important event to report on the rest of the front.

The British official statement on the campaign reads:

> Yesterday there was again considerable aerial work. Thirteen combats took place. One hostile machine is believed to have been accounted for, as it was last seen descending vertically.
>
> During the afternoon, after a strong bombardment, the enemy gained a mine crater held by us on the Vimy Ridge. Last night a strong hostile patrol, which tried to rush one of our posts near Wieltje, was driven back.
>
> Today, except for artillery activity about Angres and St. Eloi, there was no special incident to report.

The Belgian communication says:

> Yesterday, toward the end of the evening, after a violent bombardment with trench mortars and heavy calibre guns, a German detachment attacked one of our posts on the east bank of the Yser, to the north of Steenstraete. The enemy was stopped by our barrier fire and the fire of our infantry.

The text of the French statement of this afternoon follows:

> Between the River Oise and the River Aisne a strong reconnoitring party of the enemy which was endeavoring to approach our lines in the neighborhood of Quennevières was subjected by us to a counterattack and dispersed, leaving some dead upon the field where the encounter took place.
>
> On the left bank of the River Meuse, after a spirited preparation by their artillery, the Germans endeavored several times last night to capture the redoubt in the Wood of Avocourt. Repulsed each time by our fire, the enemy suffered very serious losses. As for us, we executed, at a point to the north of Hill 287, at about 3 o'clock in the morning, a surprise attack upon a German trench. The men occupying this position were either killed or made prisoner.
>
> At this same time of day French troops took possession, after a furious engagement, of a small fort of the enemy on the northeast slope of Hill 304.
>
> On the right bank of the River Meuse and in the Woevre district there have been reciprocal bombardments.
>
> During the night of May 16-17 French aviators conducted numerous bombardments along the front to the north of Verdun. For instance: Fifteen shells of large calibre were thrown down upon an important depot of munitions between Raucourt and Haraucourt, ten kilometers (six miles) south of Sedan; five more on the railroad station at Sedan, where a fire broke out, and fifteen on a depot of munitions not far from Azannes. During the same night two French aeroplanes threw down eighty shells on the railroad station at Metz-Sablons.
>
> Aviators of the enemy during the night threw down several bombs in the vicinities of Lunéville, Epinal, and Belfort. They caused material damage of no great importance.

The text of today's statement from German Army Headquarters says:

> Three further attacks by the French against our positions on Hill 304 were repulsed early this morning. During a retreat through Esnes the enemy suffered very heavy losses in the surrounding open country. This refers to attempts to attack made by a fresh African division, consisting of mixed white and colored French troops.
>

Germans Report French Use of Gas.

BERLIN, May 18, (by Wireless to Sayville.) — "Correspondents on the western front give details of a recent gas attack by the French in the Aisne district," the Overseas News Agency says. "The French discharged gas four times at intervals of half an hour. The gas came forward in thick grayish-black waves. It had a nauseating odor, like chloride. The clouds were so dense that the men in the German trenches were not able to see objects in their immediate neighborhood.

The gas masks of the Germans afforded complete protection, especially as a squally wind drove the gas further on. A few Germans who, as a result of carelessness, did not adjust their masks were sent to hospitals to be treated for asphyxiation and spasms of the lungs.

"The gas attack was ended by a shot from a German gun, which exploded the French gas magazine."

SHIPMENTS FROM GERMANY

Total $1,000,000 a Month Under Special Permit from British.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — American purchases in Germany, though but a fraction of what they were before the war, have not ceased entirely, as shown in statistics compiled today in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Shipments from Germany to the United States still amount to more than $1,000,000 a month.

Goods are permitted to come only under special permit and in limited quantities. Before the British Orders in Council went into effect, a year ago, about $10,000,000 worth of imports came through monthly.

Figures covering the last six months of 1915 show that toys valued at slightly more than $2,000,000 comprised the largest single item. Leather goods and chinaware fell slightly below $1,000,000 each, and laces and paper came through in values of about $500,000. Raw skin shipments were valued at nearly $500,000 and furs at about $200,000.

Shipments of photographic papers in the period given reached a value of $250,000; musical instruments, $120,000; gelatine, $241,000; glassware, $160,000; knit goods, $133,000; clocks, $125,000; books, $29,000; post cards, $10,000. Chemical and drug shipments reached a value of only $116,000.

LORD BRYCE POINTS TO AMERICA'S DUTY

Thinks We Should Act to Avert Future Wars, as Times Have Changed Here.

UNLIKE WASHINGTON'S DAY

Farewell Address Made Before We Became the Wealthiest Power.

In what the publishers of The New Republic announce is the first public comment he has made on America's international position since the outbreak of the European war, Viscount Bryce, in an article entitled "America's Traditional Isolation," states in that publication, out today, what he believes the underlying causes are for a change in America's foreign policy as defined particularly by George Washington. He disclaims at the outset any tender of advice or officious comment, but writes rather, he says, "with no intent to express an opinion on the course the United States ought to follow in any particular conjuncture."

This nation has outgrown the concepts of Washington, as laid down in his farewell address, in the opinion of Viscount Bryce. He sees justification for a complete change of procedure in such a crisis as now exists in Europe, with the procedure which he believes undoubtedly would have been taken in Washington's time.

"Washington's farewell address," comments Viscount Bryce, "was recognized in his own time and has been recognized ever since as a masterly document. No single utterance by any American statesman has had more influence, perhaps none has had so much influence, upon the mind of the American people." The former British Ambassador to the United States then reviews the causes for the words of Washington in his counsels recommending a policy of complete isolation with regard to Europe.

"Consider what those circumstances were," Viscount Bryce reminds his American readers. "North America was distant from Europe by a voyage of some weeks; American commerce, how small compared with that of our own times! Very few persons went to and fro. They could afford to think little and care little about Europe; they were, moreover, in Washington's day a population of only five millions.

Doom of the Dynasty Sounded.

"But at last things changed in Europe and the revolutions of 1848 marked the decisive stage of the change. They have gone on changing fast since then, and the greatest change in all has been the extension of the power and influence of the leading civilized States beyond the boundaries of Europe; the whole world has now become one by the enormous development of trade, due to new and swift means of transportation and communication, and by the interests which every country has in the weal or woe of any other country. No country escapes this influence and the United States can escape it as little as any because it is the wealthiest of all."

After recounting how the range of offensive warlike action has been immensely enlarged, and how aggressive and ambitious power is now restrained by scruples of humanity, Ambassador Bryce proceeds:

"European wars have now almost lost their old dynastic character. Austria is an exception, for there the Hapsburgs are still allowed to play their own hand, but the Austro-Hungarian monarchy—an ill-assorted congeries of races only one of which is attached to the dynasty and some of which dislike it—is an anachronism in the modern world. Wars are now undertaken partly for colonies and commerce, but mainly for the sake of nationality and liberty. This war has arisen from a quarrel over nationality, but it involves the principle of liberty also, because every one knows that if Germany had been a free country in the sense in which France and Italy, Switzerland and Holland are free, there need have been no conflict.

"The course which the war has taken has involved not only the principle of liberty but the maintenance of international right, the observance of rules laid down by international conventions, and the principles of humanity toward noncombatants, and these principles interest all the world, the two Americas no whit less than Europe. They, too, have a stake in the struggle.

Neutral Opinion Now Recognized.

"Never before has the power of public opinion in neutral nations been so fully recognized as it is in this war. Each of the belligerents has shown itself anxious to win the favor of that opinion, recognizing its moral influence as well as the possibilities of its direct action. There is another way in which the position of the United States has been entirely changed. She now numbers more than twenty times the population of Washington's day. She has become a great power to which the world looks as the strongest and most impartial exponent of neutral opinion. The United States stands in an especial degree for the principles of international justice and international law. It has done more than any other nation to advocate the substitution of arbitration for war, and to improve the rules and assert the value of the principles of public law as governing international relations.

"Less than ever before can the United States view with an indifferent eye the conflict, wherever in the world it may be waged, for principles which it has done so much to promote, principles intertwined with its own life and growth.

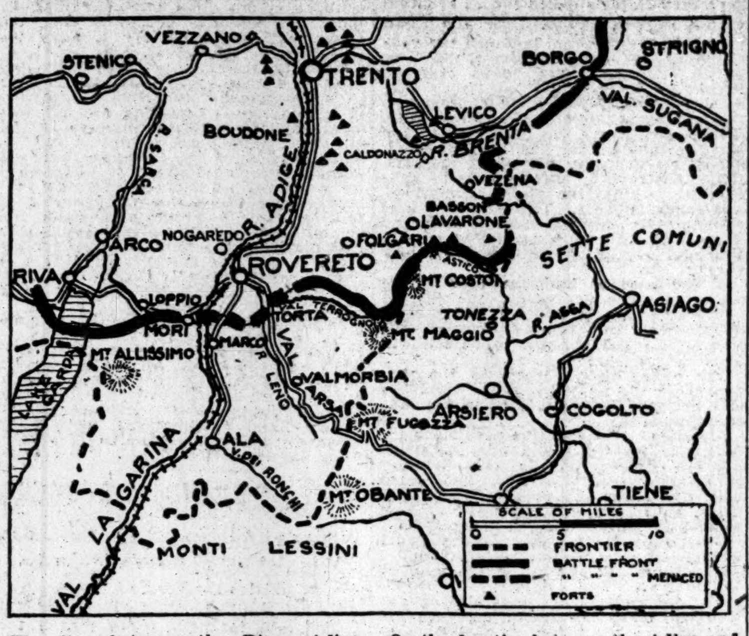
"This brings me back to the point where we started. Have not the changes of 120 years so altered the relations of North America to Europe as to make some lines of action right or even necessary now which would have been uncalled for, and even dangerous, in 1796? These are submitted as general considerations. Of their applicability to the present or any other specific crisis it is not for me to speak. No sensible man on this side of the Atlantic would venture to offer argument or advice upon matters which are entirely for the judgment of the Government and people of the United States.

Our Duty to Avert Conflict.

"But there is one point on which a word may be said, because it relates not to the present conjucture nor to that treaty settlement when the war ends which the belligerent powers, whoever they may then be, will have to make, but to the further and subsequent question: what is to be done after the settlement has been reached and completed? This is a matter on which Europeans are entitled to address their American friends, inviting their cooperation in a work to be done hereafter for the benefit of the world. All thoughtful men both in Britain and, as we are told, in the United States also, feel that some effort must be made to provide machinery calculated to prevent the recurrence of such a frightful calamity as this war has proved to be.

"Here is an undertaking which the changes of the last seventy years have made a matter of common concern to every part of the world. No great nation, whatever its maxims of policy have heretofore been, can, if it approves the end in view, stand aloof from the effort to attain that end, now more than ever urgent. Here is a service in which the United States is called upon to join because it is to be rendered to mankind at large, to the New World as well as to the Old."

Where Austrian Attack Is the Heaviest.



The line between the River Adige (Etsch in German) and the River Brenta, which seems to have been the chief sector of the Austrian attack, is between 23 and 25 miles in length and includes the Val Lagarina and the Val Sugana. The chief points of attack, according to the Italian report, are in the Lagarina, indicated by the broken line.

Forty-two miles southeast from this front is the highway and railway centre of Vicenza, with its connections northeast with Cittadella and Montebelluna, which supply the Italians on the eastern front of the Trentino, east to Padua and Venice, and west to Verona.

On the frontier between the Adige and the Astico the Italians have not made much progress—in some places their line is hardly over the frontier. This is due to the fact that no railways and few roads penetrate the region. One line goes northwest from Vicenza, via Schio, to Arsiero, 8 miles from the frontier. South of this is the trunk highway from Rovereto, which forms a junction with the highway at Schio on its way to Vicenza.

Aside from these two approaches Vicenza is protected by the very mountain barriers which the Italians found so difficult to penetrate in the opposite direction and which have been the main obstacle to their advance in this region, of which the chief is the ridge of the Sette Comuni, which bounds the frontier.

ITALIANS REPULSE VIOLENT ATTACKS

Austrians Continue the Drive in the Southern Part of the Trentino.

MAKE FIVE GREAT ATTACKS

Uninterrupted Bombardment of the Line Elsewhere—Vienna Claims Gain at Doberdo.

LONDON, May 18.—The official statement received from Rome tonight shows a continuation of the strong Austro-Hungarian offensive in the Trentino. No further gain by the Teutonic forces is admitted.

The most violent attacks appear to have been delivered in the Lagarina Valley, south of Rovereto, where Tyrol cuts deepest into Italian territory. Rome says five violent attacks were repulsed on this front "with sanguinary losses."

Following the Italian line east and north from the Lagarina Valley to the Upper Astico, there have been continued artillery bombardments.

Italian counterattacks have won back some of the trenches taken by the Austrians on the Isonzo front.

The Italian official communication follows:

> In the Adamello zone we captured rich booty in arms, munitions, and material which was abandoned by the enemy in the Topete and Fargorida passes. During the course of Wednesday our Alpine troops extended the conquest to the crest north of Fargorida as far as the Mattarott zone at the source of the Saroa River.
>
> In the Ledro Valley, after intense artillery preparations throughout the night of the 16th, the enemy at dawn attacked our positions on the slopes of Monte Parı, but was repulsed with serious losses.
>
> In the Lagarina Valley yesterday the enemy renewed by means of numerous powerful batteries his bombardment of our positions on Zegnatorta, after which he launched five violent attacks, each time being repulsed with sanguinary losses.
>
> In the zone between the Terragnolo Valley and the Upper Astico the enemy has continued an uninterrupted artillery fire against the positions of our main line of defense.
>
> We repulsed the customary feint attacks in the San Pelegrino Valley, in the Marmolado zone, on the Fedaia Pass, on the Upper Astico, and on Upper Cordevole.
> On the Isonzo front there has been moderate artillery activity. In the Monfalcone sector by a brilliant counterattack our troops recaptured part of the trenches which remained in the enemy's hands after the action of the 15th.

An official dispatch from Italian headquarters at Udine reports that Austrian aeroplanes are displaying great activity and have made several attacks on towns in the vicinity of Venice. It is stated that these attacks have caused insignificant material damage, that no lives have been lost and no military results accomplished.

Austrians Extend Doberdo Gains.

BERLIN, May 18, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—Artillery engagements are in progress all along the Austro-Italian front, on which the Austrians began an offensive movement several days ago. The official Austrian statement of May 17 reports the capture of new positions on the Doberdo Plateau.

Several Italian cities, in addition to Venice, were attacked in the recent aerial raids, which, the statement says, were very effective. The announcement is as follows:

> Artillery combats are in progress along the whole front. On Doberdo Plateau our new position was extended by the explosion of mines. The enemy directed a drum fire on the position and then attacked. He was repulsed by Infantry Regiment 43 in a fight with hand grenades.
>
> The artillery fire became very violent at times at the Gorizia bridgehead, in the Krn sector, near Flitsch, and at several places on the Carinthian front.
>
> Night attacks of the enemy in the Dolomites, against Hexengels, and the ridge north of Fienberg were repulsed.
>
> In the sector of Loppio Lake the enemy maintained a strong fire against our lines.
>
> Strong squadrons of military and naval aeroplanes yesterday and the night before dropped many bombs on railroad stations and other establishments of Venice, Mestre, Cormons, Cividale, Udine, Perlacardin, and Erwiso. Good effects were observed at all these places, particularly at Udine, where about thirty anti-aircraft cannon maintained a useless fire.

FRENCH CONFIDENCE IN ALLY.

Observers Think Austrians Aim at Vicenza, but Will Fail.

PARIS, May 18.—The attack launched by the Austrians against the Italian front in Southern Tyrol, and which has gradually extended to the entire Austro-Italian front, is being followed here with close attention. It is generally believed in military circles that the great Austrian offensive which has been expected for some time past has at last begun.

No importance is attached to the falling back of the Italian advance lines, which is considered an obvious move, as they were not sufficiently strong to resist an attack on a large scale. Although the Italian central position on the Lavarone plateau is not yet involved, it is thought probable that the principal effort of the Austrians will be made in that direction. It seems evident that the Austrian Generals intend to try and carry out their former plan of smashing a way through to the Vicenza Plain. The fact that heavy reinforcements have been moved up under cover of the formidable series of forts stretching from Folgaria and Lavarone favors the belief that Vicenza is the real objective of the offensive.

The French military authorities are satisfied that the Austrians are doomed to failure, regardless of what efforts they may make. It is pointed out that the Italians have made every possible preparation for just such an attack as the present, and that the most powerful defenses that engineering skill could devise have been prepared on the Asiago Plateau and in the mountains northwest of Arsiero. It is on this line that the Italians are expected to make their real stand in the event the Austrians continue to push their offensive.

GENEVA, May 18, (via Paris.)—Reports from Innsbruck indicate that the heaviest fighting of the war between Italy and Austria during this year is in progress in the region of Rovereto and the Sugana Valley, while there is every evidence that the Austrians have begun a general offensive against the Italians from the Alps to the Adriatic. A large number of bodies of Austrian soldiers killed during the fighting are said to be floating down the River Adige.

The Austrians have brought several batteries of their heaviest guns from Germany, and have installed them near Gorizia and Monfalcone, where the staff of Archduke Frederick has arrived. The Austrians are also rushing troops from Innsbruck into the region of Trent.

Swiss troops on the frontier report that the Austrian positions on the Adamello Range have recently been greatly strengthened, and that the artillery duels are increasing in intensity.

SHIP BILL CHANGES SLIGHT.

All Material Amendments Fail in Second Day of Debate.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The second day of debate on the Administration Shipping bill closed in the House tonight without any substantial change being made in the measure. All debate will close tomorrow afternoon, and, although less than one-seventh of the bill has been considered for amendment thus far, Democratic leaders tonight expressed confidence that it would go without material amendment. They are extremely uncertain, however, regarding its fate in the Senate.

Representative Bennet of New York occupied most of the time today in proposing general amendments. Representatives Humphrey of Washington and Towner of Iowa made futile attempts to strike out the provision giving the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of Commerce places on the Shipping Board. They insisted that the presence of members of the Administration on the board would embarrass other members and prevent them from giving their best services.

Speaker Clark took the floor in behalf of the bill, and Minority Leader Mann spoke against it.

SEES END OF HYPHEN IN UNIVERSAL DRILL

Henry P. Breckinridge Stirs Meeting of Academy of Political Science.

MAJORITY FAVOR TRAINING

Oswald Garrison Villard and President Meiklejohn of Amherst College Speak in Opposition.

An all-day debate on the question of universal military training, held yesterday before the Academy of Political Science in Earl Hall, Columbia University, came to a climax last night when Henry B. Breckinridge, former Assistant Secretary of War, declared:

"Universal military training is the only way to yank the hyphen out of America. With German and English, Russian and Austrian, Italian, and Turk, all rubbing elbows in common service to one country—out comes the hyphen, up goes the Stars and Stripes and in a generation the melting pot will have melted!"

It had been evident all through the afternoon and evening session that the friends of universal military training were in the large majority, and the cheers and applause that greeted the concluding sentence of the speech of the eloquent Mr. Breckinridge left no doubt as to the sentiment of his audience.

A large majority of the speakers, which came from every branch of American activity, were in favor of universal compulsory military training for citizens of the United States. The two notable exceptions were Oswald Garrison Villard, who spoke in the afternoon, and Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, President of Amherst College. Matthew Woll, President of the International Allied Printing Trades Association, was against universal military training.

Dr. Meiklejohn declared the proposed universal training system was futile because there was no need for the army of 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 that would be made available.

"You talk of German efficiency," he said, "but what has made Germany efficient is not the army officer; it is the schoolmaster. This sudden fever for something America does not need is only empty aping."

When Dr. Meiklejohn took his seat Captain H. Dorey of the Fourteenth Infantry was cheered when he arose and said:

"Well, I didn't know there was anybody now who thought we no longer needed young men to fight for this nation! Anything short of universal training is a makeshift."

Irving T. Bush presided at the night session. He thought that universal military training would be good if we never had another war.

Mr. Breckinridge said that universal military training was the most vital question before the American people. "As we look back over the records of history," he added, "we see the downfall of nations coterminous with the decline of military virtue and the abandonment of thoroughgoing systems of universal service.

"America is the only free nation of any consequence to hold back, and America in the civil war, the only real test of her life, had to fall in line for universal service.

"I tell you that with the present status of international morality, if America neglects preparedness she will not escape humiliation and disaster. If this nation heeds the maudlin preachments of its Bryans and its Fords it will pay for it by billions of levied treasure, by millions of lives slaughtered in a sacrifice for unpreparedness, and by unprecedented national besmirch, if not extinction. Universal service is the only way out of it."

Mr. Breckinridge pointed to the example of Swiss military training as the best for America to follow.

The speech of John P. White, President of the United Mine Workers of America, was read.

"Let us keep up our navy," said Mr. White. "Let us keep alive the science of arms through the maintenance of a small expert army. Let us have a thorough overhauling of our military establishment to assure ourselves that our expert military men are abreast of developments. Let us have a plan for the quick mobilization of men and munitions and supplies. Above all, let us reorganize our present military force on a basis that will permit of its enlargement, if ever need arise, without endangering democratic ideals. Labor cannot discuss with much enthusiasm the methods of preparing for war, but labor must be prepared for the worst. If war comes the workers will respond — no matter how great the pity and sin of it, they will respond."

C. E. Knoeppel spoke of industrial preparedness as an auxiliary of military preparedness. Frederick A. Kuenzli, President of the National Defense Institute, advocated the adoption of the Swiss military system in this country. Papers by the following were read, and will be published and widely circulated by the academy: Major E. N. Johnson, Engineers Corps, U. S. A.; Dr. Edmund J. James, President of the University of Illinois; George Creel, Samuel J. Rosensohn, Assistant Corporation Counsel, New York City; Dr. Robert M. Johnson, Professor of Military History, Harvard; Dr. John H. Finley, State Superintendent of Education; Walter L. Fisher, former Secretary of the Interior, and Colonel C. De Witt Willcox of the United States Military Academy.

At the afternoon session, at which Albert Shaw presided, there was a discussion, filled with much warmth of feeling, of whether the compulsory or volunteer system of military training should obtain in this country. Captain Ewald Hecker of the German Army and Professor Moritz J. Bonn of the University of Munich thought the German system was of the supreme perfection, not only for national but for individual conservation. Oswald Garrison Villard declared in favor of the volunteer system as the only system practicable in the American Republic, and Dr. T. N. Christen told of the merits of the Swiss system. Adjt. Gen. Stotesbury said that universal compulsory training was the duty of every American citizen under the Constitution. Mr. Villard made an appeal against fostering the spirit of militarism in America.

BRITAIN'S TARIFF PROBLEMS.

Austen Chamberlain Hints at Combined Action on Future Policy.

LONDON, May 18.—An interesting discussion on finance after the war was raised in the House of Commons today by William A. S. Hewins, Unionist member for Herford, a representative of the tariff interests. Mr. Hewins pointed to the tremendous growth of direct as compared with indirect taxation, and warned the country against underestimating Germany's economic strength. He urged that it was an imperative necessity for the Government to express its attitude toward the economic conference in Paris and take steps in the direction of trade preference within the empire and a preferential arrangement with the Allies.

J. Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for India, in replying made a significant speech, which seemed to foreshadow some kind of an economic agreement among the different parties in the House of Commons. Like Mr. Hewins, he warned the House that it would be unwise to count upon the rapid economic exhaustion of Germany, and said that it would be much better for Great Britain to build on her own strength than on Germany's weakness.

Great Britain's tremendous financial resources, as compared with Germany's, were worth remarking, however, added Mr. Chamberlain, as was the fact that Great Britain seemed to be bearing the burden without undue strain, as was proved by the buoyant taxation returns. The nation was using up its capital, however, for war purposes, while neutral countries, through large profits made at the expense of the belligerents, were accumulating resources to compete with this nation after the war. How far the opposing political parties could agree upon a common after-the-war policy was an interesting question.

"We have made an immense advance toward an agreement," he said, "and at a time like this I would not like to consider myself bound to the exact principles advocated before the war."

Mr. Chamberlain invited the House to bring fresh minds to the fresh problems arising and to consider these without prejudice. He asserted that it would be much wiser to provide a comparatively imperfect system which would form the basis of a national and imperial policy to be developed afterward. It would not be good for any sound system of tariff duties that there should be created a series of preposterous duties which were intended to be, and were in effect, absolutely prohibitive, he asserted.

Mr. Chamberlain said that he could make no statement about the Paris conference except that Great Britain's representatives would go unbound by any rigid school of economic thought.

PRESIDENT PLEADS FOR NEW YORKER

ment outlining the formation of the National Volunteers, of which he declared a small section only had shown themselves disloyal, the leaders of this section having issued a manifesto declaring that Ireland should provide for its own defense, and indicated an intention to establish a free national government of Ireland. The leaders of the movement, he said, directed their efforts to securing more rifles and ammunition and to storing as large an amount of material as possible. This was where the real danger came from, he added, as it was felt that an attempt at disarmament might lead to bloodshed.

The executives in Ireland being in possession of sufficient evidence of the association of the movement's leaders with a foreign enemy, continued Sir Matthew, had decided upon their arrest, and were discussing the matter on April 24 when the rebellion broke out. He defended the failure of the Government to disarm the volunteers on the ground that such action might have alienated the sympathies of many loyal volunteers, and added: "There are 25,000 Irish Catholics enlisted in the army."

The Royal Irish Constabulary was considered strong enough to cope with disorders, the witness continued. A mobile force of 500 mounted men and 2,000 others, with three machine guns, was always in readiness, and these, with 2,500 men from the Curragh, were thought capable of dealing with the outbreak in Dublin, but contrary to expectations they were insufficient.

In the course of his testimony Sir Matthew declared that the fear that the Military Service act would be applied to Ireland indused a number of the National Volunteers to join the Sinn Fein movement, so that at the beginning of the disturbances there were 16,000 hostile volunteers throughout Ireland, of whom 3,000 were in Dublin.

Considerable sums of money, he said, had been coming from America, the funds being used for the purchase of arms and the printing of seditious papers and leaflets. It was estimated that £16,000 had been received from America and paid into Dublin banks from the middle of September, 1914, to the following April, when the money was withdrawn. After that it was not found possible to trace the methods of the receipt in Ireland of money from the United States.

The police estimated before the outbreak that the volunteers had about 1,800 rifles, pistols, and other firearms, and that there were 825 rifles in Dublin. Explosives had also been found in different parts of the country.

Steps had been taken, continued Sir Matthew, to deal with the movement before the insurrection by preventing civil servants from belonging to the Irish Volunteers and by stopping this organization from becoming a military one by cutting off supplies of arms and ammunition.

Until three days before the outbreak of the rebellion, Sir Matthew testified, there had been no proof of an connection of any anti-British party in Ireland with a foreign enemy. A memorandum which was said to be in the possession of one of the leaders with pro-German sentiments stated that the Germans contemplated a combined offensive by land, sea and air in order to secure victory before May, and requested the Irish Volunteers to render their promised assistance.

On March 16 young Irish Volunteers were anxious to commence operations, but the heads of the movement were against a rising at that moment. Thomas MacDonagh declaring that it would be sheer madness to attempt any such thing if the help promised were not forthcoming.

Baron Hardinge asked Sir Matthew Nathan why no action had been taken to prevent drilling under arms.

"We were deterred because we were afraid to enforce the act," said Sir Matthew. "We were deterred practically for political purposes."

When asked what action had been taken to report this to the then Chief Secretary for Ireland, Augustine Birrell, Sir Matthew declared the Chief Secretary was fully aware of it.

The witness also admitted that he knew women were being trained to look after wounded men and that sham fights for the taking of Dublin Castle were being held. These facts, he said, also were known to the Chief Secretary. He did not think at the time of the sham fights that they might be followed at some subsequent time by a real attack on the castle.

BERESFORD ADMITS ERROR.

Retracts Charges He Made Against British Air Service.

LONDON, May 18.—Lord Beresford, who recently made strong allegations in the House of Lords against the efficiency of the British air service, appeared today before a committee appointed to inquire into charges made by himself and others and retracted his statements. He declared that at the time he made these assertions he considered them accurate, but on further investigation he found they were incorrect.

Replying to a question regarding his charge that at the beginning of the war nearly all the British aeroplanes were poorly made, he said that doubtless they were the best that could be purchased at the time.

$1,500,000,000 for War.

LONDON, Friday, May 19.—It is generally believed that the vote of credit which Premier Asquith will ask from Parliament next Tuesday will be for £300,000,000. This will be the eleventh vote since the beginning of the war and will bring the total thus granted up to £2,382,000,000.

SULLIVAN HELD EIGHT DAYS.

Timothy Healy Asks Explanation of American's Detention.

LONDON, May 18. — Timothy Healy said in the House of Commons today that he understood James M. Sullivan, former American Minister to the Dominican Republic, had been kept in jail in Ireland for eight days without the lodging of any charge against him. When he was finally released, Mr. Healy said, no apology was made.

Mr. Healy asked Foreign Secretary Grey to "ascertain what explanation was offered by General Maxwell (the British Commander in Ireland) for the vigorous treatment to which Mr. Sullivan was subjected."

AN IRISH CABINET NOW ASQUITH'S PLAN

Premier to Confer at Once With Irish Leaders—Hopes to Satisfy Ulster.

LONDON, Friday, May 19.—With the return of Premier Asquith to London the question of the immediate future of the Irish Government will take the centre of the stage for the British public. It is expected that Mr. Asquith will immediately arrange a series of important conferences with the Irish leaders, including Sir Edward Carson and John Redmond. The attitude of Sir Edward undoubtedly will be a vital factor in the situation, and there is more than a hint that David Lloyd George, the Munitions Minister, will take a leading part in an effort to bring all the Irish parties into line.

It is already known that Premier Asquith hopes to bring Ulster into any arrangement which is made to install a moderate measure of home rule in Ireland. There will be no attempt on the part of any section of the interested parties to inaugurate home rule such as was provided for in the Home Rule bill.

The solution of the situation most generally favored is the formation of an Irish Cabinet with strictly circumscribed powers, which will be gradually extended. The new order of things is expected to go into effect as soon as details can be arranged.

The Daily Mail's Dublin correspondent, who is generally regarded as being in the closest touch with the situation, gives the following summary of the result of Premier Asquith's trip to Ireland:

"The idea chiefly discussed by the Premier has been the formation of an Irish Executive Council to sit in Dublin as an Irish Cabinet and to be responsible, like the imperial Cabinet, to the British House of Commons, but to possess no powers to enact legislation or to raise new taxes.

"What may be the constitution of the body, what its powers, what the safeguards to prevent undue exercise of its authority, and whether it will be set up merely as a temporary arrangement during the war are questions still unknown. Mr. Asquith himself is not yet clear respecting these matters, and a series of Cabinet discussions and conferences with the Irish leaders will follow his return to London."

The correspondent says Premier Asquith's inquiries in Dublin have convinced the Premier that this is a great opportunity for a settlement of the Irish situation, and that a majority of the Nationalists earnestly desire a settlement.

"The Ulster position," the correspondent adds, "is more difficult, but Premier Asquith is very hopeful of bringing Ulster amicably into the arrangement. There is to be no attempt to introduce Home Rule of the sort defined in the Home Rule bill. The negotiations following Mr. Asquith's return to London will be short, and the new scheme will be put into force almost at once. Baron Wimborne's resignation has never been accepted, and he continues to act as Viceroy of Ireland."

DUBLIN, May 18.—Premier Asquith went from here this morning to Cork, where he held a conference lasting two hours with the Nationalist leaders in the South of Ireland, after which he returned to Dublin.

DEFENDS TROOPS IN DUBLIN.

General Maxwell Tells of the Difficulty of Their Task.

DUBLIN, Friday, May 19.—Major Gen. Sir John Maxwell, commanding the British troops in Ireland, has given out the following statement in reply to charges of brutality made against the troops:

"These allegations seem almost exclusively concerned with the fighting in North King Street, which cut through the rebel area. Before we could complete a cordon in this street the worst fighting in the whole of Dublin, with the exception of that at Ball's Bridge, occurred there. Only after twenty-four hours of fighting were we able to capture the street. The casualties were very heavy in this fighting. The troops were continually fired at from the roofs and upper windows of houses as the rebels moved from house to house.

"As the troops moved along the street the rebels would escape by back doors and fire again from behind houses, necessitating the searching and occupying of every house. Always we found that the rebels sought to cloak themselves behind their women when we began to search a house. They threw away their rifles and joined the women who were herding at the back, pretending to have been there all the time. These rebels wore no uniforms, and a man who was shooting at a soldier one minute might, for all we knew, be walking quietly beside him in the street at another.

"In spite of our efforts, the women and children refused to leave the North King Street area. Their sympathies were with the rebels, and this must be remembered in connection with their allegations now.

"It was impossible from headquarters to exercise direct control of this sort of fighting, because the telegraph and telephones were out of commission and nearly everything had to be left to the troops on the spot. Possibly unfortunate incidents which we regret now may have occurred. They were inevitable consequences of a rebellion of this kind, which could not be suppressed by kid glove methods where our troops were desperately opposed and attacked. Some of the allegations certainly are false, and probably were made in order to establish a claim for compensation from the Government.

"I have ordered a strict military inquiry into all the allegations. Officers will visit all houses and investigate the circumstances impartially. The battalions concerned will be paraded in order that witnesses may have an opportunity, if they can, of identifying the officers or men responsible. Any proved guilty will be properly punished. The full results of the inquiry will be made public as soon as possible."

PACIFISTS TURN FIRE ON NATIONAL GUARD

Union Against Militarism Says Federalization Will Build a Dangerous Machine.

SUPPORTS SENATE CRITICS

Arguments of Preparedness Advocates Used in Letter Attacking the Army Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—On the eve of consideration by the House of the conference report on the Army Reorganization bill, the American Union Against Militarism has come to the support of the advocates of preparedness as embodied in the original Senate bill, by bitterly protesting against "the Federalized militia" as embodied in the compromise report. The advocates of preparedness in the Senate concentrated their fire on the militia features of the House bill, and the same features are now attacked by the union, largely with the arguments used by such critics of the House bill as Senator Chamberlain, Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, and Senator Borah of Idaho.

The American Union Against Militarism set forth their protest today in a letter sent to Chairman Hay of the House Committee on Military Affairs, who is generally regarded as the leader of the pacifists in the House. The Executive Committee of the union includes such pacifists as Miss Lillian D. Wald, Miss Crystal Eastman, Max Eastman, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, James M. Maurer of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, and Miss Jane Addams.

The union's principal objection seems to be that the appropriation of from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 for the National Guard would create a political machine that would make further demands on the Federal Treasury. This objection was emphasized in the Senate, as was the union's argument that the militia had never proved an effective fighting force, and there was no reason to believe it would do so in the future.

Charges Militia Lobbying.

The union's letter, which was sent out to the papers tonight in an enevelope with the letterhead of the Anti-Preparedness League, charges the National Guard officers with lobbying. The letter says:

"The American Union Against Militarism wishes earnestly to protest against the proposed subsidy of from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 to the National Guard, embodied in Sections 109 and 110 of the pending bill for the reorganization of the national defense.

"Such a subsidy to State organizations and private individuals is unprecedented and full of danger for the future. It is not justified by any service to the country which the National Guard has rendered in the past, inasmuch as in no one of our wars has more than 30 per cent. of the guard ever volunteered. Nor is there anything in the bill to insure a greater percentage than that in the event of a future war.

"Such a subsidy would encourage the building up of a huge political-military machine, with a lobby in Washington like that with which you have been familiar this session. If the minority in the guard which has been driving through this subsidy makes up its mind that it wants $100,000,000 or $150,000,000 from the Federal Treasury, there is nothing to prevent it from wrapping the American flag around itself in order to deflect criticism and from demanding the money from Conress as a body through the members as individuals.

"If the National Guard represented the standpoint of ordinary citizens, something might be said in behalf of its support by a Federal grant, but the National Guard has its own traditions, and they long ago ceased to be civilian traditions. It has become habituated to the view that its own courts-martial may readily supersede all civil processes. Its career in the strikes of Colorado and West Virginia, and its attitude in the New York State Constitutional Convention when it succeeded in defeating, as inconvenient to itself, the affirmation of the old principle of common law that 'No military tribunal shall exercise jurisdiction over a civilian when the regularly constituted courts are open,' shows how far the National Guard has strayed from the principles of American law. To grant the Guard a huge subsidy at this time is to encourage, not to correct, its course.

"If the National Guard needs larger appropriations it should seek them from the individual States for the concrete service it renders those States—services which the States alone are able to appraise—and not from the Federal Government for hypothetical services of problematical value.

"Contrary to our own expectations when we organized last December to resist the worst features of the so-called 'preparedness' agitation, this proposed subsidy to the National Guard has become the biggest single evil in the whole situation. It is militarism incarnate—the soldier caste equipped with gun, unlimited funds, the court-martial, and the vote. We do not believe that the sponsors for the proposed subsidy clearly realize how it will look to the American people when they thoroughly understand it."

$350,000 FOR WAR VICTIMS.

Five Thousand Attend Chicago Meeting for Jewish Sufferers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 18.—The Chicago committee for the Relief of Jewish War Sufferers raised $350,000 tonight at a meeting in the Auditorium, attended by 5,000 persons. Religious lines were obliterated in the great gathering. A Catholic priest and a Protestant minister were among the speakers.

In the absence of Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, who is ill, Levy Mayer acted as Chairman. He deplored the need for asking for charity on behalf of a single people.

"The Jews have been marked," he said, "for special persecution and have been subjected to oppressive measures not borne by their compatriots of other creeds. Passion and prejudice have been fomented against them and in some lands where they have long resided their very neighbors practice against them the most refined cruelties.

"Governmental, public, and other local relief, lean and gaunt as it is, is not meted out to Jew and Christian alike. The Jew is not permitted to share therein. The Jew has been denied the right to share in the crumbs of charity which come into those lands. Therefore there is now imperative necessity for a fund to be devoted exclusively to the millions of Jews, men, women, and children, without homes or shelter, thousands of whom are daily perishing for the want of food."

Mr. Mayer then introduced the Rev. Mgr. Francis C. Kelley, who appeared for Archbishop Mundelein of the Roman Catholic Church, and read a message which had been approved by his Grace. When Mgr. Kelley arose there was great aplause.

"The right of the Jew to appeal to us," he said, "is based upon principles which we fully and freely recognize; principles as old as creation, enunciated by God Himself when, at the dawn of human existence, He proclaimed that we are 'our brothers' keepers.'

Rabbi J. L. Magnes of New York then made a stirring appeal.

"It is Kishineff a hundred times multiplied," he cried. "We appeal for bread for almost 3,000,000 Jews. But we appeal for more; we pray for your voices, lifted in protest against the forthcoming general massacre of Jews in Russia which is reported to us by secret agents whose veracity and judgment cannot be doubted. Already it is under way.

"Every false statement is being invented and published through the Government organs charging the Jews with espionage and treason. More than 400,000 Russian Jews are fighting with its army, yet their wounded are denied first aid because they are Jews; their relatives are not allowed to attend them in their dying hours because they may not pass beyond the pale of banishment; their swords and their lives are paying daily to the flag of the Czar, yet their mothers, fathers, wives and children are being butchered, penned, outraged, starved, flogged, held as hostages and reduced to conditions that would be unhumane toward beasts of prey, to wolves, to hyenas."

At this point the sound of sobbing was heard through the theatre, and heads were bowed. Chairman Levy Mayer then arose and asked for subscriptions. The answer was $350,000 in ten minutes.

NOON-HOUR WAR ON WAR.

Mrs. Winter Russell Pledges Her Boys Not to Fight.

At the daily noon war-against-war meeting of the Woman's Peace Party at 208 Fifth Avenue yesterday J. P. Santamarina received the most applause when he denounced the papers for preaching war. Mr. Santamarina said that the United States should have made a stand for the neutrality of Belgium.

"There were political reasons why we did not do it," he said. "We were afraid to do it, and don't you think that all Europe knows that we were afraid?"

Mrs. Winter Russell brought both applause and hisses in the course of her remarks. "I have three sons," said Mrs. Russell, who is young and pretty, "and I shall bring them up not only not to be soldiers but to refuse to fight." The applause and hisses came together at this.

Speaking of a navy, Ellis O. Jones said that we did not want "swashbuckling pirates parading the seas. Why should Britannia rule the waves?" he asked. "Let the waves rule themselves."

Home Defense for Wall Street.

A Home Defense League meeting with the co-operation of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, of which Cornelius Vanderbilt is Chairman, will be held at the Bankers' Club, Equitable Building, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of interesting young men in the recruiting of a reserve force of citizens to co-operate with the police force in a time of emergency, especially in the financial district. The meeting will be addressed by Police Commissioner Woods, Inspector Dillon, Alderman Henry H. Curran, Major Gen. Daniel Appleton, Frederick D. Underwood, and George T. Wilson.

5 BATTLE CRUISERS IN NEW NAVAL BILL

tee to authorize any battleships make the naval bill satisfactory to me. I regard it as a victory against useless expenditures, and I can support the measure as agreed upon."

Mr. Kitchin referred in glowing terms to a resolution offered in committee by Representative Hensley and approved, which writes into the naval budget a provision authorizing the President to suggest an International conference following the European war to discuss disarmament and permanent peace plans. If this provision is written into law, according to Mr. Kitchin, it will be the most far-reaching action of the present Congress.

An appropriation of $200,000 for the expenses of the conference is carried in the section, which was adopted unanimously. The provision authorizes the President to appoint nine citizens distinguished as lawyers and peace advocates to represent the United States.

Daniels Expects Changes.

Discussing the bill agreed upon, Secretary Daniels said:

"Of course, I think it would have been best if the House Committee had reported the five-year program, but I understand that at no time was it possible to secure the votes of a majority of the committee for this larger proposition.

"A very considerable number of the naval officers who testified before the committee showed that they favored building battle cruisers instead of battleships for a time owing to the pressing need of this type of ship, which represents the highest type of warship design. The opinion of the general board, however, in which I concur, was that it was probably wiser to divide our new construction of capital ships this year between dreadnoughts and battle cruisers.

"However, the need for these swift, huge, heavily-gunned ships is so pressing when we consider the other great navies of the world that I had far rather see the number I suggested increased than diminished. As I said at the time, the program I presented to Congress represented a minimum and not a maximum of each type.

"I am told that the actual amount of money appropriated for this year in the bill as reported by the committee is more than the amount recommended in my report. The big difference is that the bill covers this year only, instead of committing us to a definite increase for the four years to follow. So far as the other ships are conserned, outside of the capital ships provided, there is no essential difference between those now in the bill and as recommended in my report for the first year.

"I am sorry that the battleships were eliminated, and I would be gratified if they were restored before the bill came to the President. One thing about the committee's report is extremely gratifying, and that is that members of the committee who voted for only one battleship last year this year voted for five battle cruisers."

The Five-Year Program.

The five-year building program of Secretary Daniels called for an eventual outlay of $502,000,000. For the fiscal year 1917 the program included the construction of two dreadnoughts, two battle cruisers, three scout cruisers, fifteen destroyers, five fleet submarines, twenty-five coast submarines, two gunboats, and one hospital ship. Within five years the Secretary of the Navy estimated for ten dreadnoughts, six battle cruisers, ten scout cruisers, fifty destroyers, fifteen fleet submarines, eighty-five coast submarines, and four gunboats. The Secretary also asked for a fuel oil ship in 1918 and another in 1920, an ammunition ship in 1920 and another in 1921, and a repair ship in 1921.

If the cost of building, plus transportation, does not exceed the cost of construction on the Atlantic Coast, eight submarines and four destroyers authorized in the bill are to be built in Pacific Coast yards.

The naval budget increases the personnel of the navy by 16,500 men. Of this increase 3,000 would be in the Marine Corps.

A number of legislative provisions relating to personnel and administrative matters probably will be made in order by means of a special rule. This same rule will cover the proposed projectile plant, authorization for which had been previously agreed upon in committee.

Other important items in the naval budget, as heretofore approved, include: Aeronautics, $2,000,000; dry docks at Philadelphia and Norfolk, $1,500,000 each; ammunition for ships already authorized or built, $13,000,000; reserve ammunition for ships, $4,500,000; ammunition for ships authorized in the current bill, approximately $9,000,000.

Other Navies to be Outdone.

The only new ship design already completed by the Navy Department is for the scout cruisers. They will displace between 7,000 and 8,000 tons, have a maximum speed of 35 knots an hour, and mount ten 6-inch, long-range rifles. Nothing of similar speed or radius of action now is afloat or has been proposed by any foreign designers so far as known.

The battle cruiser designs are not complete, although it has been decided they will be 850 feet in length, have a speed of 35 knots, a range of action of 10,000 sea miles, a displacement of 32,000 tons, and either eight or ten of the heaviest guns afloat. If ten guns are mounted they will carry 14-inch 50-calibre main batteries, and if eight guns are decided upon they will carry 16-inch rifles, the heaviest ever put afloat.

Plans for the battleships, which Secretary Daniels still hopes Congress will provide, call for 36,000-ton ships, mounting ten 16-inch rifles each and with a speed of 21 or more knots an hour. They will have 4,000 tons more displacement than ships to be laid down this year and exceed by nearly 6,000 tons any foreign battleship built or being built, so far as navy designers know.

The Republican Fight.

The Republican members of the commission made a determined effort especially to obtain authorization for a big submarine fleet. Motions proposing seventy-eight, fifty, forty, thirty-five, and thirty submarines were made, but were rejected by the Democrats, the latter eventually agreeing to recommend twenty submersibles, ten less than Secretary Daniels asked for for the first year of his five-year program. There was no party division on the hospital ship. The party alignment was practically unchanged on all other important ballots, with the minority insisting that the Democratic proposals for a navy increase were insufficient.

Majority members of the committee effected a coup by agreeing beforehand to a compromise construction scheme. It is understood that this was brought about by a promise to include in the bill the Hensley peace resolution and the abandonment of the five-year building plan. Chairman Padgett is understood to have informed Secretary Daniels yesterday that there was no prospect of putting such a program through the committee because the Republicans were demanding an extensive construction increase for the fiscal year 1917 and the "small navy" Democrats were against committing the country to a definite plan of increase.

Republican members failed in their efforts to set a time limit for the completion of the vessels to be authorized. They suggested that all battle cruisers should be completed within thirty months and all submarines within one year. Proposals by Representatives Roberts and Britten that bonuses be given for quick construction of vessels were likewise rejected.

SURE OF BRANDEIS SUCCESS

Wilson's Advisers Say Bostonian Will Get Small Senate Majority.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—President Wilson was informed today that if the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis of Boston to the Supreme Court could be brought to a vote in the Senate he would be confirmed by a margin of from 3 to 5 votes. The Committee on Judiciary has agreed to vote on the nomination next Wednesday, and is expected to lay the matter before the Senate either with an adverse report or without recommendation.

The President was told that all was ready to hold the nomination before the Senate till a vote was reached. How long the fight behind closed doors would last was not known. It is in fact possible that the struggle will be fought out in the open.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa is pressing his resolution for the abolition of secret sessions, and, while that resolution is not likely to prevail, there are special reasons for debating Mr. Brandeis's nomination in public.

Newlands Attacks Harris.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Senator Newlands attacked Federal Trade Commissioner Harris in the Senate today for alleged activity in Georgia politics, and announced he would ask the commission to investigate. Georgia Senators and other Democrats defended the Commissioner.

Stationery Prices Are Going Up

Everything that enters into the composition of office supplies has reached a hitherto unheard-of price.

"The American Stationer" magazine of April 15th, tells us that certain articles, like aniline colors, have gone up 5000 per cent, and an ordinary typewriter ribbon costs you 15 per cent more than it did a year ago.

The wholesale stationers' troubles would fill a book to tell you about. We have no space to do it here. What we do say, however, is that you will be well on the safe side if you take advantage of these offerings, which are for two days only.

BRYAN, UNDER FIRE, DEFENDS HIS COURSE

Assailed by Putnam at Mohonk Meeting, He Turns to Pacifists with Plea.

SAYS HE DIDN'T TRICK DUMBA

Eminent Speakers Agree War Is Bad, but Clash Over Ways of Preventing It.

MOHONK LAKE, May 18.—The Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration today called to order George Haven Putnam of New York, who is an ardent advocate of preparedness, for an attack upon William J. Bryan. Mr. Bryan appeared later and replied to Mr. Putnam.

Mr. Putnam in an address declared that among the things which lessened respect for the United States throughout the world was "the presence in the Cabinet of a man like W. J. Bryan, who shamefully misrepresented our country in his interviews with Dumba."

Mr. Bryan reached the conference hall a few minutes after Mr. Putnam finished.

"I am not surprised that people should be misled," he said. "Those who have nothing but the Eastern metropolitan press to rely upon are fortunate if they get any truth. Ambassador Dumba called at the State Department," he explained, "at a time when the President was in New York."

Immediately after the interview, Mr. Bryan said, he wrote out a report of what had taken place, and sent it to the President and received his approval of what he had said to the Austrian Ambassador.

"When I heard that my interview was criticised," he continued, "I called in Dr. Dumba and read over the report, and it was approved by him. The thing misinterpreted was this: I said to Dumba that the fact that lives were lost in sinking ships made the controversy different from the controversy with England, which concerned only loss of trade. That was the distinction I made, and it is the one that is made very properly by every one that has taken part in the controversy since."

Mr. Bryan dissented emphatically from the views expressed here by former President Taft favoring the League to Enforce Peace.

"If we join with Europe in enforcing peace," he said, "then we can hardly refuse to let them join in enforcing peace over here. And if I know the American people, there is no disposition here to abandon the Monroe Doctrine."

Sees Preparedness as a Peril.

His fundamental objection to the league was expressed as follows:

"When we turn from moral suasion to force, we step down, and not up. I don't care to have this nation a policeman."

Mr. Bryan asserted that "preparedness such as is generally suggested will not prevent war, but will provoke war. If we had been as well prepared as some now ask us to be, we would be in the war now, shouting for blood."

Other speakers tonight were Eugene Wambaugh, Professor of Law at Harvard University; Edward B. Krehbiel, Professor of History at Leland Stanford, Jr., University; Richard Bartholdt, formerly Congressman from Missouri, and Edward A. Steiner, a clergyman from Grinnell, Iowa.

The attack on Mr. Bryan was delivered by Mr. Putnam toward the close of an address which advocated the preservation of peace, if necessary, by military force. Mr. Putnam had started to criticise Mr. Bryan when several members of the conference sprang up and demanded that the speaker be called to order. Although George W. Kirchwey, Warden of Sing Sing and President of the American Peace Society, sided with Mr. Putnam and loudly appealed for "freedom of speech at Mohonk as well as elsewhere," Mr. Putnam saved the situation by acknowledging that he had transgressed the rules of the conference and promising to finish his speech without further reference to Mr. Bryan.

Nearly all the day's session was devoted to a debate on the use of military compulsion by a group of nations to prevent war, which is the most radical feature of the plan advocated by the League to Enforce Peace. The proposition was favored by Herbert S. Houston, as well as Mr. Putnam, and opposed by Dr. James L. Tryon of Boston, director of the New England Department of the American Peace Society, and Alpheus H. Snow, a Washington lawyer.

Peace Must Rest on Force.

"Peace between nations," said Mr. Houston, "just as does peace within nations, must rest on force. Peace must be put on a war footing, and its advocates must quit the forum for the field, if need be to fight not to urge war but to establish peace."

"The International tribunal at The Hague," Dr. Putnam said, "had the weakness of presenting no provision for the enforcement of the decisions of the tribunal. In every civilized state of the world decisions are now arrived at in a court. These decisions would have little value, however, in maintaining peace in the communities unless, back of the authority of the court, stood an organized force. We hold that at the outbreak of the war the United States ought to have placed itself at the head of a league of neutral nations, with the avowed purpose of doing what might be practicable to maintain the principles and precedents of neutrals, and to prevent these being undermined through the pressure of the requirements, real or assumed, of the combatants."

Dr. Tryon's view was that the United States might wisely co-operate, if need be, with other nations to use force for the preservation of public safety in a specific emergency like the Boxer rebellion as it arises, but be in a position to withdraw when it considered the purpose sufficiently fulfilled, without taking the obligations of an alliance with all its possible entanglements.

Mr. Snow's conclusion was that the plan of the League to Enforce Peace was impracticable and dangerous for many reasons, chiefly because it proposes to use joint instead of united force and provides no executive to determine and direct the force. Both Mr. Snow and Dr. Tryon advocated working toward a more stable international order through the development of The Hague conference idea.

Nationalism is an anachronism, declared Professor Krehbiel in his address. "Whatever nationalism is, it has led to an awful catastrophe in Europe; for when all the befogging details and prejudices regarding the causes of the great war are summed up they leave the blame on the national spirit and the supposition that nations represent different ideals that are bound to get into conflict.

"The foundations of nationalism," he continued, "are crumbling. The democratization of Governments in the nineteenth century is the first transformation. The equality of man is not a national principle; it is planetary, and militates against the artificial groupings of equal men for mutual exploitation."

Francis Case, a student at Dakota Wesleyan University, won the eleventh annual national oratorical contest of the Peace Association today. Five college undergraduates took part. The final contest resulted:

First prize, $100, Francis Case, representing Western group; second, $80, Lester H. Jayne, Cornell University, North Atlantic group; third, $70, Harry D. Hubbard, Michigan State Normal College, Central group; fourth, $60, Roy L. Atterbury, Vanderbilt University, Southwestern group; fifth, J. J. Brayer, University of Kentucky, South Atlantic group.

FORM NEW LEAGUE TO BOOM COLONEL

Biltmore Hotel Organization Will Urge Ticket of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—William Loeb, Jr., who was Secretary to President Roosevelt, was in Washington today on what was described as a private visit. In the course of the day, however, he saw several Senators, most of whom are friendly to Colonel Roosevelt, and the report got about that Mr. Loeb was starting a new movement for the Colonel's nomination, with particular attention to heading off the growing sentiment for Justice Hughes.

Mr. Loeb's visit to Washington was regarded as particularly significant because he came fresh from a conference of Roosevelt supporters at the Biltmore Hotel in New York yesterday. At that conference the Roosevelt Republican League was formed, the third national organization working for the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt. George von Lengerke Meyer of Boston, who was Postmaster General in the Roosevelt Cabinet, and Secretary of the Navy under President Taft, is President of the new league, and Mr. Loeb is Vice Chairman.

The league seems to have for its chief purpose the overcoming of the impression that the Roosevelt movement is dead, or that the Colonel is being used simply to sidetrack Justice Hughes. It was said today that the new league would make a determined effort to obtain Colonel Roosevelt's nomination at the head of the old Roosevelt ticket, with ex-Vice President Fairbanks as the Vice Presidential nominee. In this way it would try to satisfy both conservative and progressive elements in the party and, if possible, put Justice Hughes in such a position that he would have to fight for the nomination. This he is not expected to do.

Senators who discussed this plan today did not seem to be much impressed by it. Some of them had watched the Hughes movement growing with personal disapproval in its early stages, as they believed that Mr. Hughes would be more difficult to deal with if he entered the White House than even an avowed radical like Colonel Roosevelt. They feel that Colonel Roosevelt has already shown himself approachable to practical men.

They seem, however, to think that the Hughes boom has gone too far to be stopped without danger to the party, if it can be stopped at all. The progressive Senators naturally look with favor on Mr. Hughes, and even the old-line Republicans seem to think that he now offers the best hope of defeating President Wilson. It is believed that in the near future many regular Republican Senators will formally announce their support of Mr. Hughes.

BOOM BY PHILADELPHIANS.

Eleven Men Issue Statement in Praise of Colonel Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—In a public statement eleven men prominent in Philadelphia today urged the voters of Pennsylvania to demand the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt by the Republican Convention. Thus was signalized the opening of a local branch of the Roosevelt Nonpartisan League at 1333 Walnut Street.

"The issue," says the statement, "demands a man of towering strength and tried experience, and, in the judgment of the league, this man is Theodore Roosevelt." Those who signed the letter were:

Edward B. Smith, a banker; William R. Nicholson, President of the Land Title and Trust Company; Dr. Thomas G. Ashton, a physician; Francis A. Lewis, a lawyer; B. Franklin Pepper, a lawyer; Jasper Yeates Brinton, a lawyer; Robert L. Montgomery, a banker; W. Barklie Henry, a banker; C. Willing Hare of the United Gas Improvement Company; George McFadden, a broker, and Thomas Newhall, a banker.

ROOSEVELT STRONG IN WEST

Oregon Progressives Trying to Boom Cummins to Sidetrack Hughes.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 18.—Roosevelt sentiment is growing rapidly in the West. Tonight, on the eve of the primary election, it is strong in Oregon. In fact, the Progressives were working overtime tonight, their last chance, to line up every possible vote for Senator Cummins here in tomorrow's primary in an effort to head off the Hughes boom and aid Roosevelt.

Progressives want Colonel Roosevelt nominated by their own party as well as by the Republicans, and do not favor a compromise. The Oregon organization wishes to discredit Justice Hughes by having Cummins receive the primary popular vote, figuring that Roosevelt can easily defeat Cummins in the convention, but that Hughes is a hard man to beat.

Carrying out this game of politics, Hughes is to be sacrificed. Even Senator Cummins, who has lost his voice speaking in Oregon, is declared to be making votes for Roosevelt.

COLONEL ON WAY TO DETROIT

Will Offer No Compromise to Ford Cohorts in Speech Today.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, May 18.—Colonel Roosevelt is tonight on a train bound for Detroit to continue his agitation for preparedness in the home city of Henry Ford, the pacifist. In the address which he is to deliver tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Detroit Opera House will be an appeal to the people for a reawakening of a spirit of patriotism. It offers no compromise to Mr. Ford or any of his followers.

Word from Detroit received on the train was to the effect that the city and surrounding country were showing interest in the arrival of the Colonel and that he is sure to receive an enthusiastic demonstration. The committee which organized the reception is composed of many of the most prominent citizens and they have taken pains to emphasize the fact that they are not in accord with the views of the peace-at-any-price advocates.

Colonel Roosevelt left New York at 5 o'clock this afternoon from the Grand Central Station. There was a big crowd in the station when he arrived a few minutes before train time, and men and women crowded about the Colonel, many seeking the opportunity to shake his hand.

He is in fine trim for the strenuous day ahead of him tomorrow. The Colonel his close advisers realize that much may depend upon the manner in which the people of this section of the Middle West greet him and his doctrines.

With the Colonel's appearance in Detroit tomorrow the last stage of the fight to obtain the Republican Presidential nomination will be begun.

Edison Will Not Stump for Roosevelt

ORANGE, N. J., May 18.—Thomas A. Edison will not stump for Theodore Roosevelt or any one else. That was made very clear by Mr. Edison himself, this morning. It was reported that the inventor and admirer of the Colonel would take to the stump one week before the conventions and tell the people of America what he thinks of the man who he says represents the highest type of Americanism.

MEN'S SUMMER SUITS
Of Exceptional Style and Character
At $25

We take pride in inviting men, who are particular about their clothing, to come and try on some of these $25 Suits.

Young men will like the narrow high-notch lapels, with the soft roll, to the second button; and the silk linings.

More conservative men will like the sturdy, durable quality of the hard-finished worsteds, in neat patterns, lined with cool alpaca.

Whatever the taste—unfinished worsteds, tweeds, flannels, fancy mixtures, stripes, checks, plaids — assortments are complete, and an extra measure of excellence for the price.

We are particularly anxious for you to see the Suits at $25.

But, choose where you will, from $18.50 to $40, and you are certain of the best style, the best quality and the best fit that the money will buy.

The Label in a Suit of Clothes is often the standard by which its quality is measured. Many a man often spends a great deal more for an ordinary suit merely because of a certain label it bears.

The Macy label in a man's suit means "Excellence" in every possible sense of the word. There's the excellence of the materials of which the suit is made—they are the pride of American mills. Then the linings—of a quality that leaves nothing to be desired. As to the styles and smartness of lines, Macy Suits are up to the minute, without going to extremes. You will find them in the best of company, worn by men who are known to dress well.

Suits for Men & Young Men at $19.75

The price is an item of prime importance in a Macy suit. Bought for spot cash and sold in the same manner, by a store that is known for its tremendous purchasing power, a selling price is figured out that is stripped of every superfluous overhead expense, and the result is that you can get here a suit of excellent quality and style for less money than elsewhere. We stand ready to prove this to your satisfaction.

There are 1-, 2- and 3-button English Sacks, graceful and close fitting, stylish "pinch-back" Norfolks, with patch pockets and narrow lapels, and more conservative styles to suit men of affairs. Full, half or quarter lined, some with silk. Compare Macy Suits in materials, designs, lining and workmanship with suits sold elsewhere at prices much higher.

ANTI-GARBAGE PARTY HAS LAND AFTER RAID

Thirteen Spend Night in Richmond Jail Following Visit of the Police.

SAY THEY WERE SHANGHAIED

Twin Watchmen Following "Kidnapping" Again in Possession of Marshy Tract on Staten Island.

Raid followed raid early yesterday morning in the controversy over the possession of the 175-acre tract of marsh land on which it is proposed to erect a garbage plant in the Arthur Kills, along the North Shore of Staten Island, near Mariner's Harbor. As the net result of the activities of the various parties, thirteen "raiders" spent last night in the Richmond County Jail at Port Richmond, and the land returned to the physical possession of the anti-garbage party, whose leader, Edward P. Doyle of Port Richmond, bought it from Letitia Rourke of Massachusetts.

According to the stories told yesterday by those who took part in the various activities, there were midnight trips across the bay in launches, landing parties armed with shotguns "kidnapping" and "shanghaiing," and finally arrests, followed by commitments to jail.

Mr. Doyle gave his son, Roger Doyle, a quitclaim deed to the property and a barbed-wire fence was erected about it. A shack was built and James and William Farmer, seventy-one-year-old twins, were installed as watchmen. J. Sterling Drake, a real estate operator of 29 Broadway, is said to have given Gaffney, Gahagan & Van Etten of 52 Vanderbilt Avenue an option on the property, on which they were to build the garbage plant.

As published in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday morning, the Farmers said they had been kidnapped in the dead of night by a number of men, who took them in a launch to Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn, and there turned them loose, threatening them with death or serious injury if they returned to the property. The Farmers notified the Ninth Branch Detective Bureau of their "kidnapping" shortly after midnight yesterday morning, and this brought about the last raid of the day.

Lieutenant Glavin of the Ninth Branch received the message of the aged watchmen, and Sergeant John P. Smith, Detectives Askerman and McKettrick, and Policeman Carter were sent to investigate in the launch of Harbor A. They arrived at the marsh land to find the tide out, and their launch was promptly stuck in the mud some distance from the shack in which fifteen members of the "raiders" were shivering around the stove.

This was at 4 A. M., and one hour later the police waded through the mud and met the fifteen men coming. The police resented their friendly overtures and informed them that they were under arrest, and bundled them into the launch and took them to the West Brighton Police Station, where they were detained until about 9:30 o'clock, when they faced Magistrate Samuel Evins. Before leaving the police found three shotguns and two boxes of shells.

It was found that they had been arrested on the complaint of Roger Doyle, who charged them with unlawful entry. Magistrate Evins held the men in $500 bail for examination next Tuesday. George Stewart, one of the prisoners, and said to be the man who hired the others, asserted that they were all employed by J. Sterling Drake, and were acting for him in taking possession of the property.

The men gave their names to the police as George Stewart of Vanderbilt Avenue, Brooklyn; John Smith of Bayonne, James Meady of Henry Street, Brooklyn; Charles Arros, William E. Edwards, Charles Williams, Edward Kelly and William Feil of Brooklyn, John Manning of Washington Avenue, Jersey City; William Kelly of Franklin Street, Brooklyn; John Marsh of the Bronx, John Lucas, John Reilt, Arthur Goyett, and Charles Lester of New York City.

When their bail was fixed, Lester telephoned to James A. Turley, a lawyer, of the Woolworth Building, who sent his brother, George Turley, to bail him out. Mr. Turley arrived at the Magistrate's Court shortly before the men were sent to Port Richmond and went into executive session with the Magistrate, with the result that he was able to bail out both Goyett and Lester for $100 apiece, giving cash bail.

"We were told that we could make $6 apiece for a few hours' work," Lester said, "and that all we'd have to do was to take a sail in a launch and pull up a barbed wire fence.

"Goyett and I were in Fred Smith's bakery and restaurant at 80 Sixth Avenue early yesterday afternoon when he got an order for 200 sandwiches and 40 quarts of coffee. We helped carry the food down to Pier 6, East River, where we saw Drake, Thomas Graham, a real estate man of 52 Broadway, and William A. Martin. The others were there also. Goyett and I heard of a trip across the bay, and some one suggested that we come along. I saw that Drake had a roll of money that would most choke an elephant. Well, there were about twenty of us, and the launch was very crowded. We started, and before long something went wrong with the engine, and then we put into Morse's Basin, on the Brooklyn waterfront, and all got out. They got a big launch then, and we all made a fresh start. We reached the property about 6 o'clock. By this time we were told that we were to take possession of the property, and when the police came at about 5 the next morning we were to turn it over to them. They told us that the police were our friends, but they did not seem to be when they arrested us.

"After the old watchmen were put aboard our launch we all went ashore to the house, and Martin, with several others, went away in the launch. At 5 o'clock in the morning the police landed, and with them was Roger Doyle, who asked us what we were doing there and told us that he was the owner of the property. The cops told us that we'd have to come along, and we nailed up the house and went with them. We never thought that we were going to act like pirates, and the men who hired us ought to be ashamed of themselves. What's more, we did not get our $6 apiece they promised us."

Mr. Gaffney said that his firm had nothing to do with the raids, and that they were only the purchasers of the property.

It is not known what the next move will be, but late last night the two old watchmen were again in possession of the property, and this time, they said, they did not intend to be surprised by any raiding party.

At a meeting in the Curtis High School at St. George yesterday afternoon, 175 of the leading women of Staten Island formed the "Anti-Garbage League for Women." Henry P. Morrison, Commissioner of Public Works, who is acting Borough President in the absence of President Van Name, addressed the women and said that Russian autocracy at its worst could not equal the action of the city in forcing the garbage plant on Staten Island.

WOMEN IN GARBAGE FIGHT.

200 on Staten Island Organize to Oppose Disposal Plant.

Backing the men in the fight against the garbage "dump" on Staten Island, about 200 of the best known women of Richmond Borough yesterday afternoon met in the Staten Island Academy Lyceum and organized the Anti-Garbage League, electing Mrs. Charles Simonson as Chairman.

The women expect to have meetings in various parts of the borough for the purpose of interesting women in the movement against the "dump" and also for the purpose of obtaining 50,000 names to a petition which is to be sent to the Mayor and the Board of Estimate, against bringing the garbage from the five boroughs to Richmond. The meeting was addressed by Mrs. E. D. Wisely, Mrs. H. A. Hillyer, and Mrs. H. H. Montgomery.

ENGRAVERS' PRICES LIKELY TO ADVANCE

Promised Dissolution of Their Board of Trade Brings No Relief to Customers.

NO PROFITS, THEY SAY

War Costs of Materials Held Responsible for Conditions Obtaining in the Business.

Those who expected any change in prices on account of the announcement of the Photo-Engravers Board of Trade to the District Attorney that what was deemed by the District Attorney's office to be an illegal combination would be dissolved have been thus far disappointed. So far as could be learned yesterday there has been no change in prices, and if those who have cherished these expectations continue to hold them they are likely to have another disappointment—any change will probably mean higher prices.

District Attorney Swann said yesterday, when asked if any further action would be taken if prices continued to be uniform, he had nothing to say about it at present.

C. H. Daggett of The American Press Association said:

"We have not made any change yet, because we have not had time. I am at work on a new scale now. We shall go carefully into every cost, and when we get the scale arranged we shall put it into effect. Others may copy this scale. If they do, we can't help it. Some may cut under it. If they do, I don't see how they can stand it long.

"As a matter of fact, we haven't been making any money. At the end of the year the profits did not show up, when everything was counted. An advance in price was necessary. I think the result of this will be higher prices instead of lower, because charges now will be based accurately on cost of material and labor.

"On account of this situation and the changes going on continuously, the man who does business in photo-engraving by guesswork will find himself in increasing difficulties. Some of the material used has advanced 1,200 per cent. since the war began. The increase in the price of zinc amounts to 240 per cent.; copper, 46 per cent.; mercury bichloride, 608 per cent.; hydroquinone, 770 per cent.

"I should say the average advance in material would be around 250 per cent. Then there is the cost of labor. We expect to have to face in a short time the question of higher wages."

Mr. Daggett said he understood that the Photo-Engravers Board of Trade would be disbanded. There was no one at the offices of the board in the Metropolitan Building yesterday afternoon.

"We are going to make our prices without consideration of what anybody else charges," continued Mr. Daggett. "We shall do business on an individual basis. I do not think there was ever any real agreement as to prices, but always price-cutting prevailed."

At the office of the Powers Photo-Engraving Company the same opinion was held; that any change in prices would probably be higher instead of lower.

"We are still abiding by the old schedule," it was said. "We are at work on a new one, which will be scientifically based on cost, to which we will add a fair profit before putting it into effect. As I understand it, the agreement with the District Attorney was that in the future there would be no agreed scale of prices among us, and we intend to abide by that agreement.

"I think the Board of Trade will probably be kept together to serve us in other ways."

SCORES PATRIOTIC TOAST.

Princeton Trustee Disapproves of "My Country, Right or Wrong."

Special to The New York Times.

DURHAM, N. C., May 18.—Characterizing the phrase, "my country, right or wrong," as a damnable toast of some patriotic Americans, the Rev. Minot C. Morgan, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Summit, N. J., in an address here today, termed right living the only supreme test of preparedness. The New Jersey minister, who is a Trustee of Princeton University, delivered the commencement address of the National Training School, a negro college.

"What you and I need as individuals and what our nation needs most of all in order to be prepared to meet the crisis of life is not guns but character," declared Dr. Morgan.

A woman in New York State whose name was not divulged was anonymously referred to as the biggest contributor of the budget of $323,000 of the negro college. Chairman Elbert H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation and W. J. Harahan, President of the Seaboard Air Line railway, donated money enough to the institution to defray expenses of painting the campus buildings.

"TAP DAY" AT YALE.

Three Senior Societies Choose Their Members with Campus Ceremonies.

NEW HAVEN, May 18.—Yale's historic "tap day" ceremonies, at which forty-five men are annually elected to three senior societies, furnished few surprises today. The exercises, as usual, were held on the college campus.

Skull and Bones, the oldest of the societies, elected a number of prominent athletes, among them being Harry W. Le Gore, the football and baseball star; John W. Overton, the runner, and E. N. Harriman, stroke of the crew. The latter is a son of the late E. H. Harriman. Another election to "Bones" was H. S. Fenimore Cooper, a grandson of the author James Fenimore Cooper. Cooper is a member of the relay team which recently equaled the world's record.

Spencer Pumpelly, baseball pitcher, who was considered sure of election to one of the societies, refused to go on the campus with his classmates. An election to Skull and Bones was refused by George M. Murray of Plainfield, N. J., who later accepted an election to Wolf's Head. An election to Scroll and Key was refused by Albert W. Olsen of Glenbrook, Conn., Manager of the football team, who later went to "Bones."

The following were tapped in the order named:

ROFRANO HID IN CITY FOR EIGHT MONTHS

Lived in Washington Square and Did Business Weekly in Jersey City.

RODE ON CARS AND FERRY

Montimagno, Brought from Death House, Corroborates Fennimore on Gaimari Murder Plot.

An old-fashioned house in Washington Square, only a few yards away from where he surrendered to District Attorney Swann, was reported yesterday to have been the place where ex-Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner Michael A. Rofrano, under indictment for murder, concealed himself for the eight months he was a fugitive. He spent one week at a little inn in the Catskills, from which he returned to the same house in Washington Square, where his security was never disturbed, and he went to Jersey City to meet friends once a week.

Rofrano lived in Washington Square with a friend with whom he shared an equity in the house, it is said. Many Italians lived in that particular corner of the square—and if some of them were aware of his presence, as they must have been, they guarded his secret faithfully. From the window of the room which he occupied in one of the upper stories of the house Rofrano could look down into the street and see pass many policemen and detectives who were supposed to be exerting every effort to capture him.

At least once a week he went to Jersey City, where in conference with friends he would direct the conduct of his business affairs. It is said these meetings took place every Saturday. He would go to Jersey City by way of the Fort Lee Ferry, riding up and down on each side of the river in the cars in broad daylight.

Two friends always met him in Jersey City, one going by way of a downtown ferry and the other coming around by Hoboken. The three would have luncheon together, discuss and adjust Rofrano's affairs, and then disperse, returning to New York City by the same route that they had come to the conference.

In December, when a mortgage he held on a piece of property in New York became due, Rofrano went to the Catskills for a short stay, and the friend with whom he lived on Washington Square conducted the transactions involving the mortgage. This took four days. He then telegraphed Rofrano that the coast was clear, and Rofrano returned to the seclusion of Washington Square.

It could not be learned definitely yesterday whether any members of his family, who continued to live at 9 Oliver Street, ever visited him on Washington Square. If this was so, no pains were taken to trail them, even though a reward of $5,000 was offered for Rofrano's capture, and if the police had any suspicion that he was concealing himself on Washington Square, it became certain yesterday that nothing was done even to scare Rofrano

Aside from checking up on the evidence against Rofrano, the District Attorney's office began a new line of investigation yesterday into the murder of Mike Gaimari. Gaetano Montimagno, the young Italian who was brought down from the death house on a special writ, testified before the Grand Jury for more than an hour and a half, after which he was returned to Sing Sing.

What he said not only corroborated the confession of Frank Fennimore as to the complicity of Rofrano in the Gaimari murder, but also implicated two other men, who may be indicted early next week for murder in the first degree. Neither of them heretofore has been mentioned as a prominent figure in the actual plot to slay Tom Foley's lieutenant because of his political opposition to Rofrano.

Montimagno repeated to the Grand Jury the same story which he had told, before going into the Grand Jury room, to ex-Assistant District Attorney Deacon Murphy, and to Father William E. Cashin, Chaplain of Sing Sing Prison. According to his story, he was to receive $250 for the murder of Gaimari, and received every assurance that abundant funds would be raised for his defense and plenty of evidence would be manufactured to save him from the electric chair. Relying on all these promises, he never realized until the day that he was actually sentenced to the chair that he was in any danger of paying with his life for the murder that he had committed, he said.

The District Attorney's office yesterday learned the name of a new witness, not an accomplice in the murder, who will be called upon to corroborate the confessions of Fennimore and Montimagno when the Grand Jury meets again next Monday.

MRS. WAITE VISITS SWANN.

Goes to Office Preparatory to Testifying Against Husband.

Mrs. Clara E. Waite, wife of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, visited the District Attorney's office yesterday and amplified the information which she has given to representatives of the office on previous occasions.

In preparation for the trial of Dr. Waite, which begins next Monday, it was considered advisable by Assistant District Attorney Dooling that Mrs. Waite should become accustomed to the atmosphere of the Criminal Courts Building.

This was one of the objects of her visit. She was accompanied by her brother, Percy Peck of Grand Rapids. In her conference with Assistant District Attorney Dooling she manifested no reluctance to testify against her husband when he is tried for poisoning her father, John E. Peck.

FIRE IN NORFOLK NAVY YARD.

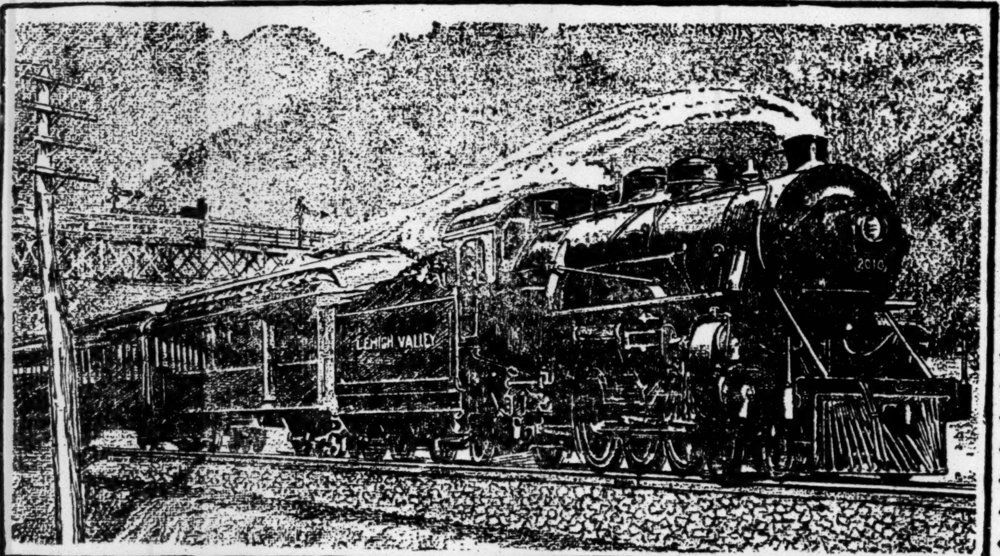
Shipfitters' Shop Destroyed by Flames of Unknown Origin.

NORFOLK, Va., May 18.—Fire of unknown origin tonight destroyed the Norfolk Navy Yard's ship fitters' shop with its machinery and equipment, and slightly damaged the adjoining boilermakers' and plumbers' shops.

The entire plant was threatened, the flames soon getting beyond the control of the yard's fire-fighting force and raging until the Portsmouth department joined in the fight.

Allies to Enter Dye Industry.

PARIS, May 18.—It is stated that one of the results of the recent visit to Rome of M. Clementel, French Minister of Commerce, was an agreement to form a Franco-British-Italian company for the extensive manufacture of aniline dyes, says a dispatch to the Journal des Debats from Turin.



The Black Diamond

Twenty Years Old

ON May 18, 1896, THE BLACK DIAMOND steamed from its terminal on the initial trip of a journey which has already passed the seven million mile mark.

For two decades it has been the connecting link of comfort, convenience and pleasure between New York, Newark, Philadelphia and Buffalo, Rochester, Ithaca and the other thriving cities along its pathway. For twenty years it has exemplified the highest ideal of satisfactory service.

Satisfactory service—twenty years of it! For a fifth of a century the Black Diamond has glided along the banks of beautiful rivers, gone spinning up the smooth grades of picturesque mountains, speeding among beautiful hills and by placid lakes. It has acquainted over a million passengers with a wonderful country—"The Switzerland of America."

The splendid train has entered on another cycle of its famous daylight run—over the matchless Lehigh roadbed, safely guarded by automatic block signals—using the latest word in steel equipment.

Make your trip to Buffalo or the West something to be enjoyed—not to be endured.

Before it is Too Late?

Every business man, every buyer, every housewife, knows how rapidly prices are rising. In all that goes to the making of books, this rise has been especially marked.

Many kinds of paper have doubled. Some kinds of ink have gone up even more. Some kinds of leather—as, for example, the morocco used for one of the most popular bindings of the Encyclopaedia Britannica—are now almost unobtainable. Even the paper boards used in binding having increased 50%.

The New Britannica Way

One result of this increase is that we can obtain no more sets of the "Handy Volume" Issue of the Britannica at anything like present costs. After the number contracted for before the war began is exhausted we shall be able to continue the sale only if we increase the prices from $11 for the cheapest binding to $19 for the most expensive. And there is no certainty that we can obtain any large number even at these higher prices.

Sets now on hand are going rapidly. In some of the bindings only a small number now remain.

If you do not order your set of the Britannica now, it will cost you a great deal more later; and you may have to wait a good while for it.

The New Way

With the remarkable offer which we make you cannot go wrong in sending your order now. If the books are not exactly what you want, if for any reason whatsoever you want to send them back, we will refund your money and the shipping charges both ways.

You take no risk —we take it all!

$1 paid now brings you the entire 29 volumes (complete)

Some people were born to hesitate. They just can't make up their minds. Get out of this class! Here is an opportunity to have the Encyclopaedia Britannica in your own home, take the volumes out of their wrappers, use them, read them for three whole weeks and learn how valuable and interesting they may be to you and to all your family.

Our Offer to You:

We have built up the largest retail merchandising business in the world, now exceeding $110,000,000 a year, solely upon a basis of absolute confidence. Every one of our five million customers knows that every article purchased will be exactly as represented.

When we offer the new Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica at one-third the price of the larger-paged "Cambridge University" issue of the same work, they know that it is everything we say of it—a wonderful bargain for a wonderful work.

Our remarkable offer of this new "Handy Volume" Issue now brings the Britannica within the reach of thousands of persons who never dreamed of owning it before; and likewise of thousands of persons who do not know its everyday value in the everyday home.

We want them to know it. We want you to know it. So we make an offer that has never before been made on this incomparable work of reference.

You send us a single dollar. We ship you the books. Then we allow you three weeks in which to examine them, use them, find out their value to you. If then, for any reason whatsoever, you wish to return the books, you may do so and your money is refunded with freight charges both ways.

In a word, it costs you nothing to have the books to examine, in your own home.

If you could buy a house or a horse or an automobile on such terms as these, you would not hesitate long, if the price was right. The price is right. You obtain the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the new Eleventh Edition, at one-third the price charged for the larger-sized "Cambridge University" issue.

Nearly 75,000 people have already paid over $14,000,000 for the new Britannica. Kings of finance, captains of industry, the intellectual leaders of the world already own it. Yet it is, in the highest degree, a practical work for busy men and women.

It ought to be in your home. It ought to be available to your children. You will never again have such an opportunity as this to obtain it.

A 130-Page Book FREE

If you do not know all about the Encyclopaedia Britannica, its wonderful history, the enormous expenditure which its various editions have required, the tremendous sums which have been paid for it throughout the century and a half of its existence (a total of more than one hundred million dollars)—

We will send you a splendidly illustrated book of 130 pages, with nearly 200 illustrations and countless interesting bits of information that will reveal to you what a richly stored and fascinating series of volumes this is. Simply put your name on a post card and it will be sent to you post paid.

W. B. HOLTON REPLIES TO BIGGS'S CRITICISM

STILL PLEADS FOR DELAY

Says Co-ordination of Research Work Should Be Carried Further Before Action Is Taken.

W. B. Holton, Jr., Assistant Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, yesterday replied to the attack made upon him by State Health Commissioner Hermann M. Biggs because Mr. Holton requested Governor Whitman to veto an appropriation of $65,000 for additions at Albany to the laboratory service of the State Department of Health. The health officials resented Mr. Holton's advice that anthrax be studied at the State cancer research laboratory at Buffalo.

"What first called our attention to the new laboratory was that it was not included in the department requests submitted to Governor Whitman by Dr. Biggs and transmitted by the Governor to the Legislature with his annual message," said Mr. Holton to a NEW YORK TIMES reporter yesterday. "The appearance of this item in the appropriation bill is another example of invisible Government by legislative committees.

"Whether or not there is a fundamental difference between anthrax and cancer, which seems to be the theme of Dr. Biggs's reply, begs the question. The point was made that the State already has a number of research laboratories and one institute, all occupied in various kinds of research work. The fact that the Institute for the Study of Malignant Diseases in Buffalo has confined its efforts thus far to a study of cancer cannot be used to deny the fact that the legislation which originally established this institution recognized that its activities could and should be enlarged to include research into the causes and treatment of other diseases. May I quote from Article XVIII., Section 346, of the Public Health Law, which established the Institute for the Study of Malignant Diseases, under the title, 'Objects and Purposes of the Institute':

> The direction of research work in whole or in part toward malignant diseases other than cancer shall not be a violation of the conditions of the grants made, under the provisions of which this article is a part.

"This section wherever in other parts it refers to cancer always speaks of the work as 'cancer and allied diseases,' or 'malignant and allied diseases.'

"My letter questioned the advisability of establishing a laboratory without first full consideration having been given to work in the same general field now carried on by other State organizations. I quote from my letter:

> The fact that there are so many questions involved in the discussion of laboratory research and special health studies which never have been fully discussed in considering the laboratory problem is in itself one of the strongest arguments for a delay in this question. * * * I might add that the undercurrent of my feeling in all of this discussion of laboratories is that the problem never has been given adequate consideration as a Statewide, interdepartmental problem.

"We in this State are too prone to think of New York City, Buffalo, Rochester, and other cities as separate entities which inherently must be isolated from the State as an administrative agency of government. My reference to the need for closer co-ordination in this kind of work was based on innumerable examples of duplication in inspectional and laboratory service of cities with State departments. These are matters of record, not of my opinion."

WILSON TO OPEN WAR SHOW.

Signal Will Start Military Tournament at Sheepshead Bay.

The military tournament at Sheepshead Bay, which is to continue all of next week, will begin tomorrow at 2:30 P. M. President Wilson, from the White House in Washington, will push the button that will open the preparedness show to the public. At noon 1,500 National Guardsmen will go on duty there for the period of the tournament.

The entire Guard of the city will be mobilized on Sunday, all of the troops being transported to the tournament in automobiles. More than 2,000 machines will be used in the mobilization, which is expected to break all National Guard records for speed in getting from various points in the city to the place of concentration. Major Gen. O'Ryan, commander of the New York National Guard, will direct the movement. Here are some of the events for tomorrow:

Shelter tent pitching, one-mile relay race (mounted,) army and Red Cross dogs trailing and attacking highwayman, barn-door contest (mounted,) border raid and surprise attack, cavalry, artillery, infantry engineers, and signal corps participating; exhibition drill by the Highlanders, infantry, cavalry and artillery attack; naming four aeroplanes under the auspices of the Aero Club of America, wall scaling, 100-yard rescue race, review of the troops, daylight fireworks, arrival of aeroplanes from various bases in cross-country race.

NIGHT.

Searchlight drills, night signaling, combat exercises, cavalry, artillery, and infantry participating; trench lights used in the foreign fronts, pyrotechnic battleship and blow up.

The educational features of the tournament have interested the officials of the public schools, and a special day is to be designated for the school children of the city.

Included in the aviation program will be battles in the air between dirigibles and aeroplanes and skirmishing by aeroplanes. Locating aeroplanes by searchlight and the use of aero defense guns will be interesting features. There will also be altitude and speed trials and bomb-dropping competitions. There are twenty-eight events on the program of the Military Athletic League championships, and the star athletes of the various regiments will take part in these contests.

EXPLAINS WESCOTT'S CHOICE

President Writes to Gov. Fielder About St. Louis Nominating Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—President Wilson has written to Governor Fielder of New Jersey explaining that in insisting upon the selection of John W. Wescott to make his nominating speech at St. Louis, he did not mean to choose between the Attorney General and the Governor, but that he was merely carrying out an arrangement he had made with Mr. Wescott long ago. The President's letter follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, May 16, 1916.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:

I am sorry that any tangle should have occurred with regard to the arrangements for the nominating speech at the approaching National Convention. Certainly the action of the delegates was a natural expression of their confidence and admiration, and you may be sure that I should have considered it an honor to be put in nomination by you.

But the fact is that for weeks past, whenever I was asked by any of my friends who my personal choice was, I invariably replied, Judge Wescott. I can never forget the enthusiasm and generosity with which he undertook this duty four years ago, and it has always been my hope, if I should ever be nominated again, that he should undertake it. Before I learned of the action of the delegation, I had already written to him expressing this preference and begging him to put me in nomination.

I am sure that you will understand and will realize that it is not a choice of Judge Wescott in preference to yourself, but a long-standing choice from which my thought has never turned.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
(Signed) WOODROW WILSON.

WAR'S END TO TEST AMERICAN FINANCES

SEES EUROPE PROSTRATED

Low Wage and Low Profit Competition for World's Trade Expected from Nations at War.

The United States must be economically prepared to share its part of the burden to be thrown upon civilization by the European war when that conflict is ended was the warning sounded by James H. Manning yesterday when he spoke as retiring President of the State Savings Banks Association, which closed its twenty-third annual convention at the Hotel Biltmore. The war, he said, would leave this country with new problems and conditions. The financiers and business men of the United States must adjust themselves to new conditions.

"One year ago," said Mr. Manning, "I ventured the opinion that such prosperity as the country had never known was then in sight. Returns of the country's national banks showing conditions on March 7, 1916, prove that financial prosperity and strength in the United States are greater than ever before and are still rising. Never was money so plentiful. Discount banks under the Federal Reserve system have more cash than they can readily use. In the savings banks and trust companies there are similar conditions.

"In the year 1915, compared with 1914, net railroad earnings increased 20 per cent., merchandise exports 68 per cent., gold imports 661 per cent., bank clearings 21 per cent., and iron production 28 per cent. Every one knows that this cannot continue, for after the war Europe will be compelled to curtail purchases abroad, ordering only that which is absolutely indispensable. In order to sell products abroad they will be forced to reduce wages and profits to the minimum. How this will affect the United States, with its inflated costs, and how best to prepare for the changed conditions, is one of the many problems that will soon confront us.

"In Europe, with millions of men returning from the battlefields and other millions to be supported in their helplessness, wages are sure to come down and painful savings become the law of life. If after the war the workingmen of this country continue to have steady employment it will be by the use of domestic capital, and, as the shrewd, farseeing James J. Hill has recently warned us, capital is likely to be a 'shy bird' for some time after the close of this frightful conflict."

Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, Deputy Commissioner of Education, discussed the waste in the educational system not only of this, but of other States. He said that of 2,000,000 children enrolled in the schools of New York, 1,000,000 were defectives, in that they had some physical disability, such as imperfect sight or hearing. Of this number, he said 10,000 had incipient tuberculosis and would die within eight years. The cause was the failure to teach them the proper care of themselves.

"There is a tremendous waste," said Dr. Finegan, "and it will continue until every boy and girl receives vocational training and every one gets a chance to complete the studies in the elementary schools."

Following an address by M. W. Harrison and the report of the Executive Committee, memorials were presented on the deaths of Thomas M. Mulry, late President of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, and David H. Hoyt, formerly President of the Monroe County Savings Bank.

These officers were elected: President, Henry A. Schenck, President of the Bowery Savings Bank; First Vice President, John M. Satterfield, President of the American Savings Bank of Buffalo; Second Vice President, Samuel A. Beach, President of the Rome Savings Bank of Rome; Third Vice President, Martin J. Nachtman, President of the Albany Exchange Savings Bank of Albany; Treasurer, Walter S. Rose, Secretary of the Union Savings Bank of Patchogue, and Secretary, Hollis H. Searles, Cashier of the Prudential Savings Bank of Brooklyn.

ETHICAL CULTURISTS DINE.

Percival Chubb of St. Louis Calls New York Un-American.

The fortieth anniversary dinner, commemorating the foundation of the Ethical Culture Society, was held last night at the Hotel Astor, with more than 800 members of the organization from various parts of the country present. Dr. D. S. Muzzey, Associate Leader of the New York body, was toastmaster, and introduced Dr. Algernon Crapsey, a former Episcopal Minister in Albany, who resigned to become identified with the Ethical Culture movement, as principal speaker. Dr. Crapsey deplored the loss of leadership in the churches of the world, and stated that both priest and apostle had lost their leadership. The membership of the Ethical Culture Society had increased on that account, he said, as true leadership was to be found in its fold.

Dr. Felix Adler, who was the last speaker, said in a brief speech, that it was the good will shown by members of the society which had made the celebration of the fortieth anniversary a complete success thus far. There will be two more meetings of the convention, he said. Percival Chubb, leader of the St. Louis Society, advocated what he termed the baptism of the Ethical Society into a national movement. "New York is un-American,' he said. "It has less continental mindedness about it than any of the Western cities. I have been greatly amused at the feelings of New York members as to American cosmopolitanism, but I hope that here may be launched this movement. As the mother society of the movement it has the burden of nationalization on its shoulders." He said that the ethical movement sought for religious democracy, that it had departed from the monarchism of theology just as the United States had deviated from political monarchism. Other speakers were A. R. Brubaker of Philadelphia, Mrs. A. L. Hamilton, Chicago; Professor Nathaniel Schmidt of Cornell University; Mrs. Samuel Porter of Brooklyn, and George E. O'Dell, who recently came to this city from London.

No Movies in Cigar Stores Company.

At the offices of the United Cigar Stores Company denial was made yesterday that there was to be connection of any kind between that company and the reorganized Vitagraph Company, producers of motion pictures. The published statement connecting the two companies, it was stated, did not represent the future plans of the United Cigar Stores Company, which are to continue exclusively in its present business. It will not, through the Vitagraph Company or any other company, extend the advantages of its leases beyond its own necessities.

TO MANAGE ALLIES' BOOTH.

Four Prominent Women Chosen by Executive Committee.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Booth of the Nine Allies of the Allied Bazaar, held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, 4 West Fifty-eighth Street, the following were elected joint managers of the booth: Lady Colebrook, Mrs. Charles H. Marshall, Mrs. Walter H. Maynard, and Mrs. C. H. Ditson.

Miss Marie Louise de Jadelaer, daughter of the Minister of State of Belgium, and the Baroness Marguerite Moncheur were present and were elected members of the committee. They will take an active part in the management of the booth.

Lady Colebrook, who worked for six months in the Vickers-Maxim works at Erith, near Woolwich, England, making munitions for the British Army, will give practical demonstrations on a lathe in the booth of the work she did for the British soldiers.

Many contributions were reported by the Donation Committee, which consists of Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. C. C. Cuyler, and Mrs. Dixon. Contributions should be sent to James A. Blair, Jr., the Booth of the Nine Allies, care of the National Relief Committee, 200 Fifth Avenue.

The U. S. Government now is helping to develop Yellowstone and other National Parks. Secretary Lane of the Department of the Interior is taking a lively interest in getting more citizens to see Yellowstone Park and our other national beauty spots, because our national scenic resources are properly conserved only when they are used by a maximum number of Americans.

An important part of the new government program is the publication of beautiful, authentic descriptions of our great playgrounds in booklets which soon will be ready for free distribution. Through the courtesy of the Interior Department the Union Pacific System will co-operate in the movement to increase travel to Yellowstone Park by reprinting the government book on this wonderland.

To all who send in their names this book will be mailed as soon as it is off the press, together with full information on how to reach the Yellowstone, rates, etc.

About two-thirds of all who visit the Park enter through the western gateway (Yellowstone Station), the Union Pacific entrance, because Colorado and Salt Lake City may be seen on the way without added expense, and also because this makes a convenient side trip on the way to California or the North Pacific Coast.

Send for free booklets about Yellowstone.

MACKAYE MASQUE COSTUMES A TASK

MUST COVER 25 CENTURIES

Boxes for the Great Pageant Sold at Auction, the First Going for $225.

Designing 500 different types of costume for the Shakespeare Masque to be held in the City College Stadium next week has been the task of Robert Edmond Jones, working with Mrs. John W. Alexander, Director. Mr. Jones designed the settings for Granville Barker's production of "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," "The Devil's Garden," and other notable productions. He had to do the greater part of the work within a period of a few weeks.

To choose colors which would harmonize perfectly in a production of 1,500 participants; to have the costumes true to periods covered in a historical span of more than twenty-five centuries; to give character to the designs for individual parts—these are some of the considerations which Mr. Jones had to face.

The mere labor of making 500 different sketches is a large undertaking, but in addition Mr. Jones had to gather his historical data from original sources and then relate each costume with the color scheme which he and Joseph Urban, who arranged the settings, had agreed upon.

Efficiency in the Work.

To accomplish his task Mr. Jones organized his work like a modern business office. While several assistants—trained artists—were gathering from the Public Library, from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and from private art collections and libraries details from typical costumes of the different periods, other assistants were visiting scores of shops to select samples of colored fabrics, and Mr. Jones was going over them all carefully.

To get the effect of the ensemble, Mr. Jones had sketched for him hundreds of nudes of both sexes. The process of designing the costumes was one of putting clothes, piece by piece, on these nude figures with pencil and brush.

Mr. Jones was found recently working on the Renaissance period of the Masque.

"This lady," he said, picking up a figure, "is Jessica. She is traditionally Oriental in her characteristics, so I'll put a turban on her." He sketched a full headdress wrapped many times about her head. "And her hair stands out in bunches beneath," he added, suiting the action to the word.

On the table beside him were piles of books containing reproductions of the works of Renaissance painters, together with several dozen pencil sketches showing skirts and bodices and other details of the costumes. From these Mr. Jones selected in a moment his "motif," the full skirt, which he described as "bunchy" and "puffy." "You see, Jessica is a luxurious and sensuous creature," he explained.

The Color Scheme.

Then came the color scheme. Mr. Jones reached out for a pile of two hundred different pieces of cloth, of all conceivable colors, which was lying at his left. From these he selected two or three. As a matter of fact, however, he had seen the orange and black in his mind from the moment he began to dress the nude sketch. The selection of fabrics was a search for the proper quality of goods as well as for the desired colors. For Jessica's costume the fabric had to be stiff and heavy in order to "bunch" and "puff." For the Greek costume, in which long straight lines were needed, a more delicate type of cloth was selected.

Mr. Jones then turned to the twenty or more little pots of color, already mixed, for the shades which were to be used in the Renaissance episode. From these he selected his orange and black and flame red and daubed each item of the costume once or twice with the proper hue. This sketch was then handed to an assistant to finish, and slips of the various fabrics were pinned to it to guide the costume maker in the execution of the design.

By this method of syndicating his work, Mr. Jones was able to design an important costume in ten minutes. His work was confined to the purely creative phases, and the other parts of it were left confidently in the hands of the expert assistants. Several hundred costume designs were thus completed within three weeks, sometimes as many as thirty a day.

Not Works of Art.

The costume designs which leave Mr. Jones's studio would not be regarded as works of art by the lay observer. They are sketchy and rough; the face of the figure is rarely shown. But these designs are quite clear to Mrs. Edith Bloodgood, who has made nearly all the Masque costumes in her shop.

Each of the eight episodes in the community interludes of the Masque is planned in a typical and striking color scheme. The costumes by themselves are simple, and cheap fabrics are used in making them. It was part of Mr. Jones's work to choose and combine them so that they will create a rich and brilliant effect when they are seen next week in the bowl of the Stadium.

"I have not tried to be historically accurate in my costumes," Mr. Jones explained. "If archaeological pedants come to the Masque I am afraid they will go away dissatisfied. Of course, I have used hundreds of details drawn from original sources. The Germanic episode, for instance, is based entirely on the drawings and paintings of Holbein and Dürer. But I use these details merely as motifs, or elements of design to give character to the costumes. It is not costume portraiture that I am aiming at, but a typical total effect. The costumes for the Dark Ages, for example, must be dark; for the Field and Cloth of Gold, they must be golden. I do not copy the costumes of the period, but idealize them.

"The work has been peculiarly difficult because of the conditions created by the war. Many colors are unobtainable, and we have had to cudgel our brains for some adequate substitute. It is a curious fact that the color which is now most difficult to obtain is the color of mourning—black."

Boxes Sold at Auction.

A few of the choice boxes were sold at auction yesterday at William A. Brady's Forty-eighth Street Theatre. Wilton Lackaye acted as auctioneer.

Jacob Wertheimer bought the first choice for a box for the opening night for $225. Other boxes were sold to Miss Billie Burke, Lee Harrison, and Mrs. Philip Lydig.

There will be a reception at the Stadium this afternoon for the participants of the Masque. The professional actors and actresses who will act in the Masque proper will attend, as well as the hundreds of persons from all parts of the city who are to take part in the interludes.

Percy MacKaye spoke yesterday on the Masque before the students of the City College. He referred to its community spirit and its relation to citizenship. He told the students that it was particularly fitting that the stadium of their college, a municipal institution, should be used for the performances.

Even the prominent professionals who were to take part in the Masque, Mr. MacKaye said, were not stars, but simply parts of the community organization. They, like the other participants, were simply citizens working toward the same end.

Mr. MacKaye explained the ideas underlying his conception of the Masque, and then read several selections from it, illustrating his development of the theme.

CHILDREN'S PAGEANT ARTISTIC

East Side Pupils Made Their Own Costumes and Acted Well.

Twelve hundred children of School Districts 6 and 7, on the east side, gathered yesterday afternoon in the large gymnasium of Public School 188, at Lewis and East Houston Streets, and in multicolored costumes designed after those worn in Shakespeare's plays paid their tribute in pageant to the great English master of poetry, tragedy, and comedy. The youth of many nations were represented under the one American roof, directed by I. Edwin Goldwasser, District Superintendent, who had urged the children on in the work of honoring Shakespeare since early last Fall, when plans were formulated for the Shakespearean tercentenary celebration on the east side.

The children made their own garments for the pageant, the 500 boys who participated doing the cutting of the cloth for their own costumes. The music was provided by a combined orchestra of 150 boys and girls. A large crowd of parents and teachers was present to see their little ones perform. The scenes were set with the purpose of taking the audience out of the present and into the spirit and atmosphere of Shakespeare's time, and while all the pictures which made up the scenery were historically correct, their arrangement was planned to heighten the general effect rather than with the idea of reproducing a specific locality.

The pageant was based on an original scenario by Mrs. Anna Lutkenhaus, and in its final form it was the work of a committee consisting of Mrs. Lutkenhaus and Gustave Blum. Shakespeare has been the centre of study in every class of School Districts 6 and 7 for the last two months, and a special study of the flowers mentioned in Shakespeare was arranged for the classes.

Youthful vendors offered for refreshment, dainties made by the girls in the various school cooking rooms, from recipes handed down from Shakespeare's day. The pupils of the ungraded classes helped, too, assisting in making costumes and stage properties.

The principal characters were portrayed by Helen Goodman, P. S. 15; Frank Anteseri, P. S. 79, and Helen Markowitz, P. S. 15. The songs were sung by the combined glee clubs of the different schools of the district, and a tribute to Shakespeare written in blank verse by Mr. Goldwasser was read by Eva Marks of P. S. 15.

PARTY IN ZOOLOGICAL PARK.

Managers Receive Friends at the Annual Garden Entertainment.

The Board of Managers of the New York Zoological Garden gave their annual garden party yesterday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock at the New York Zoological Park. Tea was served in the Administration Building. Following the gray skies of the morning, the sun came out in full brilliancy shortly before the hour appointed for the opening, and brought out the warm, flamelike hues of the Spring flowers.

Well-known women on the Reception Committee received the guests, and the grounds were well filled with visitors strolling about to admire the plants and flowers and the perfectly kept turf. Among those who received were Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the Board of Managers; Mrs. Frank K. Sturgis, Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton, Mrs. Edward S. Harkness, Mrs. Lewis Rutherfurd Morris, Mrs. H. Casimir De Rham, Mrs. Henry M. Tilford, Mrs. Percy R. Pyne, Mrs. George G. Clark, Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. C. Ledyard Blair, and Mrs. Cabot Ward.

Others seen at the tea were Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander and the Misses Harriet, Janetta, and Mary C. Alexander, Mrs. Stephen H. Olin, Mrs. Walter Maynard, Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan and her daughter, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee, Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mrs. Thomas Hastings, Mrs. William H. Crocker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Phipps, Mrs. Frederick Guest, and Miss Mary Pyne.

The Board of Managers, in addition to Professor Osborn, most of whom were present yesterday, includes Madison Grant and Frank K. Sturgis, Vice Presidents; William C. Church, Lispenard Stewart, H. Casimir De Rham, Charles F. Dieterich, James J. Hill, George F. Baker, Grant B. Schley, William Pierson Hamilton, Robert S. Brewster, E. S. Harkness, W. B. Osgood Field, Levi P. Morton, Andrew Carnegie, William White Niles, H. A. C. Taylor, George J. Gould, Ogden Mills, Lewis Rutherfurd Morris, Archer M. Huntington, H. M. Tilford, E. C. Converse, F. Augustus Schermerhorn, Percy R. Pyne, G. B. Grinnell, G. C. Clark, Cleveland H. Dodge, C. Ledyard Blair, F. G. Bourne, W. Austin Wadsworth, Emerson McMillin, Anthony R. Kuser, Watson B. Dickerman, and Mortimer L. Schiff, the Mayor ex officio, and the President of the Department of Parks ex officio.

NO SECRETS FOR BARNARD.

Students Vote for Purely Social Organizations.

Secret fraternities will not be revived at Barnard College on Oct. 1, when the three-year suspension of the fraternity organizations by the Faculty expires. A vote on the subject yesterday by the Barnard girls supports the college authorities in the ban on secret societies by 8 to 1, but favors some form of social organization to replace the invitation membership type of fraternities. These questions were balloted upon:

"Whether fraternities, as organizations and as conducted three years ago, should exist in the college?" The total vote against the old fraternity system was 244, with only 30 in favor.

"Should the college have some form of organization primarily social?" The vote in favor of social organizations was 158, against 104.

"The existence of such organization, however, depends upon the proviso that it shall not have any national affiliation, any elements of secrecy, nor inclusive invitation membership?" The total vote in favor of this was 170.

Amusement Parks Open Tomorrow.

Summer will begin officially tomorrow with the opening of the amusement resorts around New York. Luna will begin its new season tomorrow night after a parade of performers and employes through the principal thoroughfares of Coney Island. Steeplechase Park will also reopen its gates tomorrow with fourteen new attractions and increased bathing facilities. Across the Hudson Palisades Park will illuminate the Jersey shore.

$5,000 More for People's Concerts.

The endowment fund being raised for the People's Symphony concerts has been swelled by the pledge of Miss Alice Seaton for $5,000 with the promise of a similar amount when the fund has reached the $95,000 mark. The total of pledges now aggregates more than $30,000, or nearly one-third of the $100,000 to be raised the first year.

John D. Robinson Dead.

John D. Robinson, Vice President of the Franklin Savings Bank and formerly for more than fifty years a teacher and Principal in the public schools of this city, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur L. Root, at 114 West Eighty-first Street, in his eighty-fourth year. He was born here and took up teaching as a young man. In 1904 a number of his former pupils, including John D. Crimmins, Dudley Field Malone, William R. Grace, and John Jasper, gave him a dinner at the Hotel Astor. Mr. Robinson was Vice President of the Franklin Savings Bank for more than twenty-five years and was a Trustee of the bank since 1871. He left a son and three daughters.

CALL SURGERY ONLY REMEDY FOR CANCER

LIST OF FAILURES SHOWN

Dr. George D. Stewart Says Many of Those Experimented On Could Have Been Cured by the Knife.

All remedies for cancer, except surgery, were characterized as failures by Dr. George D. Stewart and other speakers on the subject of cancer at the meeting of the New York Academy of Medicine in association with the American Society for the Control of Cancer at the academy's building at 17 West Forty-third Street last night.

While speakers favored the continuation of laboratory experiments, it was asserted that no results of practical value had yet been obtained. Dr. Stewart and Dr. David Bovaird, Jr., on the other hand, criticised severely many of the claims which had been put forward in behalf of radium, on the ground that the unjustified optimism of some experimenters and the pretensions of certain commercializers of medicine had done great harm by causing patients, who could be cured at the time by surgery, to put off the operation in the hope of having an easier remedy and to allow the cancer to gain on them until their cases became hopeless.

Dr. Stewart, who made an analysis of statistics on the treatment of cancer by radium issued by Kelly's sanitarium at Baltimore; Dr. Robert Abbé, and others using radium for cancer asserted that the figures of those who thought the highest of radium failed to show that radium was of any value. While these figures purported to show cures effected by radium, Dr. Stewart said that they showed a smaller percentage of cures than are obtained by surgery; that their cures were effected only in cases which could be treated by surgery, and that radium was admitted to be useless in types of the disease on which the knife could not be used successfully. Dr. Stewart quoted the results of other experimenters in the use of radium who found that the rays from the mineral frequently aggravated the disease and that the apparent benefit obtained from this treatment was usually transitory and followed by bad results.

Calls Radium a Failure.

Dr. John H. Hartwell said that he agreed with Dr. Stewart that radium and other treatments except surgery had so far failed utterly, and that laboratories using these treatments should in all cases be under the supervision of a surgeon competent to decide when surgery could be used with benefit, so that no lives would be sacrificed in experiments while there was a chance that they could be saved by surgery. Dr. Hartwell, however, was hopeful that laboratory experiments would eventually produce beneficial methods of treatment.

Dr. F. C. Wood of Columbia University said that experiments in recent years in search of a cure for cancer had been based largely upon the methods learned in developing remedies for bacteriological diseases. He said that it had now been established almost beyond question that cancer was not a germ disease nor in any way allied to germ diseases, and that much of the work done lately in laboratories had been in the way of unlearning the theories which had been built up on the analogy of bacterial diseases. He said that nothing had been accomplished in the search for the cause of the disease beyond the disproof of the theory that cancer was communicable or that it was brought into the body of the patient in any way from the outside.

Officers Are Elected.

Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, said that, with the science of treating cancer as it is, the education of the public and of the general practitioner to the necessity of early diagnosis and early treatment of cancer, would cut down the mortality from this disease by one-third.

Dr. E. D. Fisher presided, and other speakers were Dr. Eugene H. Pool and Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood of Johns Hopkins.

TEACHERS IN MUSIC TALKS.

July Program of National Education Association.

Professor Frances Ellen Dütting of Hunter College, President of the Department of Music of the National Education Association, announces the program for the meetings of the music section on July 5, 6, and 7 at its headquarters, Hunter College, Park Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street. The meetings will be held in the auditorium at 10 A. M. The other officers of the section are Professor Charles Hubert Farnsworth of Teachers College, Vice President, and Professor Constance Barlow-Smith of the University of Illinois, Secretary.

President Davis of Hunter College will deliver the address of welcome on July 5. Thomas W. Surette of Boston, Frederic H. Ripley, principal of the Longfellow School, Boston; John F. Ahearn, Director of Music, Springfield, Mass., and Frank Beach, Director of Music, State Normal College, Emporia, Kan., will deliver addresses. Round table discussions will be led by Mr. Ripley and Frank R. Rix, M. D., Director of School Music, New York.

On July 6 Henrietta Baker-Low, Consulting Superior of Public School Music and Associate Professor of Music, Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore, Md.; Edgar B. Gordon, Director of Music, Winfield, Kan.; Peter W. Dykema, Professor of Music, University of Wisconsin, and Otto Kinkelday, Ph. D., Chief of the Music Department, New York Public Library, will speak. Henrietta Baker-Low and Frank Beach will be the leaders of the discussion.

On July 7 Margaret Floy Washburn, Ph. D., Psychology Department, Vassar College; Leonard B. McWhood, Instructor in Music, Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.; Leo Rich Lewis, Professor of Music, Tufts College, Massachusetts, and Luise Haessler, Assistant Professor of German, Hunter College, will read papers. A business meeting will follow.

ACT 'TAMING OF THE SHREW'

City College Boys Give a Good Performance of Shakespeare.

For the first time in three years the Dramatic Society of the College of the City of New York presented an Elizabethan play in the Great Hall of the college last night. The piece was Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," and was played in an excellent manner. Much credit is due to Professor Taafe of the English department, who had to select and drill a new cast of performers as Francis Kear, President of the society, was practically the only veteran from former shows. Milton Tanzer as Catherine the Shrew made a decided hit. Francis Kear as Grumio also was excellent, and "Bill" Jones as Sly gave a fine impersonation of the fat drunkard. The cast follows: A Lord, William B. Toole; Christopher Sly, William H. Jones; Hostess, I. Kohn; First Huntsman, Francis Sweeney; Second Huntsman, John Neville; Page, A. Amore; First Serving Man, L. Corrigan; Second Serving Man, I. Fischer; Messenger, V. R. Brochaine; Baptista, Stanley M. Brown; Vincentio, J. Humphries; Lucentio, Genie Reale; Petruchio, Herbert Kraft; Gremio, Harold Emerson; Hortensio, Thomas Clendennin; Francio, Harold Wisan; Brondello, John Brophy; Grumio, Francis Kear; Curtis, Clarence Johnson, Nathaniel R. A. Smith; Joseph, Louis Schwartz; Tailor, Carl Blum; Haberdasher, J. Cotelessa; Bianca, I. Lichtigman; widow, A. D'Andrea.

Benefit for Dublin Widows Today.

One of the interesting features of the entertainment Brandon Tynan has arranged for the benefit of the widows and orphans of Dublin, to be given this afternoon in the Criterion Theatre, will be the singing of a lyric, written by Samuel Lover, by Grace Breen. Mr. Lover was an Irish novelist and the grandfather of Victor Herbert, who has set the lyric to music. The composer will accompany Miss Breen upon the piano.

Those who are to appear are George M. Cohan, Wilton Lackaye, Donald Brian, James O'Neill, Fred Niblo, Eddie Foy and children, Frank Tinney, Andrew Mack, Barney Bernard, and Jack Hazzard. Mr. Tynan and the company playing with him at the Criterion will give the second act of his "Melody of Youth" and the trial scene from his drama, "Robert Emmet." A delegation of young women from the Twelfth Night Club will sell programs.

In four months of 1916 The New York Times published 444,444 lines of financial advertisements, surpassing by 23,077 lines the combined volume of four other New York morning newspapers.

The New York Times is read by a greater number of investors than any other newspaper in the world.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1916.

A BETRAYAL OF TRUST.

According to a preliminary report, the House Committee on Naval Affairs has discarded the Navy Department's plan of a building program extending over five years and voted, for 1917, five battle cruisers, four scout cruisers, ten destroyers, and twenty submarines. The department asked for two dreadnoughts the first year, two battle cruisers, three scout cruisers, fifteen destroyers, and thirty submarines. Although fast battle cruisers will be valuable additions to our navy, the compromise is a signal victory for the "small navy" men, and the reported passage by the committee of a resolution authorizing the President, after the European war is ended, to take steps for the formation of a universal Court of Arbitration is an unprecedented and utterly preposterous action. A naval committee is appointed solely to provide for naval extension and organization. It is not a part of its business to recommend international measures for the preservation of peace. The resolution indicates the character and quality of the men who form the majority of the committee which has been intrusted with the most important work of the year in Washington. No further proof is needed that their work has not been undertaken in the right spirit and that the confusion which has been caused by the military bill will seem insignificant when the naval bill comes to light.

The abandonment of the five-year program, in the circumstances, is not regrettable. Secretary Daniels was not disposed to ask for more ships than were absolutely needed. In fact, he did not ask for all that we need. Except in the increased number of battle cruisers, there is not a redeeming feature in the building program. The failure to authorize at least two dreadnoughts is unjustifiable. To reduce the small number of submarines recommended by the department, to limit the destroyers, of which we now have a pitifully small supply, to ten, is shameful. The greatest problem of the hour has been bungled by men who have proved themselves unfit for their task. The experience of the session indicates that the House of Representatives cannot be relied upon to make provision for adequate defense. The Senate will try to improve the bill, but if it accepts a weak compromise, as it has in the case of the army bill, this Congress will, indeed, be remembered in our history for its contemptuous defiance of the will of the people and its inability to deal wisely with great matters.

All over the country the demand for stronger national defenses is forcibly expressed. The Chicago Tribune, protesting against the misrepresentation of the Middle West, declares:

> The preparedness demonstrations which are being planned for Chicago and other cities in the Middle West will give opportunity for the expression of real sentiment, so badly distorted by political expression in Washington. We do not believe that the Middle West is filled with men and women as thoughtless and indifferent as the Congressmen who represent them. We do not believe that the Congressmen know their own districts.

That, we are confident, is the fact. The awakening of the men who have so shamefully misrepresented their constituents will come in time.

STATESMEN OF THE OLD STAMP.

The Houston Post exalts as "statesmen of the old stamp" the Southerners in the Administration and the Congress:

> Entering for the first time into the affairs of the world, the American Republic—yet an experiment among forms of government—has needed all the intellect, all the diplomacy, and all the statesmanship which could be gathered into the official family.
> In every branch of that Government Southern men are leaving an impress that will not be forgotten when the history of these times is written. They are living up to the traditions of the Old South—the possibilities of the New South; and they may be trusted as years wear on to mold the young nation into a world power having the confidence of every weaker Government and the wholesome respect of its equals in power and strength.

There are Southerners of capacity and talent at Washington, but when "the history of these times is written" will the historians be quite sure that, for example, Mr. Hay of Virginia, Mr. Kitchin and Mr. Daniels of North Carolina, the Hon. Jeff: McLemore of Texas and the resolution, the Hon. Cyclone Davis of Texas, the Hon. Hoke Smith of Georgia, the Hon. James K. Vardaman of Mississippi, the Hon. William J. Stone of Missouri have "left an impress" like that of, say, John Randolph, Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay, John C. Calhoun, Thomas H. Benton, Judah P. Benjamin, Alexander H. Stephens, John T. Morgan, Roger Q. Mills, George G. Vest?

WHAT IS THE MOTIVE?

Too few wires have been tapped, not too many. It is to the public interest that the motives of the persons who have been raising a tumult of excitement over the police practice of tapping the telephone wires for the detection of crime should be laid bare. What interest do they serve? What public ends are they seeking to attain, or, if not any public ends, what private ones? The impression has been created, the community has been permitted to believe, or to suspect, that telephone wires are tapped for all sorts of reasons, to pry into business secrets for the advantage of rival interests, to gratify individual malice, or to satisfy private curiosity. That impression is false, that suspicion groundless. The telephone wires have been tapped and conversations listened to only for the detection of crime, and that the law authorizes. It is obviously a practice subject to abuse, it must have its limitations, it can be resorted to only by officers of the law for the execution of the law. The Mayor has made it plain that telephone wires have been tapped only for the purpose of aiding the local authorities or the authorities of the Federal Government in detecting crime.

Because of "persistent misrepresentation and falsehood," and to correct "a general misapprehension which has "been studiously and intentionally "created in the public mind," the Mayor has felt compelled to issue the statement we publish this morning. Great harm has been done already by the attempt to exploit and make sensational use of recent disclosures of this kind. There is every reason to fear that the processes of justice have been obstructed, that persons concerned in criminal conspiracies have been put on their guard, and that their detection has been made more difficult, particularly the detection of offenders against the Federal laws. Mayor Mitchel spoke with great force and amply justified indignation of these mischief-makers when he said yesterday:

> I want to say one thing, though, that anybody who has been warned that vital interests of the United States as a Government were involved, and who, knowingly, deliberately jeopardized those interests, while he may not be guilty under any statute of treason to the United States, is a traitor to his country at heart.

The interests to be served in detecting conspiracies against our Federal laws are immensely greater, they are far above and beyond any end to be promoted by sensation-mongers. They are the interests of the nation, and any one who knowingly seeks to thwart the efforts of the Federal Government to bring criminals to book deserves the public reproof which the Mayor has administered. But what can be the underlying motives of persons who, duly warned and admonished of the harm they were doing, have nevertheless persisted in their obstructive work?

THE SENATE'S SURRENDER.

The latest discussion in the Senate over the military bill was lacking in any practical purpose. The conference report which the Senators felt compelled to accept was not satisfactory and some of them took pains to say as much, though their condemnation of certain provisions was purely Pickwickian. Senator Borah again denounced the political jobbery connected with National Guard federalization, but as he would have denounced the provision for a Federal volunteer force just as harshly, if it had survived the conference, it cannot be said that his remarks were important. Mr. Borah's judgment of the National Guard is based entirely on its past performances. When the military bill becomes a law, and Secretary Baker believes that will be within a few days, the relative position of the National Guard in our defense plans will be greatly changed, its responsibility will be larger, its opportunities will be increased. It will be subject to sterner discipline and all that it does in all the States will be closely watched. The comparative failure of the Dick law is history. It is no more than fair to expect that the Hay law will prove more effective in making the State soldiers competent for national defense. Without the much-needed body of citizen soldiers directly under Federal control the burden placed upon the organized militia may prove greater than it can bear. We think that it will. Corrective legislation will be needed another year. But the National Guard lobby has triumphed over strong opposition and the country must for the time accept the result.

In the circumstances the extension of the regular establishment is insufficient. Even with expedited recruiting, the number of trained soldiers available within the limits of the United States will be too small to meet any great emergency. So large an increase in the regular army as has been provided for was not in the plan of Mr. Garrison, to be sure, but he placed reliance on the training of a large body of citizens under the command of regular army officers. Senator Brandegee doubtless expressed the sentiment of many of his fellow-citizens when he said that he hoped "the good Lord who "guards the drunkard and the fool "will save the country." Nevertheless, the country will feel keenly that whatever confidence it has placed in the power and authority of the Senate to fulfill its promise in regard to our land defenses has been misplaced. The Senate has made a very poor showing and its acceptance of a poor compromise is an admission of its feebleness, the brave but futile words of some Senators to the contrary notwithstanding.

HANDICAPS.

Calling the people to call Hughes, The Chicago Journal paints this portrait of the candidate whom it wants the Republicans to take on trust:

> A patriot, a statesman, an executive of tried ability, a man whom no magnate ever bamboozled and to whom no trust ever issued orders. His enforced silence on the issues of the day is a handicap, but one which he could remove in the five months which lie between June 7 and Election Day. Also, most of the Progressives like him.

But suppose his speech might be a heavier handicap than his silence. "Handicap," by the way, is a term most unfortunate to use in connection with Governor Hughes, who may consent to be nominated, but who surely will not "enter the race" or "run." Suppose he had to begin by abjuring the party platform, as a Democratic Judge had to in 1904? There are Westerners less ready to believe in the good fortune of the pig-in-a-poke adventure. A Wisconsin journal, The Wausau Record-Herald, is deaf to the command of certain politicians and newspapers to "make believe" that "the people" want to draft a man in the dark:

> With statesmen in its [the Republican Party's] ranks whose names are honored throughout the world, is it reduced to the pitiful necessity of nominating either a nonentity or, what is almost equivalent, a man of whose views and qualifications nothing is known? Just think what this implies! It is equivalent to a decree that from and after 1912 the only men in the Republican Party eligible to high office are those who were too insignificant to give offense or who were cloistered in some position which sealed their lips. Can a political party serve the country in stormy times under such a handicap as that?

No Favorite Son! No Ignotus! But why lug in the forbidden "handicap"?

THE AUSTRALIAN PROPHET.

Britannia has found a prophet. His name is Hughes, called the "Labor" Premier of Australia. Throughout England crowds run in his footsteps. The day of his departure will be one of mourning. He is entreated to postpone it and finish the task of heartening the people. The papers are full of him, his goings and comings, his sayings, his doings. In Glasgow he insists upon riding in a tram driven by a woman, with a woman conductor, and that alone is a wonderful thing. Tall headlines are built upon it. There is never a day when he hasn't headlines. They run at random: "Mr. Hughes on Organizing the Empire," "Mr. Hughes on How to Win," "Mr. Hughes on British Aims," "Mr. Hughes in the City," freedom of which is conferred upon him; "Mr. Hughes in Scotland," and so on.

At Glasgow were scoffers, as is good for a prophet. He was to address the Trade Union Congress there, and some of the delegates protested. What message had he for workers? Was he not in England with a propaganda of protection and aggressive imperialism, which had been for years the curse of the labor movement? Had he not been repudiated, in fact, by the Labor Party of his own country, Australia? But scoffers deserve their ancient fate. The inspired are irresistible. Mr. Hughes was admitted. It was not at all what he said; it was his saying of it. He said: "There is "no great achievement that stands to "the credit of trade unionism here or "in Australia but will crumble to its "fall if the issue of the war is de"clared against us." Others had been saying the same thing, in words having exactly the same sound, but Hughes said it, and the hall quaked with applause. He has power to command the emotions of a crowd. He says: "The British race has found its soul," and strong men weep.

It is an interesting phenomenon. Hughes stands for the supremacy of the British race, for the articulation of empire, for tariff protection against Germany, for striking the knife to the economic heart of the enemy and keeping it there, for union and federation forever. All these things have now a great emotional appeal, but that does not account for Hughes. He brings to his subject no special thought. There is nothing new in the content of what he says. One must look for something else—something in the spirit of it, and that, perhaps, is youth. Age will parley and take its time. Youth is ultimate. See how it dealt with the German influence in Australia's business. It "purged," says Hughes, "every company of "German shareholders, whether they "were born German or naturalized. "There was only one way to deal "with such a situation—to do it with "such thoroughness that the Ger"mans would avoid this country as "though it were the very plague." All German-tainted shares were sold at the market price, by order of the Australian Government, which said: "Let them have their pound of flesh and in God's name be gone."

The British people shall inherit their own traditions. Hughes says it and gives them wonderfully sentimental pictures of themselves. To the wounded New Zealand and Australian soldiers who had survived the stupid Gallipoli campaign, gathered at a luncheon in London on Anzac day, he said: "On the shining wings "of your valor we were lifted up to "heights we had never seen; you "taught us truths we never knew; "you inspired us to a newer and "wider and nobler concept of life." The English were swept by emotion. He has a vision of war: "Into a "world saturated with a lust of ma"terial things, which had elevated "self into a deity, which had made "wealth the standard of greatness, "comes the sweet, purifying breath "of self-sacrifice." He believes in the mother race. He praises it to the full of its hunger. It has passed in trial through a fiery furnace, and is "yet, despite conditions that would "long ago have plunged lesser men "into the abyss of degeneracy, full of "the ancient valor of our race." Then he scolds it, as one may who loves it. For all its greatness, it must be greater. That is not to say it is inefficient, or that it muddles things. It was unprepared, for reasons reflecting credit upon its heart, but now it must come awake and have the will to conquer. He is full of sense. He knows his way in crowd psychology. First praise a crowd and then tell it the bitter truth. First persuade it that you believe in it, give it its ego full, and then it will cheer its own indictment. So doing, Hughes, Premier of Australia, has produced a profound impression in Great Britain.

His triumph there has created mixed sensations elsewhere, especially in Canada. The Toronto correspondent of The London Times admits that his utterances have received adverse criticism in Canada, where there are many extreme "autonomists" to whom the project of British federation is distasteful. The Toronto Globe suggests that a centralized War Department for the British Empire could order Canada to provide an army for operations against the United States in the hypothetical event of a war between Japan and the United States, Great Britain taking the part of her Asiatic ally. But that is for purposes of argument only. Even The Globe admits that new and closer relations between the mother country and the Dominions after the war now seem to be inevitable. That is what Hughes means. He speaks in hyperbole for effect.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Illustrating German Efficiency.

There is to be seen, with interest—and perhaps with something of amusement by observers with a sense of humor sufficiently well developed sometimes to find cause for quiet smiles even at funerals—a certain quaint ingenuousness or naïveté in the instructions just issued through Count von Bernstorff by the German Government to its Consuls in this country. For what the Ambassador is ordered to do is to tell the Consuls that they, in turn, must tell "German citizens" in the United States "scrupulously to obey the laws of the State in which they reside."

That command, standing alone, would be astonishing enough, even though, as would be expected, it were sent to those addressed as a confidential communication. It is made nothing less than astounding by open publication for all to read, and by introducing the exhortation with the statement that it is issued "in consequence of cases which occurred of late."

Surely the German citizens living here cannot be pleased to have the other residents informed in this official way that they—the German citizens—need to be told of a duty so obvious and so matter of course as that of obeying our laws. Still less, one might suppose, are they likely to enjoy the plain implication that they, or some of them, have been conducting themselves in a manner so highly reprehensible that their own Government is shocked into ordering them to behave with more propriety. That, to say the least of it, constitutes a real grievance for all German citizens who have not yet been convicted, though accused, of violating our laws, for it deprives them of most, if not all, of the presumptive innocence which, by one of the dearest—and absurdest—of our legal fictions belongs to us all, even though indicted, until the jury comes in with a verdict of guilty.

There arises from this order, too, the poignant question, Who are the German citizens thus condemned and reprehended? Are they those who, until recently, were regarded as sufficiently described when called American citizens of German birth or descent, or are they the much smaller—the comparatively minute—group of unnaturalized Germans, here but temporarily and intending to return to the Fatherland as soon as circumstances become more favorable for travel in that direction?

His Advice Shouldn't Be Followed.

It would be truly lamentable if Governor Whitman were moved by criticism so obviously inexpert, not to say ignorant, as that of the Municipal Research man who thinks he has been getting information on the subject, to veto the Legislature's appropriation for a site and building at Albany in which the State Board of Health may conduct the work of its biological and pathological laboratory.

Mr. Holton, the writer of the letter to the Governor's Military Secretary, advising such action, is presumably a more or less young man of excellent intentions, inspired only by a laudable desire to save this pathetically hard-up State from unnecessary expenditures. It will not be, however, until after he learns quite a number of highly relevant facts besides the essential difference between cancer and what he calls "malignant pustule"—meaning anthrax—that he will be competent to express other than impertinent opinions on the question whether the State laboratory should continue to be quartered in an old stable or be provided with quarters sufficiently commodious and well designed for the proper performance of its important and beneficent tasks.

The men with a right to speak are unanimous in saying that the appropriation is too small, rather than too large, and that the idea of turning the work of the State laboratory over to other institutions devoted to special branches of investigation, is preposterous. Of all this Governor Whitman can, and doubtless will, inform himself, or be informed by wiser men than the representative of the Bureau of Municipal Research who rashly waded so far beyond his depth in the large, deep sea of medical science.

The work of the State laboratory is quite different from that of the laboratories to which he would have it turned over, and it is in no sense a rival of the laboratories of their own which our more enlightened cities already have—the laboratories which they will all have as soon as they catch up with the times. The Legislature was well advised when it granted the money required for this purpose, and it will be sound economy, poor as the State is or pretends to be, to spend the money as planned.

They Are Kindred After All!

People who have been coming reluctantly to the conclusion that there must be essential differences between Teutonic and other minds can gain from reading the Austrian protest against the sinking of the steamer Dubrovnik a comforting reassurance that their fears were groundless, or at least much exaggerated.

The torpedoing of that ship in the Adriatic by a submarine of one or another of the Allies, as told in the Austrian report, was like in all its details to what has occurred many, many times in seas further north and less favored by the sun. The Dubrovnik, we are told, was a small craft, with no munitions on board, and carrying only passengers, among them women and children. One torpedo, fired without any warning, tore out the ship's side and she immediately began to sink. Then, before the lifeboats could be launched and got away, another torpedo came and exploded among the hurrying fugitives.

The victims were hardly numerous enough to cause much emotion, in these days, but they included some of the women. And the Austrians regard the affair as outrageous—as an "atrocity." They characterize it exactly as an Englishman would the similar treatment of a British ship or a Frenchman that of a French ship—or an American that of any ship of the same sort by anybody!

Therefore it is proved that the Austrian variant of the Teutonic mind—if it be a variant—can, as it sometimes does, work even in war time from premises to conclusions as is the way of other minds. Thus is it made highly probable, too, that if a German steamer in the North Sea were sunk as the Dubrovnik is said to have been, the excuse of military necessity or advantage would not be accepted as adequate in Berlin. That's something gained!

ART NOTES.

Jonas Lie's Paintings on View—Princess Parlaghy's Portraits.

At the Knoedler Galleries is an exhibition of the recent paintings by Jonas Lie, who shows advance over his earlier work in the larger number of the seventeen canvases on view. His "Autumn Fleet" in particular is a fine evocation of a brisk harbor scene, high in key and pure in color, with movement in the lines and a sense of power. The two large flower subjects have both splendor and depth in their color, but the scale interferes with subtlety in even a gallery as large as this.

Two Portraits.

The Princess Lwoff-Parlaghy has been giving a private view of two recently-painted portraits. One is of John Burroughs and is the best of the artist's works so far as they have been shown to the public. It is sympathetically seen and is executed with a technical resource quite adequate to expressing the character of the subjects. The low-toned browns and grays with their relief of dull red suggest a palette that has ceased to appeal to the younger artist, but the tonal envelope is managed expertly and the result is a truly beautiful interpretation from which all hints of a Lenbach tradition have disappeared. The right hand holding an old parchment book is, indeed, worthy of the far greater master, Leibl.

The portrait of Colonel Church, which was the immediate occasion of the exhibition, is in a lustier vein, a very downright performance and an excellent likeness.

School Art League to Entertain.

The School Art League is to assist in entertaining the Federation of Women's Clubs, on Tuesday afternoon, May 30, at 3 o'clock. The meeting is then to be held in the auditorium of the Metropolitan Museum, when the league will present a program which will show the visiting delegates how large audiences of children are led to take an interest in the Museum collections.

Dr. James P. Haney, Director of Art in the New York High Schools, who has been frequently called upon by the league to address child audiences, will make the demonstration. This he will do by teaching a class of fifty children in the presence of several hundred members of the federation.

Admission to the lecture on the afternoon of May 30 will be by card. These will be obtainable at the rooms of the Education Committee of the Fine Arts Federation, in the Seventh Regiment Armory, on and after May 23.

Poster Competition.

The Electrical Poster Competition undertaken by the electrical companies of the United States to obtain a design for the country-wide electrical celebration this Fall closes June 1. It has been in progress since April 1. Many of the finest industrial posters produced in America are in the competition. The Poster Committee announces that the judges will award the $1,000 grand prize, the $500 second prize, the $200 students' prizes and the $200 in high school prizes on June 10.

Following the awards the first exhibit of the posters to determine the winner of the "Public Choice Prize" of $300 will be held in New York City. From New York the poster exhibit will travel to Boston for four days and from Boston to Pittsburgh and then to Chicago. After this exhibit, which is scheduled to close about July 8, all the awards will be announced. That design accorded the highest total of votes at these four exhibits will receive a public choice award. In case two designs receive the same number of votes, two prizes will be awarded. The exact dates of the exhibit in these four centres and the galleries at which the posters will be shown will be announced later.

Congressman Platt's Opinion of the Rural Credit Bill.

Washington, May 17, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That there is a certain amount of special privilege in the Rural Credit bill that has just passed the House of Representatives is true. That this special privilege is wholly unnecessary, as agriculture the country over was never more prosperous than it is today, is also true. But The Times is in error in its editorial of today in saying that the House bill "is much more sympathetic than the Hollis bill" if by that is meant that the House bill is less carefully guarded, or contains more of special privilege, than the Senate bill. The House bill, it is true, increases the initial capital which may be advanced by the Government from $500,000 for each of the twelve Federal land banks to $750,000, but that was done to strengthen the reserve back of the bonds to be issued, and merely postpones a little the refunding to the Government the capital, or revolving fund, advanced. Off course it is not true that the 6 per cent. limitation of interest on mortgage loans includes amortization payments.

As a member of the Sub-Committee on Rural Credits both in this Congress and in the last I did a lot of work on this bill, co-operating with Chairman Glass, Mr. Moss and others who do not believe in Government aid in keeping wild and reckless features out of the bill. It is, in fact, so much better than we at one time feared it would be, that we feel pretty well satisfied. Only one harmful amendment was added on the floor of the House, and that may possibly be eliminated in conference. The Conference Committee will settle the final details of the bill, and on its report will depend the final support of many Republicans and sound money Democrats. A large part of the debate on the bill was pure "bunk," but the Henryites, with all their talk, didn't accomplish anything of consequence. I don't believe that any such elaborate system of government stimulated co-operation as the bill seeks to establish is necessary, and I do not believe that it can be of any substantial benefit to the farmers of New York or of other Eastern States, but it has some good features, and is not unreasonably unsound for a Democratic measure.

A bill containing at least as much Government aid was inevitable after the passage of the Federal Reserve act, which, by its terms, seems to give an enormous special privilege to banks. That act by its terms prints greenbacks to loan to the banks at a very low rate. It also provides that if the national banks do not subscribe to the stock of the Federal Reserve banks the Government will furnish the capital.

There you have it. "Why can't we do for the farmers what the Government has done for the banks?" You can't get away from that logic except by showing that the Federal Reserve act lies, which, of course, it does.

Blockades.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been very much struck with the howl that is being raised in Germany and by certain of the sympathizers with Germany in this country over the blockade. Especially are they vehement over the English forbidding milk to the babies and medicine to the sick. Are any of these gentlemen old enough to remember the war between the States? Did Germany raise any protest then over the attempt to starve out the men, women, and children of the Confederate States or over the absolute prohibition of medical supplies to the sick and wounded? I, Sir, know what it is to be hungry for want of food, to be sick for want of medicine, owing to the blockade. I was a little child at the time of the civil war, and I often went with my mother to the hospital and saw soldiers die with fever which a little quinine might have alleviated. I saw arms and legs amputated because there were no surgical dressings or aids to be had—all "blockaded" away from us. For years we had no sugar, no coffee, no tea—often no food, owing to the blockade. Who remonstrated then?

Oh, the humbug of it all! The blockade of the German ports is legitimate warfare. So was the blockade of the Confederate States. But Sheridan, when he boasted that he left the women and children of the Valley of Virginia nothing but eyes to weep with, never dropped bombs on infant cradles or upon harmless noncombatants. Gallant Semmes, who well-nigh destroyed the commerce of the United States, never fired upon an unarmed vessel, and saved every one of the crews of the ships he sank, taking them off of the captured ships before he sank them.

Let us have a little less hysterics and a little less hypocrisy. Let these sympathetic gentlemen read the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States on the questions of blockade and contraband, and the history of the starvation of the Confederate States. But for that blockade the Confederacy would have succeeded. But for the British blockade Germany might succeed and the hands of the clock of civilization be set back for centuries. Let these gentlemen condemn the blockade of the Confederacy, damning it as they damn England's blockade of Germany, or let them forever keep their peace.

General Earle.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a spirit of fairness, I am sure, you will be glad to retract a false and damaging statement made in The Times under the headlines "Bugler of Jumel Mansion is a German Barber." The following paragraph has just been brought to my attention, attacking my father, General Ferdinand P. Earle, who died in the Jumel Mansion over thirteen years ago:

> The Jumel Mansion has been more or less associated with misfortune and discord. * * * General Ferdinand P. Earle was the last owner before the city bought the place, and during his time, too, there was trouble under the roof.

The last words are most unjust and untrue in every respect, as the only trouble during his time was his untimely death. My father was all his lifetime a zealous patriot and friend of rich and poor who lived only to be of service to others.

THE PATHS OF MAY.

I went with May along the track
That she had made her own;
Her bloom-white banners floated back,
With young winds overblown.
Low violets gave their purple light,
Spring waters rushed and sang,
And straight dark trunks, in grave delight,
Through gold-green shadow sprang.

I followed May along the way
Where all her joys are strewn,
And heard, in all her voices gay,
Her hail to royal June;
My soul took breath, and slipped the load
Of earth's long strife and pain;
My feet were light upon that road,
My songs awoke like rain.

So life has traveled with the Spring
Through all the hoary years;
Not once has love forgot to sing
And smile through April tears;
And there shall come one final May,
When rest is long and deep,
When joy may find her own lost way,
And old despairs may sleep!

DO WE GRACE THE PART OF PEACEMAKER?

The Argument With Which We Bespeak That Blessed Role May Not Convince the Nations Now at War.

By E. HENRY LACOMBE.

New York, May 18, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There seems to be a growing belief that when the warring nations of Europe reach the stage, as they eventually will, where the terms of a truce and the conditions of a general peace are to be arranged, this country will have a place at their council board. Is there any substantial basis for such belief?

For nearly two years most of these nations have made enormous sacrifices for their respective causes; human life has been laid down and human agony endured as never before, while incalculable material possessions have been wiped off the face of the earth. During all that time our country has peacefully looked on, selling its crops and its manufactures in enormous quantities at very great—sometimes at exorbitant—profit, heaping up its own possessions, until financial editors begin to tell us that when the war ends we shall be the creditor nation of the world. Out of our profits we have contributed to the relief of the sufferers from this frightful conflict about 50 cents per capita of our population—that, at least, is the highest estimate I have seen.

It would seem rather improbable that those nations which have borne the burden and heat of the long day and have suffered all the loss will expect us to have anything to say as to the terms and conditions under which the combatants shall lay down their arms.

Of course it is understandable that some single nation, or some group, being satisfied that we would be likely to side with it on some of the controversies that will arise, would, by reason thereof, be pleased to see us in the council chamber. But surely the very same reason would induce the others to object most strenuously to our presence there; and without the assent of at least a large majority of them all, we shall have no part in the negotiations.

The argument is advanced that we should be their peacemaker, because as a country we have preserved neutrality, have been neither hot nor cold, and therefore are entirely sane, whereas these others have, it is said, all become insane. Will this argument have much weight? Take, for example, Serbia, Belgium, and France; certainly neither of these three countries began this war. Their best and bravest have thrown themselves ungrudgingly by millions into the blazing hell of battle, in a desperate effort to repel invasion, to preserve their homes and firesides, to protect their women and children, to save their mother country, which they love with a passionate devotion; for her they have counted no sacrifice too great. In doing so they believed and still believe that they were discharging a sound duty in a righteous cause. It makes no matter that some among us—even a majority of us—do not share their belief, they believe it to the uttermost depth of their souls; and without their assent, we are not likely to have a part in the settlement which is to bring peace, unless they and their allies are more badly beaten than they are today. Will they find the argument a persuasive one that, because of what they have done, because of what they are doing—for they are still fiercely fighting to expel the invader from their soil—we have reached the conclusion they are insane?

Will they not rather reach the conclusion that, if this be our summary of the whole matter, our appreciation of relative values is not keen enough to make us a desirable counselor! And will not the answer to our argument be much the same as the message to the angel of the church of the Laodiceans as recorded in the third chapter of the Book of Revelation!

DEFENSES AT PANAMA.

Rex Beach Says Gatun Dam Could Be Successfully Bombarded.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read "W. H. W.'s" letter in your issue of the 15th, in which he refers to my statement regarding the defenses of the Panama Canal and suggests that I stick to my story books and refrain from talking about things of which I know nothing. As is frequently the case, I was misquoted in the interview which "W. H. W." saw, and which enabled him to advertise his familiarity with coast fortifications by disputing my published words.

I have never said that a modern battle cruiser could destroy the "defenses" of the canal, that being a point upon which there is some difference of opinion even among naval men. What I did and do say is that the canal itself is vulnerable to attack by ships carrying guns of extreme range.

"W. H. W.'s" statement that he "has been employed on the Panama Canal fortifications during their entire construction" strikes me as odd, inasmuch as the fortifications are still in process of building. His reference to 16-inch guns as a part of their armament is no less careless, since there are no 16-inch guns at this writing on the Canal Zone. His ignorance of the truth about the canal defenses speaks well for him as a conscientious concrete mixer, but if he will take a map of the Canal Zone and a pair of compasses, then describe an arc, marking the range of our 14-inch coast defense guns, he will discover that an enemy battleship armed with guns of a calibre equal to or heavier than ours could so place itself—for instance, off the mouth of the Chagres River—as to be within range of the Gatun Dam and still be out of range of effective fire from the guns on Toro Point.

This is no discovery on my part; had "W. H. W." at any time during his preoccupied labors upon the fortifications inquired of army people or civilians on the Zone, they would have told him, for it is a matter of common knowledge.

Children or Dogs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A woman of genius has suggested in The Times that we should muzzle children instead of dogs. Of course, why not? Time and time again have I noticed vicious children, brought up by ill-natured but pedigreed parents, turn around and bury their fangs into innocent little bulldogs. It is an outrage which ought to be stopped. Very often a poor little puppy cannot even play around them for ten minutes without running a chance of getting badly bitten. We have already succeeded in having children excluded from the most select apartment houses and the best families. An enterprising lot of patriots and anarchists are now about to prevent the birth of these pesky children among the poor. So all we have to do is to muzzle the ones on the streets and then we can raise our dogs and kittens in peace.

"A Strange Boom."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a Republican I want to thank you for your editorial article "A Strange Boom." Our party should not nominate Roosevelt, for he is still an apostate; nor Hughes, because he is "The Man in the Iron Mask." A short time ago you published an interview with Christopher Rebhan, President of the Krieger Verein, in which he said: "Of all the candidates mentioned we (the German-Americans) like Justice Hughes, I think, the best." That's one good reason for letting Mr. Hughes stay where he is.

Quite Different but Still the Same.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a scientific axiom that two bodies cannot occupy the same place at the same time. But the real German mind knows no axioms or laws. Conrad Goessmann admits plainly that "in the present war the situation is quite different," (from that of 1870.) After wandering through a maze of folderol he arrives at the conclusion that it is the same.

Eight Children to Support.

Mary Campbell was on the verge of despair when the bureau found her. The death of her husband had left her a widow with eight children to support, and the care of so large a family made it impossible for her to earn any money outside. One daughter, working at long hours in a factory, managed to earn $7 a week, and 15-year-old Ada brought in $2.50 from her work as a domestic. But the bills for rent, food, coal, clothing, and other necessities amounted to over $15 a week, and Mrs. Campbell could not make ends meet. The Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, has taken charge of the family and has decided that the best way to make the family self-supporting is to train the children for better paying positions. The oldest girl is now being prepared for work as an office assistant, and will be ready to work within six months. In the meantime the family must be assisted, and a fund of $100 is needed to help them with a weekly allowance. Large and small gifts toward this amount are requested, and may be mailed to the bureau marked "For 0267 T." The bureau acknowledges with thanks the following contributions received from people who could not be reached by mail: Appeal 0265 T.—Cash, anonymous, 50 cents, $2, $1; Alexander, $1; R. C. G., $1; H. F. B., $1. 0265 T. R.—Cash, anonymous, $1; "In His Name," $1. 0266 T.—Cash, anonymous, $1; T. S., $1. 0266 W.—H. F., $1; "A Friend," $1.

A BAR TO PRICE FIXING.

Effective Application of the Donnelly Law in This State.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your article under the heading "Engravers Promise to Quit Price Fixing—Action by Board of Trade Taken on Eve of Prosecution by the District Attorney" you set forth the efforts made to have the members of the Photo-Engravers Board of Trade, which promulgated what was called a "Standard Scale of Prices," indicted. You show that upon the eve of the matter being presented by District Attorney Swann to the Grand Jury the board notified him that it would immediately withdraw its scale of prices and not enter into any further combination to fix prices.

A recital of the history of this very important matter should, however, have included a statement that the New York Trade Press Association, composed of the trade papers of New York City, presented the matter to District Attorney Swann and vigorously prosecuted it before him. Naturally the District Attorney only takes up such matters when they are presented to him by persons who have been injuriously affected by the combination. The New York Trade Press Association, feeling aggrieved by the action of the Photo-Engravers Board of Trade, laid before the District Attorney evidence which clearly showed the violation of the New York anti-trust law, spoken of as the "Donnelly law." This association not only appeared before the District Attorney a number of times, through its officers, but also enlisted the support of other associations, the members of which are engaged in publishing newspapers and magazines. Judge Swann took the matter up carefully and thoughtfully. He realized that if a combination could fix the prices of photo-engraving cuts there would be no reason why the dealers in every line of food supplies, commodities and merchandise of every kind in New York City should not get together and fix the prices to be paid by the consumers—something that the whole sentiment of the country is thoroughly opposed to. The result of his efforts you fully set forth in your article.

Very few States have enacted laws similar to the Donnelly law, which, as applied to intrastate commerce, is fully as strong, if not stronger, as the Sherman law, which deals entirely with interstate commerce.

The probabilities now are that by reason of the successful prosecution under this law of the "Poultry Trust" and the fact that District Attorney Swann was able, by reason of this law, to force the manufacturers of photo-engraving cuts to abandon a combination to control the prices to be charged by each member of the board the Donnelly law will be copied in practically all of the States of the Union.

A Nuisance Found in Libraries.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wonder if anything can be done about the people who stand in front of the book shelves at our public libraries. Yesterday I went to the Central Library. I went first to the shelves labeled "New Books." Directly in front of one-half of the shelves stood a man in a big overcoat. He was contentedly reading a book which he naively rested on the top shelf. Five people gathered round and waited patiently for the gentleman to move. Finally an old gentleman reached his hand past the complacent one's right knee and timidly withdrew some two or three books. Not in the least annoyed, the human wall continued reading. I went next to the fine arts shelves, to the poetry, philosophy, and history shelves. I counted six of these persons. They were all alike; absolutely oblivious of any one's existence but their own. Perhaps one of your readers can suggest a way out of the difficulty.

Why Squadron A Did Not March.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Three times on Sunday I had occasion to contradict the statement that two troops of Squadron A refused to march in the preparedness parade because of alleged pro-German sympathies. The statement was utterly false and unjust. The commanding officer selected three troops to march on Saturday and detailed the remaining two troops to march in the Memorial Day parade. I am a member of one of the two troops that did not march, and I know how general was the disappointment throughout the troop when it was learned that we were not ordered out. Fully four-fifths of the men in the two troops did march in the parade, however, as members of different divisions. It is difficult to understand why any person should circulate a statement so maliciously unjust to a devoted group of practical patriots.

Why Are Musicians So?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will some of your readers tell me why the majority of musicians wear their hair long, dress in odd, sometimes ill-fitting, clothes, wear soft flowing ties, and assume other peculiar and freakish mannerisms? I have heard one man actually make the statement that there are concert managers who positively refuse to accept the services of a musician unless he has some sort of a freakish mannerism. I think it's absurd. Perhaps some other folks think so, too. Why is it?

DEPICTS AMOS F. ENO 'THE MAN WHO WAS'

MILK BILL A DAILY WORRY

Hated Columbia, to Which He Gave Millions—Strange Freaks of Mind Bred of Senility.

Arthur C. Train, attacking the lawyers who drew the will of the late Amos F. Eno as exercising undue influence over senility, drew a picture yesterday before Surrogate Cohalan and a jury of the testator as "The Man Who Was." He appeared for heirs who are trying to set aside the document by which Mr. Eno left undetermined millions to Columbia University.

There were in court the representatives of the institution and scores of persons identified with the old New York. Mr. Train had known Mr. Eno in his prime, and in his declining years, and his story of "The Man Who was," related in conversational style held the attention of court and audience for an hour and a half, and this morning it is to be continued for the court broke the thread at the stroke of 5.

Mr. Train told how Amos F. Eno lived in the fine, old house of his fathers in Fifth Avenue, entertained those near him at the suppers of the Neighborhood Club or gave dinner parties at which were served the choicest of food and wines. The Amos F. Eno of the earlier days, brusque and intolerant at times in his business dealings, but always the genial host and the man of the world in private life, was presented in all his phases.

A Man Among Men.

"He was tall, broad shouldered, handsome," said Mr. Train, "of a dominant personality and a commanding presence, attentive to women, fastidious in dress, punctilious in manner. People were afraid of him, his abrupt manner and his sharp tongue, and there were certain subjects which always led to an outburst of temper on his part. They were trades unionism, woman suffrage, what he called modern innovations, such as the telephone and the automobile, colleges and college sports, Theodore Roosevelt and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, the President of Columbia University.

"As far as the university is concerned we have combed New York in vain to find a human being who ever heard him speak favorably of it. The only person who ever heard him mention the subject at all says he was down on Columbia and that he was emphatic in his denunciation of Dr. Butler. Yet you are asked to believe that this man who, in every will that he ever drew, left substantially his entire fortune to his family, and year after year made wills in which Columbia was never mentioned, signed away to that very university a residuary estate of five or six millions of dollars. It will be for you, gentlemen, to say why he did it.

"We shall prove to you that on June 18, 1915, Amos F. Eno was senile, shattered by accident and disease, his mind impaired, his memory gone, his willpower destroyed."

Mr. Train spoke of strange outbursts of temper on the part of Mr. Eno. Once there went to him Mr. Boissevain, who had married Miss Inez Milholland of suffrage fame, bearing with him a letter of introduction.

Aged Man's Idea of a Joke.

"Mr. Eno," continued the lawyer, "flew into a furious fit of anger and told him to get out. The gentleman, much humiliated, departed, and going to his club wrote a letter to Mr. Eno saying that he had called, but regretted to say that he had been driven away by the actions of a senile old man. This letter, which he exhibited to several persons, Mr. Eno seemed to regard as being very amusing.

"The difference between the sane and the insane man is that the sane man is constantly correcting false impressions while the insane man continues in the original error. For instance, some one knowing his aversion to woman suffrage, sent to him a clipping from a newspaper in which it was stated, evidently as a jest, that the woman suffragists were going to nominate Miss Lillian Russell for Mayor of New York. Mr. Eno received this while at Jekyl Island, realized perfectly that it was a joke and yet soon convinced himself that it was true. Nothing could disabuse his mind of the idea that the nomination was a literal fact. He harped upon it up to the time of his death and the clipping was found with his will.

"One of the most marked developments of the last year or two of the life of Mr. Eno was his extreme penuriousness. Here was a man admittedly with an income of more than a dollar a minute. Prior to the change in his mental and physical conditions he had insisted upon having the best of everything upon his table and surrounding himself with beautiful objects. He bought his shirts in Paris, and used to show these costly garments with pride. He purchased his furniture in Europe, and his house in Fifth Avenue was adorned with rare tapestries brought from the Old World.

Preyed Upon His Guests.

"Now he developed an extraordinary apprehension as to his means. He practiced the most absurd economies even when they interfered with his own comfort. He became so stingy that he was notorious at the hotels and resorts he frequented. He would invite persons to dine with him at hotels and restaurants, and then decline to order enough food to go around. At Lake George he ordered two portions of trout and creamed potatoes for four and evaded dessert.

"He wanted his housekeeper to have only one chicken cooked for eight guests—Spring chicken at that. When consulted by her as to daily orders he would decline to order anything until late, telling her that he might get an invitation to dine out. In New York his milk bills were a constant source of worry to him. He was always talking about them. One had only to say milk and it was all over. Wishing to get a drink of water at the Saratoga races, he asked each one in the party for a penny, and, failing to get one, took an old paper cup from his pocket, which he used. And yet he was drawing a dollar a minute."

Mr. Train said that the aged man would often sink into coma at his dinner and that often Bigaut, the valet, would cut up his meat for him and feed him as though he were a child. Bigaut is the servant who was with the French Army in the trenches, and was permitted to come here by his Government to testify in the present suit. The valet, according to Mr. Train, used to slap his employer on the back or push his head down on the table and call to him, "Come along, old boy, its time to go to bed."

Mr. Train declared that other members of the family besides Amos F. Eno had suffered from senile dementia, although they had reached a ripe old age. He then took up the question of undue influence.

"Is It Amos F. Eno's Will?"

"Is this then the will of Amos F. Eno," he asked, "or the will of Lucius H. Beers with perhaps a little help from William Mitchell, both lawyers, whom he had known so long? I do not question the ethics of the lawyer who tells his client how to dispose of his property, but a lawyer has no right to use his influence to persuade his client to leave his money to a university when that lawyer had been drawing up wills for twenty years for a man who insisted on giving his money to his family. Especially is this the case when Mr. Eno had spoken against Columbia University and did not approve of its President."

Austen G. Fox, chief of counsel for the upholders of the will, said that the sordid spring of the action was the desire of the contestants to possess the remainder of the estate when they discovered how large it was. He characterized the objections as "insolent arrogance," which seeks to limit public gifts, and declared that all were actuated by greed. Mr. Fox said the contestants must have remarked among themselves that Uncle Amos was crazy to have given anything at all to public purposes.

Arthur H. Friedlander of 1,851 Seventh Avenue was sworn in yesterday in place of Morris Langsdorf of 230 Riverside Drive as Juror 11. Mr. Langsdorf became ill last Tuesday night and was unable to serve longer. Mr. Friedlander is only 22 years old, the youngest juror in the box and the only one who ever attended Columbia University.

Mrs. Lloyd Keepers attended as matron of honor. E. Torrey Carrington was best man. The ushers were Blake Carrington, James B. Coe, J. Fred Wheery and G. Gilbert Ward. There was a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

GAY PARADE GREETS 3 SUFFRAGE ENVOYS

Mrs. Blatch and Others Who Spoke in Western States Will Be Home Later.

THEY MET NINE GOVERNORS

Wanted Whitman and Mitchel to Welcome Them with Band, but They Are Disappointed.

A gay procession of 100 women wearing decorations of purple, green, and white and carrying banners of those and other colors, with bright colored balloons, marched through the Pennsylvania Railroad Station at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon—the Reception Committee for the Congressional Union envoys returning after over a month's tour through the twelve Western States. It was a nice little reception, and a rousing street meeting followed at Thirty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, but it was all, in a way, something of a slump.

On the strength of a great and glorious time given the envoys in receptions by Governors and Mayors in the West, followed by a reception at Washington, D. C., when the envoys reached that city on Monday last, Mrs. John Rogers, Jr., a prominent envoy, telegraphed to the Congressional Union in New York prior to yesterday's arrival:

"Have Governor and Mayor at station to receive us with band."

The Governor and Mayor Mitchel had other engagements yesterday and the band did not materialize. However, little Miss Rosie Sanderman, the suffrage bugler, took the band's place, blew her pink cheeks still pinker, and made a brave noise, while ninety and nine women tried to make good the absence of the State and city officials. They made a fine parade.

The envoys were expected to arrive in New York headed by Mrs. Stanton Blatch, their leader, but when the train came in there were only three of them, and one of the three had reached the city a few hours ahead of time. There had been such a demand for envoys, it seems, to come and talk about the Western trip that they divided themselves into sections and were hurried off into different States.

Mrs. John Rogers, Jr., led the returning New York division yesterday and there was Miss Helen Todd and Miss Elsie Reigel, a Bryn Mawr woman who has handled the cash of the envoys during their trip, engineering it from beginning to end with great success.

Mrs. Herbert Carpenter, the champion suffrage marcher, led the procession through the Pennsylvania Station yesterday, following Bugler Sanderman. There were Mrs. Emanuel Einstein, Mrs. Henry Butterworth, Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, Miss Marian May, Mrs. Evan Evans, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Mrs. Julia Reinhardt, Miss Emma Elliott, and Mrs. Mary E. Howe of Seattle among others of the welcoming women.

A decorated bus and automobiles took the party to Thirty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, where the outdoor meeting was held. Mrs. Rogers told how the Western women voters had received the envoys and promised their political assistance to be used in every way to get the Federal suffrage amendment through Congress. She said the envoys had been showered with flowers, overcome with kindness in the way of receptions and other entertainments, had traveled 10,000 miles in their special car, had been gone thirty-eight days, speaking at two meetings a day, and in twelve States had been received by nine Governors, the others sending representatives. Everywhere Mayors and other prominent men citizens had come out with the women to welcome them, she said.

20 ENTRIES IN AERO RACE.

Administration in Washington Indorses Transcontinental Flight.

Twenty entries have been received for the transcontinental aeroplane competition, according to the announcement made last night by the Aero Club of America. The competition has received the indorsement of the Administration in Washington, including Secretaries Baker and Daniels, General George P. Scriven, Chief Signal Officer, Rear Admiral Benson, Senator George E. Chamberlain, Chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee; Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs; Governor Whitman, Mayor Mitchel, and a score of other prominent officials.

Three cities have wired asking how they could become controls for the competition, and a telegram was received yesterday by the Aero Club from the Commercial and Rotary Clubs of Fort Wayne, Ind., urging that their city be made a control.

In reply the Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America advised these cities that, whereas this competition is being held for the development of aerial preparedness and a large part of the prizes will go toward developing aerial reserves, it would help greatly if these cities could offer $10,000 to be divided into four prizes of $5,000, $2,500, $1,500, and $1,000, to be awarded to the first four aviators to arrive at those cities from the preceding control. The Aero Club of America has set aside a first prize of $20,000.

MISS CABLE BETROTHED.

Novelist's Daughter to Wed Charles B. Hawes of Cambridge, Mass.

George W. Cable, the author, and Mrs. Cable of Northampton, Mass., have announced the engagement of Mr. Cable's youngest daughter, Miss Dorothea Cable, to Charles Boardman Hawes of Cambridge, Mass. Miss Cable is a sister of Mrs. James Alfred Chard and Mrs. Boardman Wright, both of Montclair, N. J., and of Mrs. A. L. P. Dennis of Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Henry Wolf Bikle of Philadelphia, and of Mrs. Harold S. Brewster of Bisbee, Ariz.

Mr. Hawes is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Hawes of Bangor, Me. He was graduated from Bowdoin in the class of 1911, and is on the editorial staff of The Youth's Companion. The wedding will take place on Thursday, June 1, at the home of the bride's father, and is to be strictly a family gathering.

Miss Cable is Mr. Cable's daughter by his first wife, Miss Louise S. Bartlett of New Orleans, who died in 1904, his second wife being Miss Eva C. Stevson of Lexington, Ky., whom he married in 1906. He is one of the best known of the American novelists. His works include "Old Creole Days," "The Grandissimes," "Madame Delphine," and "Dr. Sevier."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Leach of Scotland Road, South Orange, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Campbell Leach, to Lloyd Robinson, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Robinson of 54 Chestnut Street, East Orange. Miss Leach's father is the senior member of the banking firm of A. B. Leach & Co., New York City.

Mrs. Frederick B. Savage of Albany, N. Y., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Frederica Lyman Savage, to Lieutenant James M. Irish, U. S. N., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Irish of Utica, N. Y. The wedding will take place next Autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gifford Marshall of Morristown, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanore Louise Marshall, to Boylston Adams Tompkins of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. George William Moore of Detroit, Mich., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine Palmer Moore, to Dr. James Roy Freeland of Pittsburgh, Penn. Mrs. Moore and Miss Moore are at the Schuyler. No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Johnston of Montclair, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Johnston, to Robert Stevens Hammond.

TAKES STEP TO FORM UNION.

Council of Authors' League Votes Unanimously for Referendum.

The first definite steps were taken yesterday at the City Club to unionize 1,300 American authors. The Council of the Authors' League of America held an afternoon session there to discuss the question of affiliating with the American Federation of Labor. On the Council are some of the best known writers in this country, and they agreed "unanimously," as Eric Schuler, Secretary of the league said after the literary session, to draw up a report showing all the advantages which would accrue to successful as well as struggling authors to present to the entire membership, and calling for a referendum vote six months later.

"This is as far as we could go," said Mr. Schuler. "The council cannot adopt a resolution favoring any particular act, but it can present recommendations to the members for their united action. As a matter of fact the Authors' League has been a trade union organization all the time, and by affiliating with the American Federation of Labor we will simply be coming out boldly and acknowledging the fact."

The members of the council who were present were Ellis Parker Butler, Jesse Lynch Williams, George Creel, Dana Gatlin, George Middleton, Harvey O'Higgins, Mrs. Helen Woodruff, Roger B. Whitman, George Barr McCutcheon, Leroy Scott, Louis J. Vance, Thomas Buchanan, Rex Beach, Percy MacKaye, Basil King, Kate Jordan Vermilye, Eric Schuler, and B. H. Stern, counsel to the league. Lincoln Steffins and Louis Sherwin attended the meeting for a short time, and last, but perhaps of major importance to the success of the meeting, should be mentioned Hugh Frayne, local organizer of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Frayne made an address on the benefits of union organization for authors as well as other workers.

The action of the council was taken after discussing a confidential report favoring union with the American Federation of Labor, drawn up by Leroy Scott, Rex Beach, George B. McCutcheon, Jesse Lynch Williams, George Barr Baker, Walter Eaton, George Creel, and Mr. Buchanan. This report will be incorporated in the general report to be issued to the 1,300 members within two weeks.

Winston Churchill is President of the Authors' League of America and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is Vice President.

DU PONT DENIES CHARGES.

No Fraud, He Asserts, in Powder Company Dissolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 18.—Pierre S. du Pont, President of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company, gave out a statement today in which he denied in detail all charges of fraud made by Robert K. McNeeley and Richard P. McNeeley in their suit brought against the powder company and a number of its officers for an accounting of funds involved in the dissolution of the International Powder Company.

"Messrs. McNeeley & Co. are owners of thirty shares—$3,000 par value—of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company," Mr. du Pont said. "The largest amount claimed as due that company through the acts complained of is $416,344.50, or approximately $1.41 per share on 294,271 shares of stock of E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company outstanding. Therefore, on the thirty shares owned by McNeeley & Co. there would be due them $42.45, a sum that would not compensate them for the costs of the suit.

"The dissolution of the International Smokeless Powder and Chemical Company and the du Pont International Powder Company was recommended to the stockholders of those companies by their Boards of Directors on Jan. 29, 1915, and on March 24, 1915, respectively. The E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company was the controlling stockholder of both companies. At the time in question the individual defendants in the suit held but 9½ per cent. of the voting stock of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company."

Dr. Byrne's Claim Against Noe Estate Reduced to $16,000.

Almost $100,000 was the fee charged by Dr. Joseph Byrne of 244 West 101st Street for medical services rendered to Mrs. Nellie M. Noe during the four years previous to her death from Bright's disease on March 3, 1914. This was shown in a report filed yesterday in the Surrogate's Court by Peter B. Olney, who acted as referee in a suit brought by the beneficiaries of Mrs. Noe's estate to effect a reduction in the physician's fee.

The exact amount of the bill was $99,568, but the referee decided that it should be compromised for $16,000. The amount of the settlement was approved by the executors, but was disputed by certain of the heirs whose legacies might be reduced because of the payment of the claim.

Mrs. Noe was the widow of Burch Noe. She died at the Hendrik Hudson, 110th Street and Riverside Drive, leaving an estate valued at about $135,000. The specific bequests in her will amounted to $97,000. The claims filed against the estate aggregated $106,428, the doctor's bill being the largest.

The referee reports that upon the evidence taken he found Dr. Byrne had attended his patient for four years and four months, "sometimes attending her at night or in the early hours of the morning, and that the professional services rendered by him were not only extended over this long period of time, but were exacting in their nature."

Edward M. Burghard of 111 Broadway was attorney for the executors, and Reich & Boyer of 141 Broadway represented Dr. Byrne.

Alexander Memorial on May 28.

The John W. Alexander Memorial meeting, arranged by the Memorial Committee of the Fine Arts Federation, will be held in the Vanderbilt Gallery of the Fine Arts Building, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street, on Sunday evening, May 28. An elaborate musical program will be given under the auspices of the MacDowell Club. The oration delivered at the meeting will be printed for circulation in public schools and libraries and the permanent memorial, a bas relief of the former President of the National Academy, will be placed in the United Fine Arts Building when it is completed.

Forty leading organizations of the city will be represented by officers and delegates at the meeting.

BENEFIT NETS $2,000 TO ALLIES' HOSPITALS

English, French, Russian, Belgian, and American Artists Entertain at the Biltmore.

POLISH COUNTESS SINGS

Mme. Swirskaya Gives a Russian Dance and Orphee Langevin Sings Song Dedicated to Gen. Joffre.

An entertainment, followed by dancing, held last evening in the Cascades ballroom of the Biltmore for the benefit of the Allies Hospitals Relief Commission, netted more than $2,000. The program presented American, English, French, Russian, Polish, and Belgian artists. It opened with an overture by the Russian Balalaika Orchestra, followed by an introductory address by Alton B. Parker, the Chairman of the entertainment.

Frederick C. Walcott, a member of the War Relief Committee of the Rockefeller Foundation, who recently returned from a trip through war-wrecked Poland, gave a brief résumé of his journey through Poland, with stereopticon views of the devastation and woe wrought there. Mme. Lyska, a Polish Countess, who turned over her Polish home and its grounds for hospital use during the war, sang dramatic Polish ballads, and Mme. Thamara Swirskaya, who was associated with Pavlowa in the Russian production at the Metropolitan Opera House, and who has been engaged as the "danseuse etoile" for the Chicago Opera next season, did a national Russian dance in costume.

Alice Verlet, a coloratuar soprano and a Belgian, sang Verdi's Cara Nome from "Rigoletto," and Orphee Langevin, a French baritone, sang Eugene Diaz's "De l'Art Splendeur Immortelle" and Louis Geanne's "Le Pere la Victoire," dedicated to General Joffre.

Paul Swann executed two dances, Narcissus, to music by Kreisler, and The Sphinx, to music by Caesar Cui, and Miss Dorothy Arthur, an English girl, who was the premiere danseuse of the De Koven Opera Company in the last production of "Robin Hood," did a solo valse to music by the Balalaika Orchestra.

After this program the floor was cleared for dancing, for which the Balalaika played.

The list of patronesses and patrons included M. M. Oustinoff, Russian Consul General; Professor M. I. Pupin, Serbian Consul General; Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, Dr. Richard H. Derby and Mrs. Derby, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Hamilton Fish, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Major Louis Livingston Seaman, M. Gaston Liebert, French Consul General; the Chevalier Giacomo Fara Forni, Italian Consul General; Lady Herbert, Mrs. Benjamin S. Guinness, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. William Alexander, and Sir Robert and Lady Borden.

Bankrupt 5 and 10 Cent Stores Sold

Judge Julius M. Mayer in the Federal District Court sold yesterday a string of a dozen stores scattered over this State, Florida, Delaware, Virginia, Massachusetts, Washington, D. C.; Ohio, and New Jersey, the assets of the bankrupt United Five and Ten Cent Stores, Incorporated. The purchase was made by Vernon C. Brown for about $50,000, or 41 per cent. of the liabilities of $125,000. The successful bidder declined to tell for whom he bid. His client, he said, wanted an established string of stores.

It is said that he was the cause of the break between President McKinley and Senator George L. Wellington of Maryland, which led to the refusal of the Senator to vote with the President on the Philippine policy.

GEORGE W. VAN NEST DEAD.

Prominent Lawyer's Disappearance in 1912 Attracted Much Interest.

George Willett Van Nest, a lawyer with offices at 20 Broad Street, and widely known here for many years, died yesterday at his home in Central Valley, N. Y., in his sixty-fifth year. His disappearance in July, 1912, attracted a large amount of interest. He became lost while on his way here from the Tuxedo Club, and, being in feeble health at the time, his brother, Dr. Rynier Van Nest of the Murray Hill Hotel, asked the police to search for him. Several days later he was found at the home of his cousin, C. V. N. Baldwin, in New Brunswick, N. J. Following this Mr. Van Nest went to a sanitarium for a time.

He was born in this city and was a son of the late Abraham Rynier Van Nest and Mrs. Margaret Willett Van Nest. Mr. Van Nest was graduated from Harvard University in 1874, later studying at the Harvard Law School, and being admitted to the bar of New York in 1876. For many years he was a member of various law firms, but more recently had been alone in business.

Mr. Van Ness wrote a number of articles for The American Law Review and for London magazines. He was a member of the Bar Association of New York, the St. Nicholas and Holland Societies, and the Metropolitan, Tuxedo, Harvard, and Down Town Clubs. In addition to his brother he left several cousins.

Written by a German for Germans. This is the finest piece of pure patriotism which the war has yet produced. Daring everything, even the hatred of his own people, the author flouts the "My-country-right-or-wrong" brand of patriotic appeal, and fearlessly calls to his countrymen in the name of the Right and of the Right only.

GIANTS ADD ANOTHER TO THEIR GOODLY STRING OF VICTORIES, SHUTTING OUT ST. LOUIS

GIANTS GOING YET AT FURIOUS SPEED

BENTON IN LEADING ROLE

He Pitches Stirling Ball, While Doyle, Burns et al. Maltreat Ames at Crucial Moments.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 18.—Rube Benton, hurler extraordinary and painter offhand, got out his little brush and played the rôle of Cardinal kalsominer today. Incidentally, the Giants registered their eighth straight victory by a score of 3 to 0.

McGraw's men have so thoroughly acquired the habit of winning that they paid no attention at all to the fact that they faced Ames, the National League's leading pitcher in point of earned runs allowed. Larry Doyle and George Burns clouted Leon with men on bases just as if he were a milk-fed recruit making his first appearance.

So effective was the Rube that Huggins's men were unable to drive in one of nine men who reached first base in the first seven innings. Snappy fielding behind him added greatly to the merit of his performance from the artistic viewpoint. Fletcher, Doyle, and Merkle turned a twin killing in the first inning that checked the Cards before they knew the game was fully started. Smith got a life when Captain Larry miscued on his roller, but Fletcher grabbed Betzel's stiff smash and engineered a double play that sparkled.

And the Broadway hopes were not up against anything so easy today as they faced in the first game, either. Red Ames, the only pitcher on Hug's staff who is performing in anything like high-grade style, hurled a brand of ball that was good enough to win nine games out of ten. Only one run was earned off him. The other two were due to errors.

Remarkable fielding by Betzel and Bescher kept down the visitors' scoring. The second sacker robbed Fletcher of what appeared a sure hit in the fifth. Bescher went back and turned just in time to stick up his gloved hand and clutch Merkle's terrific line drive in the eighth. Two singles followed, and at least one more run would have been scored had Bob missed the catch.

The runs came in a bunch again. With one out in the third, Burns dropped a bunt in front of the plate, and Snyder threw wide to first trying to nip the fleet fielder. Doyle looked over a couple, and then connected squarely with one for a long triple to right centre. Smith played the ball badly, and then made a wide peg to Corhan for a relay, and Doyle continued unmolested on his way to the plate.

In the next frame McKechnie singled to centre for a starter. He moved up when Ames threw out Rariden. Benton fanned, but Burns came through with a ringing blow to right, which scored the former Fed. George went on to second when Wilson fumbled the ball. Betzel threw out Robertson for the third demise on a fast play.

Bill McKechnie, who was rated too weak in hitting to gain a regular berth with the St. Louis Browns, is batting the ball hard. Today he got four hits in four times up, one of them a tremendous double to right. Yesterday he made a three-ply smash. Bennie Kauff, who figured prominently in the extra-base volleying in the first game, was unable to hit the pellet out of the infield today. He grounded twice to short, once to third, and the fourth time to first for an unassisted putout.

McGraw made an offer of Southpaw Palmero to Huggins, but the St. Louis leader declared he had no room on his roster for another twirler, and Palmero was transferred today to the Louisville Club of the American Association. The score:

REDS WIN CLOSE BATTLE.

Break Long Losing Streak by Defeating Braves, 3 to 2.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 18.—Cincinnati broke its long losing streak here today by defeating Boston, 3 to 2. The visitors took the lead in the first inning, when Evers was passed and scored on singles by Collins and Konetchy. In the fourth inning Herzog was given a base on balls and Killifer sent the ball into the right field fence for a home run. Boston tied it up in the fifth, then Cincinnati put the winning tally over the plate in the seventh. The score:

SLIPPING SUPERBAS DEFEATED BY CUBS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 18.—It took almost ten innings for the Cubs to knock the Robins off their perch by the score of 4 to 3, but the deed was accomplished in the extra round with three lusty wallops off Larry Cheney. When the winning tally was made there was only one out.

Tom Seaton was the chief disturber in the show, practically winning his own game after he had taken a badly mutilated job off the hands of Pierce, who started as hurler for the Bruins. Tom not only held the Dodgers safe after the second round, having the edge over both Nap Rucker and Larry Cheney all the way, but it was his hit in Chicago's half of the tenth which started the winning rally. Schulte, who had taken Mann's place after Robinson had sent the right-handed Cheney to the mound, was unable to do better in the emergency than a pop-up to Daubert, but Flack singled through Cutshaw, Seaton going to third. Here Cy Williams cut into one of his former teammate's fast ones for a hit just inside of first base, sending Seaton home.

Pierce stepped right into trouble in the first inning. With Myers out of the way, McCarthy booted Daubert's twister, Jake going to second. Then came a triple to the centre-field fence by Johnston, which counted the first sacker, Jimmy coming home on Wheat's out.

Pierce went back for more in the second, and got it. Cutshaw's hit almost dislocated Zimmerman's leg, the ball going on into centre field. O'Mara singled to right, putting Cutshaw on second. This sounded the whistle for Pierce, and Seaton came on the scene. Tom walked Miller, and Cutshaw crossed the plate a minute later on Rucker's infield out.

That finished the Dodgers' scoring for the day. They were not on hitting terms with Seaton until the seventh inning, when Miller singled. The Cubs could do nothing with Rucker's slow ones until the fourth. In this inning Mann started with a single, Flack and Williams sacrificed, and Zim's two-bagger sent Leslie home.

The locals tied the score in the sixth, Mann again leading off, but he received free transportation this time. Flack forced Mann at second and Williams struck out. Flack in the meantime had stolen second, and he came home on Zimmerman's two-bagger inside of third base. The Captain trotted over the plate on Saier's two-base drive to right. This finished Rucker, and Cheney took up the twirling duties. The score:

BROWNS HUMBLE FOSTER.

Heavy Hitting Features Game in Which They Defeat Red Sox 7 to 1.

BOSTON, May 18.—St. Louis hit Foster hard today and defeated Boston 7 to 1. Wellman had the Red Sox at his mercy, holding them to five singles. Boston also hit the ball hard, but usually to a waiting fielder. It was the first time St. Louis ever scored a victory over Foster. The Browns made the result certain by getting two doubles and a single in the eighth and four singles in the ninth. The score:

IGNORE U. S. G. A. RULING.

Paul Tewksbury and J. H. Sullivan, Jr., Banned, Compete at Woodland.

NEWTON, Mass., May 18.—A ruling by the United States Golf Association was ignored today when Paul Tewksbury and J. H. Sullivan, Jr., players who are under its ban, competed in an invitation amateur tournament of the Woodland Golf Club, of which they are members. The officers of the club recently voted to support the contention that the national body has no jurisdiction over State associations and are now considering a protest as to the merits of the decision, which classed several players, including Francis Ouimet, State amateur champion, as ineligible for amateur play because of business affiliations. Ouimet was asked to enter the tournament which began today, but declined. He has told friends he would defend his title.

DENVER, May 18.—Frank B. Woodward, President of the United States Golf Association, when shown the dispatch relative to the Woodland Golf Club tournament, said:

"The United States Golf Association has no jurisdiction to say what rules individual clubs shall make to govern the admission of members and to apply to men already members. The association has recommended that individuals who have lost their amateur status shall not be permitted to play in competition."

ERRORS DEFEAT CORNELL.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 18.—Costly infield errors by Eckley, Cornell's shortstop, materially aided Michigan to defeat the Ithacans today by a score of 4 to 2. Cornell, however, takes the series, having won two games out of three. Eckley's three errors counted in all of Michigan's runs. Miller for the Wolverines pitched a good game, while Sutterby for Cornell was touched for nine safeties. The score:

CLUB DENIES CHARGES.

Philadelphia National Body Files Answer in $900,000 Action.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—The Philadelphia Baseball Club of the National League today filed its answer in the United States District Court here to the suit brought by the Baltimore Club of the Federal League to recover $900,000 damages for the alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The answer of the Philadelphia Club denies generally and specifically some of the charges in the plaintiff's bill, denies knowledge of the others, and demands that the Baltimore Club submit proper proof of them.

WIND BLOWS STARS FROM GOLFING SKY

Marston, Herreshoff, and Lewis Drop Into the Second Sixteen at Garden City.

Over 130 golfers, three former national amateur champions, holders of still valid sectional titles, and a post-entry of a high northwest wind started in the annual Spring tournament of the Garden City Golf Club over the famous Long Island course yesterday. In point of accomplishment, the wind should be mentioned first, for it swept everything before it. It carried Walter J. Travis, metropolitan amateur champion, into the lead of the medal round with an 81, it blew Charles Blair MacDonald, former national champion and the architect of the links, out of the running and into a trap on the eighteenth green which he himself had planned, thus fulfilling the Biblical warning anent those who dig traps and what may happen to them; and it raged so furiously in the vicinity of H. L. Whigham, national amateur champion in 1896-97 that the former title holder was projected out of the tournament. Owing to inability to compete in the match rounds Travis withdrew from the tournament, and E. Mortimer Barnes of Englewood won the prize in the qualifying round with a card of 40, 42—82.

The surprise of the day lay not in those who got into the first sixteen, but in those who got out of it. The second sixteen is favored with the company of Maxwell R. Marston, New Jersey State champion; Fred Herreshoff, former metropolitan amateur champion and twice runner-up in the national amateur championship, and Reggie Lewis, the young Wykagyl golfer, who has been so much in the habit of playing in the first sixteens that he will probably crack under the strain of playing in the strange surroundings.

The mysterious W. K. Whigham, who appears so seldom that his rating at 4 on the metropolitan handicap list puzzles the average follower of the game, donned his working clothes yesterday long enough to justify the work of Messrs. Tyng et al. on the Handicap Committee by selecting a cozy berth in the first sixteen and settling himself there for the day with an 86. He is drawn with E. Mortimer Barnes, the medalist, in the first round of match play.

Others who found their way into the select division were Frank Dyer, the young Montclair player; C. E. Van Vleck of Baltusrol. Dr. C. H. Gardner of Agawam, Henry J. Topping, winner of the Ardsley tournament, who made the return journey in 38; Bob Hunter of Wee Burn, the veteran John M. Ward, H. C. Berner, and W. L. Hicks of Nassau, B. T. Allen of Fox Hills, George T. Brokaw, and W. B. Rhett of Garden City, A. W. Brand of St. Andrew's, and Gardiner White of Flushing.

Travis, Barnes, Dr. Gardner, and Gardiner White all had the same score to the turn, 40, but on the homeward journey the wind was breasted head-on almost all the way with disastrous results to the scores. Although the wind blew Gardiner White's tee shots and long seconds through the green in all directions and into unpleasant localities, the Flushing player has possessed himself of a new patent putter which defies the elements and puts the ball in the cup from any given point on the green in one shot—or more.

The caddies brought home many weird and wonderful tales of what happened on the links yesterday, of holes made in 2, of holes made in 20, and of holes never made at all, but for the most part the players were willing to forget their scores, blame it on the wind, and call it a day's work.

The golfers paired up in the afternoon and indulged in a four-ball handicap contest, which was won by F. M Kerr of Maidstone and Dr. Gardner of Agawam, with a card of 74, 4—70. The summaries:

First Sixteen.—E. Mortimer Barnes, Englewood, 40, 42—82; H. J. Topping, Greenwich, 46, 38—84; Dr. C. H. Gardner, Agawam, 40, 44—84; Gardiner W. White, Flushing, 40, 45—85; G. T. Brokaw, Garden City, 44, 41—85; W. B. Rhett, Garden City, 45, 40—85; Robert Hunter, Wee Burn, 44, 41—85; A. W. Brand, St. Andrew's, 43, 42—85; G. H. Whigham, Rockaway, 45, 41—86; Percy Pyne, 2d, Garden City, 42, 44—86; John M. Ward, Garden City, 43, 43—86; F. W. Dyer, Montclair, 44, 42—86; E. Van Vleck, Jr., Baltusrol, 46, 41—87; W. L. Boyd, Flushing, 47, 46—93; Samuel Allison, Atlantic City, 44, 49—93; P. S. P. Randolph, Jr., Lakewood, 45, 49—94; J. T. MacMahon, Garden City, 48, 46—94; F. F. Turrell, Morris County, 49, 45—94; W. S. Brown, Oakland, 48, 46—94; C. H. Brown, St. Andrew's, 46, 48—94; A. G. Spindler, Fox Hills, 47, 47—94; Oscar Woodward, Baltusrol, 52, 42—94; F. C. Havemeyer, Newport, 47, 48—95; W. W. Pell, Cherry Valley, 51, 44—95; J. S. Griffin, Deal, 47, 48—95.

Fourth Sixteen.—D. Rockwell, Great Neck, 49, 46—95; A. P. Palmer, Fox Hills, 50, 46—96; Malcolm Stevenson, Piping Rock, 48, 48—96; James A. Stillman, National, 49, 47—96; W. H. Johnson, Cherry Valley, 48, 48—96; T. M. Robertson, Garden City, 46, 50—96; L. M. Greer, Garden City, 47, 49—96; A. E. Ranney, Greenwich, 48, 48—96; Martin W. Littleton, Garden City, 46, 51—97; E. A. Lynch, Rockaway, 47, 50—97; G. H. Bowdy, Spring Lake, 52, 45—97; C. L. Tappin, Garden City, 53, 45—98; J. I. Blair, Tuxedo, 53, 45—98; A. L. Sands, Dutchess, 45, 53—98; C. D. McHale, Dutchess, 48, 50—98; J. E. Kelley, Deal, 54, 45—99.

Fifth Sixteen.—R. W. Goelet, Tuxedo, 48, 51—99; F. S. Keeler, Apawamis, 46, 53—99; D. M. Parker, Garden City, 51, 48—99; D. Morehouse, Midland, 47, 52—99; A. P. Roth, Manhattan, 51, 49—100; Artemas Holmes, Wee Burn, 54, 46—100; E. M. McKellar, Cherry Valley, 51, 50—101; J. H. Ottley, Nassau, 49, 52—101; Aymar Embury, Knickerbocker, 48, 53—101; H. B. Draw for first sixteen: Whigham and Barnes, Topping and Gardner, Rhett and Dyer, Hicks and Brokaw, Van Vleck and Allen, Ward and Brand, Pyne and Hunter, White and Berner.

WIND MAULS GOLF CARDS.

Women Find Boreas a Foe of Creditable Scores.

Sixty women started out joyously from the first tee at Apawamis yesterday in the second one-day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. Twenty of these same women grimly holed out putts on the home hole with scores that were blown sky-high by the wind, and the other forty players limped, straggled, or crawled home as best they could through the buffets of the wild north wind that swept over the course, changed a Spring day into a November afternoon, and ruined the game and the temper of so many otherwise happy and contented golfers.

Just how bad conditions were may be judged from the card of Miss Georgianna M. Bishop of Brooklawn, who won the women's national championship at Merion in 1904. Miss Bishop, rated at 1 on the handicap list, finished her round with a short putt on the eighteenth green which followed 99 other strokes generously given in the various traps, bunkers, fair and putting greens that go to make up the Apawamis course. Her card of 100, 1—99, gained her second place in the medal play handicap event, first place going to Mrs. H. D. Montgomery, a home club player with a 12 handicap, whose card was 109, 12—97.

The wind blew everything into sixes and sevens yesterday at Apawamis, except the scores on the long holes, and these were blown up to 15s and 16s. Caddies were swept overboard into pits, players were buffeted into the rough, the golf balls flew through the air in curves as yet unplotted by any mathematician, and it was hard to convince some of the women that whole greens were not carried out of position by the northerly blasts that created such havoc.

Mrs. M. D. Peterson of Knollwood, Mrs. W. J. Faith of Scarsdale, and Mrs. J. S. Irving of Englewood, veterans of hard matches in wind and rain, acknowledged themselves defeated and turned in blank cards yesterday—18 down to Boreas.

Mrs. W. Chilvers of Dunwoodie captured the putting contest with a total of 37 strokes. The summaries:

Mrs. H. D. Montgomery, Apawamis, 109, 12—97; Miss Georgianna M. Bishop, Brooklawn, 100, 1—99; Mrs. S. A. Herzog, Fairview, 106, 5—101; Miss E. D Spears, Knollwood 116, 15—101; Mrs. W. S. Bird, Dunwoodie, 110, 7—103; Miss L. G. Witherbee, Westbrook, 109, 6—103; Mrs. G. H. Levy, Century, 113, 9—104; Miss S. H. Rosenthal, Hollywood, 120, 16—104; Mrs. A. B. Gilkes, Siwanoy, 113, 8—105; Mrs. W. A. Cane, Arcola, 124, 18—106; Mrs. J. E. Davis, Piping Rock, 111, 5—106; Mrs. A. J. Morgan, Apawamis, 113, 5—108; Mrs. G. Morgan, Piping Rock, 115, 7—108; Miss Constance C. Roberson, Knollwood, 115, 7—108; Mrs. J. A. Moore, Sleepy Hollow, 116, 7—109; Mrs. Frank Enos, Englewood, 113, 17—116; Miss Julia F. Bredt, Essex County, 129, 9—120; Mrs. E. E. Buchner, Siwanoy, 148, 25—123; Mrs. Frank Gauss, Siwanoy, 148, 25—123; Mrs. W. Pell, Apawamis, 136, 12—124.

Captures Barber Memorial Trophy in Produce Exchange Event.

The members of the Produce Exchange Golf Association held their annual Spring tournament at the Knollwood Country Club yesterday. The main event of the golf program was the eighteen-hole medal play handicap for the Herbert Barber Memorial Trophy, given by the Barber brothers in memory of the Englewood golfer who died last Winter. It is a permanent trophy and will be contested for twice a year. C. J. Austin led the field in this event with a card of 104, 30—74. The handicap four-ball matches in the afternoon were won by H. P. Kidd and E. F. Siney with a card of 188, 11—177. M. B. Jones and F. B. Cooper tied for first place in the Kicker's Handicap. The summary:

C. J. Austin, 104, 30—74; Edward Barber, 97, 20—77; W. M. McCord, 83, 2—81; J. B. Hasler, 106, 25—81; Haword Jones, 89, 8—81; E. F. Siney, 94, 12—82; C. S. Betts, 105, 22—83; M. B. Jones, 101, 18—83; M. B. Snevily, 92, 8—84; J. C. Quirk, 103, 18—85; C. M. Ten Broeck, 95, 9—86; J. L. Pool, 90, 4—86; O. W. Beavan, 95, 9—86; Lorenzo Daniels, 89, 2—87; Gerald Earle, 97, 10—87; H. J. Kaltendach, 108, 20—88; J. H. Halstead, 102, 14—88; C. W. Austin, 114, 25—89; E. W. Burr, 109, 18—91; Roger Black, 99, 7—92; F. B. Cooper, 104, 12—92; F. A. E. Cott, 110, 18—92; H. P. Kidd, 98, 5—93; F. B. Mackay, 98, 5—93; C. E. Halstead, 103, 8—95; James Barber, 110, 14—96; Harold Armstrong, 107, 9—98; E. A. Mosey, 110, 9—101; W. A. Johns, 120, 19—101; W. Heyman, 132, 30—102; L. TWO MATCHES WON BY MISS GUTHRIE

Miss Martha Guthrie of Pittsburgh, who has developed the most sensational play in the women's metropolitan tennis tournament at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, continued her victories in the singles event yesterday, and advanced to the final round, where she will play either Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the title holder, or Mrs. Edward Raymond, who are to meet in the semi-final round today.

Miss Guthrie won two matches in yesterday's competition to give her the final round bracket, and in one she was pressed to her closest struggle of the tournament thus far. In the fourth round her advancement was comparatively easy, Mrs. Robert Le Roy lacking the ability to make the Pittsburgh girl place her game at its highest pinnacle. Mrs. Le Roy could take only one game in the first set. In the second set Mrs. Le Roy was a bit more successful, though it appeared due to Miss Guthrie playing rather indifferently, having become confident of her ability to win. This set was taken by the Pittsburgh girl at 6—4.

The only fair test that Miss Guthrie has had came when she played Mrs. Stanley Halle in the semi-final. Miss Guthrie won at 6—3, 6—3, but Mrs. Halle, who is comparatively unknown as a tennis player, made the match much closer than is indicated by the score. Nearly every game was hard fought with the exception of the last two in the final set, when Miss Guthrie ran one game out at 15 and the next at love. The Pittsburgh contestant has lost only eighteen games in five matches, and the six that Mrs. Halle took are more than any other player has gained from her.

Three contestants are now left in the singles event—Miss Guthrie, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, and Mrs. Edward Raymond. Miss Bjurstedt played two matches yesterday to attain a semi-final bracket. In the third round she defeated Mrs. H. Hirsch, 6—0, 6—0, and in the fourth round scored a victory over Miss Helen Alexander of Philadelphia in the hardest match the Norwegian has had thus far. Her victory came at 6—2, 6—3. Two matches were also played by Mrs. Edward Raymond. She won a third round victory over Mrs. Robert A. Pope at 6—3, 6—4. Following that, Miss Marie Wagner was her opponent, and Mrs. Raymond won at 6—4, 6—2.

The match between Miss Guthrie and Mrs. Halle was by all odds the feature of the tournament thus far. Miss Guthrie varied her game yesterday, her chop stroke, which has been a striking characteristic of her play in previous matches, not being used so constantly, and this was pointed to as indicating that her resourcefulness has not yet been fully brought out.

Three teams in the women's doubles advanced to the semi-final round. Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Molla Bjurstedt, Mrs. Rawson Wood and Mrs. Spencer Fullerton Weaver and Mrs. Robert Le Roy and Mrs. E. Smith.

Miss Wagner and Miss Bjurstedt, the national indoor champion, met with only light opposition from Miss Jane Rowson and Miss Dora Goodbody, winning each set at 6—2. The victory of Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Weaver was also an easy one, their opponents, Miss Ruth Schwab and Miss Alblowitz, being defeated at 6—2, 6—1 in a match in which Mrs. Weaver's play at the net was the feature.

The only three-set match resulted in a victory for Mrs. Le Roy and Mrs. E. Smith.

They defeated Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer and Miss Vanderhoef by a somewhat unusual type of score. Unsteadiness in the first set allowed Mrs. Cassebeer and Miss Vonderhoef to secure the honors at 6—1. In the next two sets Mrs. Le Roy and Mrs. Smith steadied and ran it out at 6—3, 6—4. The summary:

Women's Metropolitan Championship, Singles.—Third Round—Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Mrs. A. Hirsch, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. Edward Raymond defeated Mrs. R. Pope, 6—3, 6—4.

Fourth Round—Miss Martha Guthrie defeated Mrs. Robert Le Roy, 6—1, 6—4; Mrs. H. Halle defeated Mrs. L. G. Morris, 6—3, 6—4; Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Helen Alexander, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Edward Raymond defeated Miss Marie Wagner, 6—4, 6—2.

Semi-Final Round — Miss Martha Guthrie defeated Mrs. H. Halle, 6—3, 6—3.

Doubles.— Second Round — Miss White and Mrs. R. Pope defeated Mrs. Carlebach and Mrs. H. Halle, 6—1, 10—12, 7—5.

Third Round—Miss Jane Rowson and Miss Dora Goodbody defeated Miss F. Brainard and Miss Adele Cragin, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. S. J. Strauss and Mrs. D. Levy, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Florence Ballin and Miss Martha Guthrie defeated Mrs. W. Schiff and Miss E. Kahn, 6—0, 6—2; Miss Ruth Schwab and Miss Alblowitz defeated Miss Adele Bull and Miss Caroma Winn, 6—0, 5—7, 6—4; Mrs. Robert Le Roy and Mrs. E. Smith defeated Mrs. E. Deane and Miss H. Gardiner, 8—6, 6—3.

Fourth Round — Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Jane Rowson and Miss Dora Goodbody, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Rawson Wood and Mrs. Spencer F. Weaver defeated Miss Ruth Schwab and Miss Alblowitz, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. Le Roy and Mrs. Smith defeated Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer and Miss M. Vanderhoef, 1—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Mixed Doubles—First Round.—Miss Florence Ballin and Fred Alexander defeated Miss Abbie Morrison and W. Ross, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. A. Chapin and Mr. Chapin defeated Miss Adele Bull and H. Schinzel, 7—5, 6—1.

Second Round.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt and T. R. Pell defeated Miss Florence Ballin and Fred Alexander, 6—1, 6—3.

O'NEALE SPRINGS SURPRISE.

Defeats Phillips in Fourth Round of Harlem Tennis Tournament.

A genuine surprise cropped out in the fourth round of the singles event of the open tennis tournament at the Harlem Tennis Club yesterday afternoon when James S. O'Neale defeated Benjamin Phillips in straight sets at 6—0, 6—3. This was the only match played in the singles. The doubles play did not hold much of interest from the fact that there were repeated defaults. The summary:

Singles.—Fourth Round—J. S. O'Neale defeated Benjamin Phillips, 6—0, 6—3.

Doubles.—First Round—Harry Steinkampf and J. S. O'Neale won from R. S. Schenck and E. F. Leo by default; John McDermott and V. Sparks won from P. Treanor and partner by default; C. Chambers and E. Hutchings won from J. Sanger and J. Selig by default; E. Blumenschein and A. Harkary defeated J. Fox and E. Behar, 2—6, 9—7, 6—4; R. Russel and C. Brown won from J. J. Brinkerhoff and R. W. H. Campbell by default; E. Nolan and Dr. W. Crugler won from C. Buckner and H. Cassell by default.

Second Round—Harry Stetinkampf and James S. O'Neale defeated John McDermott and V. Sparks, 6—3, 6—2; E. Blumenschein and A. Harkary defeated J. Sanger and E. Behar, 2—6, 9—7, 6—4; Benjamin Phillips and partner won from K. Russell and Brown by default; E. Behar and Ingo Hartman defeated E. Nolan and Dr. W. Crugler, 4—6, 6—2, 6—0.

TENNIS FAVORITES FALL.

Defeat of Woodbridge and Stewart the Surprise of College Tournament.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 18.—D. E. Woodbridge and H. R. Stewart of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, each of whom had been regarded as a possible New England intercollegiate lawn tennis champion, fell by the wayside today at Longwood. R. Maynard of Williams disposed of Woodbridge in a three-set match, 3—6, 9—7, 6—2, while R. E. Jones of Wesleyan also went into the final by defeating Stewart in straight sets, 6—4, 9—7.

The Williams College players, Rockwood and Maynard, fought their way into the final round in doubles by disposing of the Bowdoin College pair, Flint and Greely, the Brunswick players getting only two games in the two sets played. Rockwood and Maynard will meet Woodbridge and Stewart in the final round. The summary:

New England Intercollegiate Singles.—Second Round—R. S. Maynard of Williams defeated J. A. Hofman of Wesleyan, 6—2, 6—4; H. R. Stewart of Technology defeated K. W. Koeniger of Dartmouth, 3—6, 8—6, 6—4.

Semi-final Round—R. Maynard of Williams defeated D. E. Woodbridge of Technology, 3—6, 9—7, 6—2; R. E. Jones of Wesleyan defeated H. R. Stewart of Technology, 6—4, 9—7.

Doubles.—First Round — Hofman and Jones of Wesleyan defeated Koeniger and Lamon of Dartmouth by default; Blair and McCloy of Amherst defeated Mitchell and Harding of Trinity, 6—4, 6—2.

Semi-final Round—Rockwood and Maynard of Williams defeated Greely an Flint of Bowdoin, 6—1, 6—1; Woodbridge and Stewart of Technology defeated Blair and McCloy of Amherst, 6—4, 5—7, 9—7.

YALE VICTOR ON COURTS.

Pennsylvania Defeated by a Score of 4 to 2 in Tennis Match.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 18.—Yale defeated Pennsylvania at tennis this afternoon four matches to two. Yale took three of the four singles and one of the two doubles events. Rowland of the Quaker team and Stoddart of Yale furnished the best tennis. Rowland lost the first set, 6 to 1, but won the next two at 7 to 5 and 6 to 4. The doubles match between Stoddart and Weber of Yale and Repolge and Warren of Pennsylvania went to the Quakers after a hard contest at 6—8, 7—5, 6—1.

A-top of all other good reasons why you should buy our boys' clothing is their long and satisfactory wear.

Of course, style is pre-eminently a factor, but what good is Style, particularly in a boy's suit, if the staying quality isn't there?

SAND MARSH FORGES AHEAD IN PAUMONOK

6,000 Spectators Watch Outsider Win Handicap in Racing Season's First Card.

WIND CHILLS THE CROWD

However, Weather Proves Unable to Cool Ardor of Enthusiasts at Jamaica Track.

Thoroughbred racing, with all its thrills and excitement, was formally started yesterday at Jamaica, the course of the Metropolitan Jockey Club. The opening of the 1916 season around New York might have been more encouraging from the weather standpoint, but there was nothing lacking in enthusiasm.

Racing is a pastime for sunny climes, and to attend the running of the horses when it is necessary for men and women to wear heavy overcoats and Winter wraps, as the majority of the spectators did, is not altogether conducive to the enjoyment of the sport. However, between 6,000 and 7,000 persons braved the cold winds which blew from across Jamaica Bay to see the first day's regular racing of the season.

Soon after midday special trains from New York and Brooklyn started running down to the track at few-minute intervals, the Pennsylvania Railway handling most of the crowd, which was made up chiefly of regular race followers, anxious to get their first glimpses of the thoroughbreds since last year. Long before 2:30, the time the first race was called, the lawns and grandstands started to fill. There was lots of handshaking among the horsemen, those who had attended the Southern tracks and were North for the first time since last Autumn exchanging greetings with those whom they had not seen since the closing of Belmont Park last September.

There was plenty of wagering, but it was carried on in strict accordance with the law. The Queens County officials and the city police in plain clothes were on hand to enforce the laws against bookmaking and pool selling. Sheriff Paul Stier took personal charge of six Deputy Sheriffs who were detailed at the course. The men were instructed to act without fear or favor, but they found everything quiet and orderly in accord with the statutes, at least inside the grounds.

August Belmont, Chairman of The Jockey Club, was unable to get to Jamaica for the early events, but arrived in time to see the running of the Paumonok Handicap. With him on the clubhouse porch were many prominent owners whose horses were running or would carry their colors during the meeting. Among these were James Butler, Captain E. B. Cassatt, Gifford A. Cochran, John E. Madden, Congressman G. W. Loft, James E. Gaffney, Frederick Johnson, Robert E. Davis, and numerous others.

Although the program included good sport the horses were not of the highest class; the best being kept in their stalls for more seasonable weather, and the Belmont Park and Mid-Summer meetings. Well-played favorites and fairly long shots divided the card, which was made up of two feature events, the Paumonok Handicap and the Suffolk Selling Stakes. Five of the events were sprints, with one race at a mile and a sixteenth.

Three were thirteen starters in the Paumonok Handicap, which was for three-year-olds and upward, at six furlongs. Every one of the thoroughbreds which went to the post was trained to the minute and looked fit to run a great race. Comely, from the Butler stable, was scratched, but this admitted High Noon, to whom the followers of this stable pinned their faith. The daughter of Disguise was the favorite. However, the public was doomed to disappointment, as an outsider, F. E. Rose's Sand Marsh whose price was ten to one, took the race with surprising ease.

After a delay of a few minutes at the post, owing to the antics of Foxhall P. Keene's Lorac, who reared up and then fell over, her rider narrowly escaping from being crushed, the horses got away to a fine start. Each took a turn at setting the early pace. Montressor first went out a length, then Flying Fairy assumed the lead. Sand Marsh, who was being ridden by Shuttinger, and Loftus on High Noon, were in the bunch, but made no effort to get away until they had opened up a place for themselves. Coming into the stretch, High Noon bore out, and Sand Marsh slipped in to the rail. Jacoba was then leading by half a length, with The Finn and Prince of Como showing lots of speed.

It was here that Shuttinger showed his horsemanship. At first he did not hurry Sand Marsh; in fact, he appeared to be holding him in. About seventy-five yards from the finish he let the winner have his head and overtook Jacoba. Loftus easily made up the distance he had lost on High Noon at the turn, and came on with a wonderful show of speed. He caught the Coe entry and went into second place. McTaggart, who was riding Jacoba, hung on gamely, but the Butler colt was the fleeter of foot and beat him out by two lengths. Meanwhile Sand Marsh had passed the judges' stand a good five lengths ahead of his field.

Straightforward, from Richard T. Wilson's stable, accounted for the Suffolk Selling Stakes of $1,500, at five furlongs. The youngster, who was the favorite, defeated a fair field of two-year-olds in a close race. McTaggart, who rode the winner, had plenty to spare at the finish and eased up on his mount just before passing the judges' stand. Leonie, a Star Shoot filly, carrying the Cochran colors, came in second, two lengths behind Straightforward. The show money went to Solveig. There were six starters.

One of the tragedies of racing was seen in the long-distance event, at a mile and a sixteenth, a selling affair for four-year-olds and upward. The winner was Sam McMeekin, who was entered to be sold for $1,000, but there were no bidders.

This horse has been a failure. Last season Sam Hildreth, August Belmont's trainer, bought him from James E. Madden at a price said to have been $15,000. He made several starts in the Hildreth colors, although the Chairman of The Jockeys Club held a half interest in the horse. But he never won a race; and, had there been any offers at the stipulated price, it is not in the least unlikely the stable would have let him go and been glad to get rid of him. However, it was the second victory of the day for the Belmont colors.

There were only five entries in the race, and two of these were scratched. The contenders being Gallop and Luther, neither of them very high-class horses, the winner did not have a very hard task. McMeekin just managed to come in front, with about three-quarters of a length to spare.

The opening race on the program was for maiden two-year-olds, seven of which went to the post. The winner was August Belmont's Wood Trap, who was the class of the race. The youngster has lots of speed and was carefully ridden by E. Haynes. Although he bore out at the turn coming into the stretch, he made up this lost ground and had foot enough to beat out James Butler's Bally by a length. Wilson's Night Owl brought up the rear three lengths behind. Another dash of five and a half furlongs gave John Whalen's Pawhuska a chance to show his speed. He easily defeated the favorite, Dr. Gremer, who was not placed. Virginia W., a good-looking filly, was second, a length and a half behind the victor.

James Butler scored his first victory in the final race. This was some slight compensation for his other entries in the previous events, which had twice been second. The contest was six furlongs, for 3-year-olds and upward. Although there were only four starters, they furnished a good struggle, the winner being in doubt until the horses were within ten lengths of the finish. Ambrose was the favorite, but Metcalf showed little judgment in his riding, and was beaten a furlong from the finish, although he displayed plenty of gameness. Pullux, bearing the Whalen colors, was third. James Fitzsimmons's Navigator was the other starter.

ALBODON.

It is difficult enough at best to interest children in voluntary cleanliness.

A dentifrice that melts or hardens in the tube will soon discourage a child from the use of any dentifrice: one that is gritty will injure the delicate teeth, and one that is simply perfumed and contains little cleansing property is well-nigh useless.

Albodon contains the highest percentage of actual cleansing and polishing properties of any dentifrice obtainable, and has none of the drawbacks mentioned. It is without coloring matter and safely antiseptic.

Try it to-day.

Albodon can be had at 25 cents a liberal tube wherever toilet articles are sold, and a free sample can be had by sending your name and address to The Albodon Co., Dept. A., 154 West 18th Street, N. Y.

N. Y. Y. C. CRUISE TO BE STARTED AUG. 1

Buzzard's Bay Eastern Limit for the Chief Event of the Yachting Season.

At a largely attended general meeting of the New York Yacht Club last evening Commodore George F. Baker announced Aug. 1 as the date for the beginning of the annual cruise. The rendezvous will be at Glen Cove, and the cruise will extend eastward no further than Buzzard's Bay, the earlier suggestions of a cruise around Cape Cod to Massachusetts Bay having been abandoned.

This cruise, which is the great event of the yachting year, will, in all probability, be the largest ever held by the club, as about every craft belonging to a member is either about to go into commission, or will do so before the date of the cruise. It is now a certainty that there will be an assemblage of sailing craft, steamers, and power boats numbering at least a hundred at Glen Cove, with a fleet of from 150 to 200 present in Newport Harbor on the evening of the general illumination of the fleet, always a feature of the season at that resort.

General Order No. 2, covering the details of the cruise, will be issued by Commodore Baker within a week or ten days, giving all the details of the run to the eastward. In general terms, the runs will be in successive days to New London, thence to Newport and to New Bedford with the races for the Commodore's, Vice Commodore's, and Rear Commodore's Cups the features of these port-to-port runs, and the races for the Navy Challenge and Alumni Navy Challenge Cups as incidents. The races for the King's Cup and the Astor Cup will be sailed off Newport Harbor during the stay of the fleet there, and there will probably be special cups offered for the one-design classes of the feet to add to the sporting side of the cruise. Some of the races may be sailed from Buzzard's Bay, with some longer races out into the open sea from that port as possibilities.

It is expected that the cruise will last for ten days, with a possible rest over Sunday at some port in Buzzard's Bay, though this was not officially announced at last night's meeting.

The Race Committee of the New York Yacht Club, composed of H. de B. Parsons, J. M. Macdonough, and Frederick O. Spedden, announces the opening of the club's yachting season, with a race for the new forties and the older fifties over the Glen Cove courses on Tuesday, May 30. These races take the place of the annual Spring cup races and will signalize the first appearance of the new forties, eight of which have already been delivered to their owners.

WHITNEY BOAT LAUNCHED.

Another 50-Footer Put Overboard Is Forbes's Kalinga.

Harry Payne Whitney's Barbara and W. Cameron Forbes's Kalinga of the New York Yacht Club's 50-foot class have been put overboard at Herreshoff's yard in Bristol, R. I., preparatory to going into commission for the New York Yacht Club's Spring cup races off Captain's Island on Memorial Day. The Kalinga has been fitted with a new set of standing lower rigging of wire shrouds. Captain Frank Martin is in charge of the Barbara and will bring her to the Sound waters next week.

George M. Pynchon's Mistral is the most recent of the 40-footers to get away from Bristol, with Captain S. B. Howell, former skipper of the cup sloop Defiance, in charge. It is reported that her trials have been very satisfactory to owner and Captain alike, both having stood at her wheel during the spins.

Arthur F. Luke's Katherine, another of the new 40-footers, has been taken to Marblehead, where she is having her preliminary trials.

Commander Steuart Davis of this city will take his cruiser Daraga to Marblehead, where she is to act as the parent ship of the volunteer patrol squadron of five boats on their cruises with naval vessels, which are to take place in June.

WITHDRAW HARVARD CREWS.

They Drop Out of Spring Regatta Because of Adverse Conditions.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 18.—Six races in the Harvard regatta were rowed up-stream, in rough water, on the Charles River course this afternoon. The brush between the Harvard 'Varsity and second crews ended after less than a half-mile of rowing, the coaches not liking the conditions.

Newton Darling of Harvard won the single scull race from a field of six other starters, finishing far ahead in 6 minutes and 35 seconds. The race between the Harvard University Boat Club crew and the Weld eight was hard fought, the University men winning by ten feet of open water in 5 minutes 25 seconds.

There was close competition in the novice singles, C. D. Murray, a Harvard freshman, defeating A. Lippitt by less than three feet. The Noble and Greenough schoolboys continued the winning streak which they began yesterday, the crew having more than half a length over Brookline High. The time was 5 minutes 53 seconds. The N. and G. eight later defeated the Brookline eight in 5 minutes 31 seconds. N. L. Harris, Harvard, '19, and G. Flynn, '19, defeated L. M. Middlemass and J. D. Schwartz in the wherry race.

The Harvard 'Varsity is tuned up for the Cornell race tomorrow. The men had a long session of coaching far up the river this afternoon. The Cornellians will be here in the morning and plan to get on the river twice during the day.

NEW STROKE FOR COLUMBIA.

Rice Puts Bratton Back to No. 6, Promoting Lorenz from Juniors.

Changes constantly expected since the defeat in the Childs Cup race were made in the Columbia 'Varsity crew by Coach Rice yesterday. Captain Norm. Bratton, who has been acting as stroke, was removed to No. 6, the position he occupied for two years. R. H. Lorenz, the new stroke, is promoted from the second crew. D. W. Leys, formerly No. 6 on the 'Varsity, is now No. 2, displacing O. B. Myers, who will stroke the juniors. The remainder of the positions are filled as follows: R. W. Leahy, No. 4; R. O. Pennell, No. 7; W. H. Diekmann, No. 5; R. I. O'Loughlin, No. 3, and C. W. Sengstahm, bow.

BRYN MAWR WINS AT POLO.

Captures Opening Game of Season for Woodcrest Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

BRYN MAWR, Penn., May 18.—Polo climbed up into the limelight and settled itself for six weeks of prominence today when the Bryn Mawr Freebooters took the first round for the Woodcrest Cup from the Philadelphia Country Club Freebooters by 11 goals to 10. The game opened the polo tournament season at the Country Club, and was really the official opening of what promises to be one of the best seasons of polo in the history of the game in this section.

The game today was a cold and languid one for six periods, and then it provided a whirlwind finish that almost tied the score. The two final chukkers were as good as the other six put together, because they brought in some fine shots and some close plays. The game grew faster and faster as the Country Clubbers thought they saw a chance to win, giving the shivering spectators splendid exhibitions of riding off and of other forms of expert horsemanship that the game requires. The winners conceded seven goals by handicap.

LEWIS A TOY FOR GIBBONS.

St. Paul Boxer Gives English Pugilist a Lesson in Skill.

Mike Gibbons of St. Paul, the master boxer of the middleweight division, gave Kid (Ted) Lewis of England a lesson in boxing at Madison Square Garden last night. Gibbons, always on the defensive, so baffled Lewis with feints, counters, and shifty footwork that for eight rounds the Britisher backed away from Gibbons's imaginary attack.

Seldom has a New York crowd seen cleverer boxing than Gibbons showed against Lewis last night. Lewis tried hard and in the eighth round he rallied and pounded Mike a few times on the face and head. Lewis's rallies, however, meant little in the face of Gibbons's great defense in the other rounds.

To the crowd which went to Madison Square Garden the bout wasn't what was expected. It was believed that Kid Lewis, with his swift foot work, would make Gibbons step a bit, but it just happened that Gibbons knew more tricks of the ring business than Lewis ever dreamed of.

Gibbons didn't try to knock Lewis out, he just played a safe defensive game, which brought into play all the best tactics of defensive fisticuffs.

For five rounds Gibbons made Lewis take back-water with bluff tactics. He did not try to hit him. He feinted and countered so much that Lewis was in a puzzle, and when his face got in the way Gibbons cut it sharply with left jabs which brought blood and bruises to the Englishman's face.

Lewis's jumping-jack tactics, which were so effective against other opponents, were not of much avail against Gibbons. Gibbons was Lewis's master from the start, and defeated him without half trying.

REFUSES TO BAR WELSH.

State Commission Will Not Uphold Suspension by Wisconsin Body.

The New York State Athletic Commission, at a meeting held yesterday at 41 Park Row, declined to uphold the decision of the Wisconsin State Athletic Commission in suspending Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion, for four months, and placed itself on record as favoring the immediate reinstatement of the title holder. Welsh was suspended this week by the Wisconsin Commission for delaying a bout in Milwaukee thirty minutes and for other minor infractions of the rules.

There is a gentlemen's agreement between the boxing solons of this State and Wisconsin, by which each is bound to recognize the action of the other in cases that are beyond dispute, and Chairman William Liginger, of the Wisconsin Commission, asked the local board to sustain the verdict against Welsh.

Harry Pollok, Manager of Welsh, submitted a long report defending the champion, and so impresed the commission that Welsh had been discriminated against, that on the recommendation of Frank Dwyer, Secretary Mathewson was directed to intimate to the Wisconson boxing Governors that their penalty had been too severe.

An application for a license, made by the Tuxedo Athletic Club, of Buffalo, was laid on the table until next week when the entire commission will meet in Buffalo. Application for a license was also made by the Berkshire Park Association of Gloversville, and approval will likely follow the filing of the proper bond.

The Patchogue Athletic Club of Bayport, L. I., received a sanction to promote sparring exhibitions.

AMATEUR BOUTS IN NEWARK.

Tournament Forming a Part of Anniversary Program Begins.

NEWARK, N. J., May 18.—Newark's two hundred and fiftieth anniversary amateur boxing tournament started tonight at the Palace ballroom. Ninety-one boxers are competing, including many champions. Preliminary bouts were contested tonight and will be resumed tomorrow. The finals in all the contests are scheduled for Saturday.

The large crowd was given a treat early in the night when William Morris of the East Side House of New York, the holder of the 125-pound national and Metropolitan championships disposed of Pierre F. Allegaert, a Newark boy, in three rounds. Morris showed in fine form and his boxing was greatly appreciated.

Adolph Kaufman, the national light heavyweight title holder, won an unpopular verdict over Joe Wolf, a local boy, in the 175-pound class. The champion just had a shade on Wolf, who did some exceptionally clever fighting. In the first two rounds Kaufman had the better of the go, but in the last round the honors were in favor of Wolf, and the crowd howled its disapproval when the result was announced.

Charles Schons of Pittsburgh outclassed William Logueman of the Trinity Club of Brooklyn. Schons hammered his opponent from rope to rope, and in the second round had him nearly out. He staggered Logueman with a left hook to the jaw, and only the bell saved him from being sent down for the count.

In the 108-pound class Thomas McGuigan of the St. Jerome's Catholic Club of Brooklyn stopped John Venito, a local boy, in two rounds. McGuigan punished Venito severely, and the referee stopped the bout.

Azevedo Knocks Out Smith.

Joe Azevedo, the California lightweight, scored a knockout victory over Frankie Smith, the Brooklyn boxer, last night in the third round, of a star bout of ten rounds at the Clermont A. C. of Brooklyn.

In the semi-final bout Young Bushey outpointed Walter Nelson in ten rounds.

Boxing Bouts Tonight.

Harlem S. C.—George Kid Cotton vs. Rough-house Ware; Wee Wee Barton vs. Joe DeNite. Both ten-round bouts. One six and three four-round bouts also.

New Polo A. A.—Fighting Joe Hyland vs. Tommy White; Eddie McIntee vs. Harry Mantone. Both ten-round bouts. One six and three four-round bouts also.

Brown's Far Rockaway A. C.—Young Cardell vs. Johnny Mack; Johnny Glynn vs. Frankie Hartley. Both ten-round bouts.

Rockaway S. C.—Johnny Martin vs. Joe Mooney; Joe Gibbs vs. Frankie Dixon. Both ten-round bouts. One six and three four-round bouts also.

Vanderbilt A. C., Brooklyn—Harry Pierce vs. Tommy Rowan. Ten rounds.

PROTESTS N. Y. U. VICTORY.

Lafayette Claims Middle States Intercollegiate Meet.

Protest against New York University's victory in the Middle States intercollegiate meet, held on Ohio Field last Saturday, was made yesterday by Lafayette College, which took second place. Lafayette contends that the measurement in the broad jump won by Many of N. Y. U., was incorrect, in that it was made by only one judge. By taking this event N. Y. U. won over Lafayette by a 25 to 24 score. It seeks to have the event thrown out, which would give Lafayette the meet by a score of 21 to 20. Warren P. Fielding, the judge of the broad jump, has made an affidavit on the accuracy of his measurement.

RICHARDS WILL COMPETE.

Injury to His Knee Will Not Keep Him Out of Intercollegiates.

The injury sustained by Alma Richards early this week is not of such a serious character that it will prevent him from competing in the intercollegiate championships at Cambridge next Friday and Saturday. His right knee was wrenched a long time ago while high jumping, and for months it has been incased in a rubber bandage. Frequently the injury has caused difficulty, but a few days' rest always puts Richards in tip-top condition.

UNITED HUNTS DINNER.

Perry Belmont Tells What Association Has Done for Sport.

The United Hunts Racing Association, in order to wind up the most successful meeting in its history, gave a dinner at the Turf and Field Club last night to the owners who made the entries and the amateur riders who participated in the meeting, as well as the prominent members of the association. Perry Belmont, President of the association, in an address called attention to the fact that the United Hunts had made two important contributions to the general horse interests of the country.

These he described as the establishment of military racing in the United States at the first meeting of the association at Morris Park in 1905 and the test whether directors of racing associations should be indicted for betting as may be considered contrary to law. The definition of this, he said, was important, because of the responsibility the organization had incurred in inviting officers of the United States Army to take part in its races. Favorable decision of the question once more reinstated racing in New York State.

A number of other speeches were made by prominent members of the association, and plans for the Autumn meeting were discussed.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISEMENTS

In the four months of 1916, 146,521 lines of advertisements were published in the Rotogravure-Picture Section of the Sunday Edition of The New York Times—a gain of 27,035 lines, compared with the corresponding period of 1915.

The Rotogravure and Halftone Picture Sections of The Sunday Times give the most graphic and artistic presentation of current events, notable persons, and the masterpieces of great artists, ancient and modern, and are regarded as the highest achievements in newspaper art.

BROWN FIGHTS HARD FOR FINANCE BILL

SAYS CITY MUST REFORM

Opponents Attack Measure as Violation of Home Rule—Hearing on Water Meter Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 18.—Should Governor Whitman approve the Charter Amendment bill requiring New York City to issue corporate stock, bonds, and tax notes by a pay-as-you-go plan, it will be due to an eleventh hour argument by Senator Elon R. Brown, who was unable to reach the Capitol today until the public hearing on the bill before the Governor was concluded. The Governor had asserted at the conclusion of the public hearing that, notwithstanding the approval of the measure by Mayor Mitchel and Controller Prendergast, he considered it one of the most drastic anti-home rule measures ever before him.

When Senator Brown had finished his remarks, which were frequently interrupted with questions by the Governor, the Governor's attitude had changed noticeably. The Governor was particularly interested in Senator Brown's account of the gentlemen's agreement on the $100,000,000 bond issue at the outbreak of the war. It was the belief about the Capitol tonight that the Governor would sign the bill.

Stuart Browne and Lawrence M. D. McGuire opposed the bill at the hearing, asserting that it violated home rule principles. Senator Brown held to the contrary, saying that the State had an interest in the welfare of the finances of the cities which it created.

"The City of New York never spends its taxes," he said. "It spends the money in advance of the taxes to be gathered in the future."

The City of New York, he continued, was adding fifty millions a year to its indebtedness of more than a billion dollars, a debt greater than that of the nation, and its debt limit was about reached. Something, he said, should be done to prevent the city from defaulting.

Representative real estate men from the Battery to the Bronx attended the hearing. They contend that the Brown bill was unnecessary legislation, and that the city now had the power to install the pay-as-you-go policy in its finances if the administration so desired. In reply to this, Senator Brown said that legislation was necessary at this time because the debt limit had been about reached. Edward J. McGoldrick, Assistant Corporation Counsel, said that the Brown bill was favored by the city's finance department.

The Governor remarked that the bill simply compelled the city to do what it already has ample power to do, on the assumption that there might be a city administration at some time that could not be trusted.

Senator Brown then told the Governor that New York City was committed to the pay-as-you-go policy by an agreement made by the city authorities with the bankers, who came to the city's rescue at the beginning of the European war. The Governor bent over the desk and asked very particularly about this "gentlemen's agreement."

"This was to be a permanent agreement," replied Senator Brown, "and it was deemed best to put it into law so that it would not be affected by the changing city administrations. No matter how much indebtedness there is, if a dollar can be reached to be restored later, it will be taken." Senator Brown could not see in the bill any breach of the home rule principle, as the State Constitution requires cities to keep within the 10 per cent. debt limit. It was the duty of the State, he said, to see that cities did not bring about conditions that would result in undue taxation. Senator Brown then asserted that New York City was on the verge of bankruptcy, and that the opponents of the bill seemed to hold that sound principles of finances no longer applied. "I hold," he said, "that such principles are just as necessary to a bankrupt as to a millionaire."

If some permanent policy was not adopted and the city went on running up its debt, he said, it would exceed its debt limit within five years. He disagreed with the opponents of the bill that it would increase taxes.

The same interests which opposed the Pay-as-you-go bill also appeared against the Brennan bill to give to the Water Commissioner, with the approval of the Aldermen, authority to install water meters in all buildings in New York City. For the measure representatives of the Administration, of the Merchants' Association, and of the Citizens Union appeared. Stuart Browne, who represented the United Real Estate Owners' Association, said that such a law would not stop the waste of water, but would invite pestilence, and that it would create a new department to care for meters. He said that the bill was in the interest of the meter manufacturers.

Commissioner Williams of the Department of Water Supply held that, as the law now stands, the city must meter all residences if it desires to meter any, and at once, while under the Brennan bill the work could be extended over a period of years.

The Governor also gave a hearing today on the bill making 80 cents the price of gas in the Thirtieth and Thirty-first Wards of Brooklyn. Robert C. Morris, attorney for the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company, appeared in opposition, while Assemblyman Charles Joseph and Sophie Irene Loeb favored the measure. It was contended by Mr. Morris that the measure was confiscatory, and that bankruptcy would be the result, for the company could not continue to supply gas to residents of the Thirty-first Ward at a price less than it cost to produce it. He estimated that the cost to the company to produce and distribute was 86 cents a thousand feet. This was because the district was sparsely settled. Mr. Joseph contended that the population of the two wards was increasing at an enormous rate, and produced figures to show a net profit of 17 per cent. by the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company.

The Kings County Lighting Company, which supplies the Thirtieth Ward, was not represented.

Whitman Signs Brown Bill Giving City a Share.

ALBANY, May 18.—Governor Whitman today signed the Brown Committee bill, providing that motor vehicle registration fees shall be divided equally between the counties where they are collected and the State at large. The law, which became effective immediately, was drafted with a view to lightening the burdens of New York City taxpayers. The automobile registration receipts last year were $1,913,175, of which New York City contributed $677,399. It has been estimated that the receipts for the current year will be more than $2,500,000. Under the old statute all of these registration fees were used for State Highway purposes. Under the new law the up-State counties' shares must be devoted to highway work, but New York City's share of the receipts is to be turned in to the general city fund.

Widens Work of City College.

ALBANY, May 18.—Governor Whitman today approved the Fertig bill under which the College of the City of New York may grant vocational diplomas and degrees. The measure also authorizes the institution to extend special privileges and educational advantages to non-matriculated students.

NEEDS $150,000,000 IN NEW REVENUE

TREASURY IN GOOD SHAPE

Internal Revenue Receipts Run $31,000,000 Ahead of What Was Expected.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Secretary McAdoo today submitted to Chairman Kitchin of the House Ways and Means Committee and Chairman Simmons of the Senate Finance Committee revised estimates of the Government's receipts and expenditurs for the remainder of the current fiscal year and the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, tending to show that much less new revenue will have to be raised to meet the bill for preparedness and other large contemplated expenditures than had been supposed.

About $150,000,000 in additional revenue will have to be provided during the coming year, Mr. McAdoo said. This is less by $75,000,000 than the most conservative members of Congress calculated at the outset of the session would be needed. All the additional revenue will come from taxes on incomes, inheritances, and munitions, in accordance with a plan approved last week by President Wilson.

News of the condition of the Treasury came as a pleasant surprise to members of the Ways and Means Committee, who have been pondering for weeks on the framing of revenue measures. A meeting of the Democratic members of the committee quickly followed the return of Mr. Kitchin to the capital, and later he announced that the revenue raising plan would be brought into shape within two weeks and that the House would begin to consider it immediately after the national conventions.

It is probable that all the revenue measures, including provision for preparedness revenues, a tariff commission, and the encouragement of the dyestuffs industry, will be included in an omnibus bill. The President is understood to favor that plan.

See Chance to Adjourn Early.

Solution of the revenue problem, which as a result of the conference today appears to be in sight, will go far, Mr. Kitchin believes, toward making an early adjournment of Congress possible. He told the Ways and Means conferees during the meeting that nothing would prevent him putting the legislative program through the House so as to be ready to adjourn on Aug. 1. The Senate, however, may delay adjournment by prolonged debate on some of the big measures.

Secretary McAdoo's figures showed that the balance in the general fund, exclusive of disbursing officers' credits, probably would be $150,000,000 at the end of the present fiscal year, and $13,500,000 at the end of the fiscal year 1917. This estimate included expenditures likely to be made for the proposed increase in the standing army on the basis of the conference measure passed last night by the Senate, and expenditures which probably will be made next year on the naval program now before Congress.

In addition to preparedness measures, the revised estimate presented by Mr. McAdoo included liberal provisions for good roads, rural credits, and expenditures to prevent and cope with floods.

In making up the estimates the additional cost to the country of preparedness during 1917 was placed at from $90,000,000 to $100,000,000, a figure probably considerably less than appropriations to be authorized by Congress, but approximating the sum which actually would be spent during the year under the authorization.

An estimate compiled by Mr. McAdoo when Congress convened last December showed a deficit of $62,000,000 in the general fund June 30, 1917, instead of the $13,500,000 balance in the present estimate. The previous estimate contemplated the extension of the emergency revenue tax to the end of the fiscal year of 1917. The emergency measure expires by limitation Dec. 31 next, and in compiling the revised estimates Mr. McAdoo figured on eliminating the stamp tax features of the measure from July 1 next.

Internal Revenue Increases.

The $62,000,000 deficit which seemed likely when Congress convened was estimated on a basis that did not include provisions for good roads, rural credits, or flood expenditures, all of which are included in the revised estimate. It was then figured that Congress would have to raise $112,000,000 by additional legislation to bring the general fund balance up to the necessary $50,000,000 at the end of the next fiscal year. At today's conference Mr. McAdoo told Messrs. Simmons and Kitchin and Representatives Hull and Rainey, who accompanied them, that should Congress provide $150,000,000 additional revenue during 1917 the general fund balance at the end of the fiscal year of 1917 would be approximately $163,500,000.

Increases in Treasury receipts have been most marked in the Internal Revenue Department. Ordinary revenues, placed at $272,000,000 for the fiscal year 1916 in the estimate of last December, will approximate $303,000,000, an increase of $31,000,000. Next year's ordinary revenue receipts were placed in the previous estimate at about $265,000,000; in the revised estimate at about the same figure as this year's.

Revenue from the income tax will go above $100,000,000 this year, Secretary McAdoo estimates, and certainly above $105,000,000 next year. The previous estimate had placed this revenue at $85,000,000 and $90,000,000, respectively.

CITY TO SAVE ON STEEL.

Contracts to be Let for Subway Supplies Before Prices Go Higher.

Because of the rapid and continuous advance in steel, the Public Service Commission intends to enter the market at once and so discount any further rise. The commission announced yesterday that it would on June 5 open bids for about 90,000 tons of structural steel. Bids will be advertised for at once. Bids that have been opened recently showed a range in price of from $85 to $120, and the June contract will call for about $8,000,000 worth of steel.

The commission will buy this steel now, and the construction contractors will merely put in bids for the erection, and not for furnishing the steel.

The contractor must be prepared to deliver the steel, or any part of it, within six months after the drawings have been furnished to him. The commission will finish all the drawings on or before Aug. 1, 1918.

FEARS NEW RUSSIAN POLICY.

Editor Bernstein Hopes, However, Jews May Gain Treaty Rights.

In today's issue of The American Hebrew, edited by Herman Bernstein, a statement appears in which Mr. Bernstein comments on the Russian Premier and the proposal for a new commercial treaty between the United States and Russia.

"In many quarters the hope has been expressed recently that Mr. Francis, the new American Ambassador to Russia, may succeed in making a new commercial treaty between the United States and Russia," says Editor Bernstein's article. "In pro-Russian quarters it is believed the passport question is no longer to be taken into consideration in the adjustment concerning the treaty.

"In American spheres it is believed Russia's very alliance with such civilized countries as England and France will dictate to the Russian Government in its own interests to cease discriminating against American citizens upon religious grounds in the passport question.

"Even among American Jews there are many who hold that Russia is perhaps ready to yield to the United States now that the pale of settlement is practically abolished. The fact remains that the pale of settlement as it existed before is no more, and the entire Russian passport system will have to be revised, thus making it possible for Russia to yield to the United States without any loss of dignity. And it would seem that Russia, in her efforts to secure the sympathy of the greatest neutral power, would now avail herself of this opportunity to remove the differences between the United States and Russia.

"But the news that comes from Russia indicates that the Russian Government is not yet ready to abandon its policy of blindness. It seems that the new Russian Premier, M. Sturmer, notorious for his reactionary tendencies, is determined to resume his anti-Jewish policy. The Premier's attitude toward the Jewish question may also be seen from his stand concerning the Labor Party's bill in behalf of the oppressed nationalities in Russia.

"The new American Ambassador has a most difficult task before him. If, under these circumstances, he should nevertheless succeed in convincing Russia that her policy is one of narrowness and short-sightedness, he will achieve a triumph for America and at the same time indirectly render a great service to the Russian people."

FOREIGN TRADE GROWING.

Large Increase in American Commerce Shown by Customs Figures.

Official figures relating to March foreign commerce given out yesterday at the Custom House showed that exports from here in the month made a new high record for a single month, their value being $228,126,943, compared with $125,106,034 in March, 1915. There also was a marked increase in the volume of imports in March over the two preceding months of the current year. The entries for the period were set down at $116,193,961, against $90,433,121 in March of last year.

Shipments of war munitions, explosives, powder, firearms, and other military supplies swelled the March exports to Europe. Their value, including all classes of general merchandise, amounted to $191,577,378, while in March, 1915, the total was $101,184,591. England's purchases here in March reached the high total of $93,229,708, or about three times those of the corresponding month a year ago. French shipments were reported at $52,889,639 in March of this year, compared with $23,760,687 in the same period of 1915. Russian purchases shipped to European ports in March reached $10,469,277, or $7,000,000 more than in March, 1915. No exports were recorded to Austria-Hungary or Germany.

March exports to South America were put down at $10,842,174, a gain of more than $1,000,000 compared with March of last year. Brazil led as a buyer of American merchandise, that country's share of the outward movement for the month being $3,167,787. North American shipments covering Canada, West Indies, and Central America footed up $13,154,163, a gain of nearly $6,000,000 compared with March, 1915. Asiatic shipments in the period were $5,216,660, and in March, 1915, $3,164,947.

BRYANT PARK NEVER SO FINE

Times Square's Breathing Spot a Joy to Many Thousands.

Never has Bryant Park looked so well as today. In two years it has been restored as one of the beauty spots of Manhattan Island. There is not a dead branch on any tree; the grass is greener and richer than in years, and several hundred bushes and shrubs newly planted impart a rural charm to parts of the square formerly bare and devoid of beauty.

The great circular lawn in the centre was so worn that Commissioner Ward had it plowed up a year ago and new seed planted. A wire fence now protects it.

The trees unfortunately are neither as numerous nor so luxuriant as some time ago, years of neglect and poor soil having caused many of the best to decay. Of the fine old trees only two big poplars and three or four elms remain. The graceful maples that grew at the center have disappeared.

The growth of business in the neighborhood is reflected in the increasing use of the park. Hundreds of employes from the adjacent buildings have made it a noon-hour resort and on sunshiny days the benches are invariably filled with men and women who enjoy the open air in the little bit of country close to Times Square.

BIDS FOR 14TH ST. SUBWAY.

Contract Let for Another Section in Eastern District.

Bids for the construction of Section 1, Route 8, of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern District rapid transit road were opened yesterday by the Public Service Commission. This section extends from Sixth Avenue under Fourteenth Street to near Irving Place. The bids were: Booth & Flynn, Limited, $2,527,295; Patrick McGovern & Co., $2,698,545; MacArthur Brothers Co., $2,746,028; Oscar Daniels Co., $2,770,000; Smith, Hauser & MacIsaac, Inc., $2,777,000; Degnon Contracting Co., $3,063,000; Rodgers & Hagerty, Inc., $3,130,000; J. F. Cogan Co., $3,183,000; Underpinning and Foundation Co., $3,434,000.

The commission has awarded to the Mason & Hanger Company, Inc., the lowest of eleven bidders, at $1,847,174.40, the contract for that portion of the line under North Seventh Street and Metropolitan Avenue from Bedford Avenue to Manhattan Avenue, Williamsburg. This is Section 4 of Route 8. The contract now goes to the Board of Estimate for approval. The highest bid was $2,727,246.50 from the Underpinning and Foundation Company.

Bids for the two remaining underground sections of the line will be opened next week.

TO CONSOLIDATE TERMINALS

Service Board Grants Permit for Uniting of Brooklyn Concerns.

The Public Service Commission issued an order yesterday granting the application of the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal for permission to issue stock and acquire and hold stock of the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal, incorporated June 22 1906, as a navigation company, and the East River Terminal Railroad. The petitioning company was incorporated Nov. 4, 1915, as a freight terminal company. The order grants it the power to exercise its own franchise and those of the two corporations with which it is now merged.

The opinion upon which the commission based the order was made by Commissioner William Hayward. It sets forth that the navigation company has since its incorpartion in 1900 operated under lease an extensive freight terminal station in Brooklyn, and handled 1,000,000 tons of freight in 1914 for more than 1,200 shippers and 1,400 consignees.

REFERENDUM FOR RESALE PRICE PLAN

UPHOLD PRODUCER'S RIGHT

Proposal to Give Federal Trade Commission Power to Punish Price Cutting Fails.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A preliminary count in a referendum submitted to its members by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States shows that the recommendation in favor of legislation to permit the maintenance of resale prices "under proper restrictions" has been carried by more than a two-thirds vote. Many of those who indorsed this recommendation also voted in favor of a second recommendation authorizing the Federal Trade Commission to prevent predatory price cutting, but there was not the requisite two-thirds vote to commit the National Chamber to the second proposal.

The vote will be canvassed formally at a meeting of the Executive Committee on May 25. Forty-one States, Alaska, Hawaii, the District of Columbia, and the American Chamber of Commerce in Paris, France, were represented in the vote. The number of organizations actually voting was 354. In many instances the vote in particular local organizations was close.

Organizations each having from one to ten votes, according to their membership, voted for or against the recommendations that:

1. There should be Federal legislation permitting the maintenance of resale prices, under proper restrictions, on identified merchandise for voluntary purchase, made and sold under competitive conditions. In favor were 693, with 237 opposed. This recommendation was carried by a two-thirds vote.

2. Federal legislation should take the form of an amendment to the Trade Commission act defining the conditions under which price cutting is an unfair method of competition and authorizing the Federal Trade Commission to prevent such price cutting in interstate and foreign commerce. In favor were 549, with 289 opposed. This recommendation was not carried, lacking the necessary two-thirds vote.

According to Elliott H. Goodwin, Secretary of the National Chamber, there were ten members of the committee which submitted the report. Its Chairman was Paul T. Cherington, Assistant Professor of Marketing in the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. The majority recommendation favoring legislation permitting price maintenance was signed by seven members. Two of them, however, modified their assent by filing a supplementary report. It recommended that injurious price cutting be included in the scope of the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission over unfair methods of competition. Three members of the committee presented a minority report, being "unable to approve of the principle of price maintenance as being in the public interest."

The conclusion of the majority were that the advantages of price maintenance are partly economic and partly social. According to the view of the majority, a properly regulated system of price maintenance on identified merchandise made and sold under competitive conditions would put the emphasis in competition upon quality and service, while at the same time it provided adequate protection against extortion. Price maintenance under these conditions, they reasoned, would preserve the social advantage of an adequate incentive to invent and devise new products and prevent monopolistic control of production processes by powerful distributers.

It is further argued that price maintenance under these conditions would preserve the social advantages of such distribution conveniences as are represented by neighborhood stores and by small but skillful merchants. In some trades, they say, it is the sole guarantee of the preservation of the accepted system of distribution; for instance, it assures the preservation of book stores as individual enterprises, though if the social value of such factors as these is less than their economic cost they are not worth preserving.

The right of the producer to set resale prices is an accepted principle of business law, say the majority members, although it has been restricted recently in this country by close decisions of the Supreme Court, none of which was decided on the basis of the general principle alone. They believe that in the long run the public interest will be best served by legislation specifically permitting this method of doing business in identified articles made and sold under competitive conditions.

The supplementary report proposed to insert in Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission act in statutory language provisions which would have the following effect:

"In regard to products that are identified in their sale to the public by name, brand, or trade mark, and that are made and sold under competitive conditions: No merchant, firm, or corporation shall offer such articles for sale at a price other than that stipulated by the producer for the original sale of the articles at retail, (provided the producer has given due notice of such price to the retailer by mark upon the article or otherwise,) with the purpose or effect of making it unprofitable for other retailers to handle said articles, promoting the sale of a substitute or imitation, attracting trade away from competitors, where the result is to injure the reputations of the said articles or the good-will of their producers or materially to impair the general distribution of said articles."

CONFER WITH PIER STRIKERS

Morgan Line to Reply to Proposals Made by Union.

A conference at Pier 49 in the North River yesterday between representatives of the Longshoremen's Union, Manager C. W. Jungen of the Morgan Line, and State Mediators failed to reach an agreement satisfactory to both parties. But it was declared after the meeting that it is expected a settlement of some kind would be reached in a few days. Mr. Jungen would not divulge the nature of what was discussed in the conference.

"We did not come to a conclusion of any kind," he said. "Things are proceeding very well. Only today several of my old men came back and talked things over."

T. V. O'Connor, President of the Longshoremen's Union, said that his side had made proposals to the company and expected counterproposal today. He was confident that the strike would be over in a few days. R. S. Stubbs, General Freight Agent of the Southern Pacific Railroad, declared that his company was not worrying over the situation in any way, and that even failing a settlement a short time would see them adjusted to meet any sort of conditions which the strike could impose.

"In the places of the 1,400 men who walked out," he said, "there are now fully 800 at work. These new men are taking hold very rapidly and keeping us cleared up. The embargo, of course, will hold until we are certain that lifting it will not tie us up at this port."

Lehigh Valley Boats to Run.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad announced yesterday it had taken the necessary steps to appeal from the recent decision of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania to the United States Supreme Court in its Great Lakes line case. The District Court dismissed the railroad's petition for a permanent injunction against the enforcement of the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission divorcing the Lehigh Valley's lakes line from the rail line. The management said there was every reason to believe the company's lakes line service will continue to be operated during the 1916 period of navigation and until the questions involved in the appeal have been finally settled.

An Improvement in Deliveries.

While there has been some improvement in the freight situation and the mills out of town are able to make better time in getting their goods to the market, a lot of time is still lost in the shipment of merchandise. For a distance as short as 300 miles it takes thirty days for a mill to make delivery to this city. Only a short time ago however, it was no uncommon thing to have the time six weeks for the same journey.

⁂

Collections Are Good.

The credit bureau of a local association of ready-to-wear manufacturers is not having much to do in the way of collections these days. From this it is taken that payments on the whole are prompt. One of the principal reasons for this satisfactory condition is, of course, that the retailers are anxious to get merchandise and they realize that their credit standing must be of the best in order to have their orders accepted.

Dyes Will Make No Difference.

Whether or not the promised shipments of German dyes come into this country, selling agents can see no possibility of a decline in woolen values. Even if the war should end in the near future and prices of dyes return to their normal levels, there would still be little effect on the cost of manufacturing piece goods. In a standard sixteen-ounce blue serge the cost of dyeing with American-made color stuffs is approximately 18 cents. Normally the cost would be 7 cents. Any decline in dye prices will soon be made up by the increased cost of wool.

Unevenness Is the Trouble.

While the range of colors and the amounts produced by the American dye makers are not wholly satisfactory to buyers the chief trouble at present seems to be in getting even colors. In other words, when a ten-barrel shipment is made each barrel may yield a different shade of the color. The dye manufacturers who receive complaints on this score answer them by saying that the same formula is used in every instance, but the results obtained by the dyers do not bear them out. An explanation is offered that while the processes used may be the same the ingredients may not always be standard.

Large Staple Business Placed.

From statements made by sellers who deal with the representative clothing houses, it would appear as if close to 50 per cent. of the staple piece goods, desired for next Spring had been bought months ago. Since then there have been reorders, so that very near the bulk of the staples required by the clothing trade, or at least the representative part of it, has already been committed. Selling agents are not disposed to take orders for delivery too far in advance, and December of this year is considered a good limit. Ordinarily at this time commitments are made on serges for delivery in January and February of the next year.

Japanese Silks Recovering.

The Yokohama raw silk market continues steady at the levels reached in the rise of about $15 a picul that took place at the close of last week as a result of good buying for American account. Sales for the week amounted to 5,000 bales, with stocks left at 11,000. Canton reports that the third crop has resulted favorably, promising 10,000 to 11,000 bales, against 8,000 last year. This will partly make up the deficiency of the first two crops. The quality of the silk is said to be good, and sellers are more anxious to meet buyers than they have been. The high cost of exchange and the big price ideas of the dealers have practically closed the Shanghai market to foreign buyers. Business in Italian silks is confined principally to stocks held in this market. Little change is told of in the local situation.

Openwork Lace Hose Sold Up.

One of the features of business in the better class of domestic novelty hosiery is that the demand for openwork lace hose, such as is made on French lace machines, has been so large that no further orders can be booked, even for single pairs. There is not much of this kind of machinery in operation in this country, and the machines that are in use are said to be engaged for the next eight or nine months. Among the new things recently put on the market are full-length, accordion-ribbed sport stockings for women. They retail around $6 a pair, and are selling well in all colors. Rose and Copenhagen blue are the most favored, however, being bought to match the silk sweaters that are now so popular for sports wear. The new things in men's hose include neat accordion effects in heather mixtures, as well as variations of the Richelieu stripe idea. The latter are shown in a wide range of colors.

Says Silk Prices Are Too High.

Specific instances were given yesterday by a prominent local jobbing buyer of silks of where prices asked for these goods, in his judgment, were higher than the production costs of the mills warranted. He told of one case where a certain mill wanted to get rid of an odd lot of taffetas, which it had been holding at $1.20. To do this the goods were offered at a reduction of 10 cents a yard to the buyer in question. He refused them, and yesterday said that they were of no better quality than some he had bought several months back, before the rapid rise in raw silk, at 51 cents a yard. He told of another manufacturer's desire to get rid of some crepes, which were regularly held at $1 a yard, wholesale. For several days the goods were offered at 90 cents, and were then put back to $1. According to the jobber, these silks could have been sold at 75 or 80 cents a yard with a good margin of profit.

Gray Goods Prices Very Firm.

The steady rise in cotton is adding still more strength to prices in the local gray goods market, as was manifested yesterday in the way the mills turned down bids under current quotations on several constructions of goods. Business was again of a straggling nature, printcloth sales being confined to the more popular of the staple numbers, and largely for spot deliveries. Thirty-nine-inch 68-72s moved at 6½ cents, while sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported at 5⅝ cents. There is a growing tendency on the part of mills to ask an eighth more for the latter goods. The bagmakers have apparently filled their sheeting requirements for the time being, as they did not show the interest in the market that they did in the early part of the week. Closing printcloth prices were:

39-inch, 72-76s	7c	38½-inch, 64-56s	5⅜c
39-inch, 68-72s	6½c	38½-inch, 60-52s	5¼c
39-inch, 56-44s	4¾c	38½-inch, 60-48s	5c
39½-inch, 64-64s	5⅞c	27-inch, 64-60s	*4c

*Asked.

Wonder Why They Don't Come In.

In view of the fact that several prominent buyers of gray goods, particularly printcloths, have recently expressed their intention of coming into the market in a large way as soon as they are convinced that everything is "right," some sellers of these cloths are wondering why they don't come in now. With the mills sold up as they are and cotton going up steadily for all positions they contend that no recession in cloth values can be hoped for, and that, on the other hand, the longer the buyers hold off the more surely the market will go against them when they do come in. It is thought by more than one seller that the next buying movement of any size will bring rises of at least a quarter of a cent a yard on the most used constructions, and that the new prices will be recorded on the basis of 6 cents for 38½-inch 64-60s. Possibly it is for this reason that the buyers hesitate about starting something. From all accounts several million yards of goods will be bought when the movement does start.

SAYS WAR SAVED OUR TRADE

Penrose Declares Free Trade Legislation Is Menace to Industries.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Free trade legislation is a menace to the silk and textile industries, declared United States Senator Penrose today in an address at the closing session of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers. These industries, he said, are among the first in this country to feel the effects of European importations under unrestricted trade conditions.

American business, he declared, would have witnessed the most disastrous period in its history had it not been for the war, which brought about a cessation of shipments from abroad and permitted business men in this country to turn out products without unfair competition.

Senator Penrose told the delegates that the impression among business men of this country that trade at the end of the war would be resumed under conditions existing prior to hostilities was a false idea. Unless stern measures are taken in regard to the free trade, he said, hosiery and underwear manufacturers throughout the country will witness an alarming upheaval in the trade.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The second mass meeting under the auspices of the Retailers' Council of the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States will be held at the Hotel Astor tonight at 8 o'clock. The subjects to be discussed are the evil of price cutting, the position of the small business man, and how the Stephens bill will benefit the retail merchant. There will be six speakers of prominence. William A. Hollingsworth, Chairman of the Council, will preside.

Statistics compiled by the Silk Association of America show that the foreign invoice value of dutiable silks imported at the customs districts of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Connecticut, Chicago, Ohio and San Francisco in the three months ended March 31, 1916, amounted to $10,545,403, compared with $6,999,441 in the corresponding period of 1915. The duties collected totaled, respectively, $4,807,438 and $3,172,258.

Importers at many out of town ports will be given an opportunity, beginning next week, to lay their customs troubles before members of the Board of General Appraisers. Judge Brown will start tomorrow for New Orleans and Galveston, where classification and reappraisement protest cases will be heard, while Judge Cooper will give hearings in San Antonio, El Paso, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. United States Attorney John J. Mulvaney will represent the Department of Justice in the proceedings.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Golf Scorers and Cameras Among the Articles Passed On.

Happel & McAvoy won before the Board of General Appraisers yesterday in a contention for lower duty on golf scorers or recorders. The articles were in the shape of a watch and of the same size. Pressing on the stem makes them record the points made by a golf player. The scorers were in chief value of metal, nickel plated. The Collector classified the goods as metal articles carried on or about the person, and took 60 per cent. duty. The testimony by the importers was that the scorer was used at no other time than during the game, when it was carried in the pocket. Judge Sullivan sustained the claim that entry accrued at 20 per cent. under the provision for "manufactures of metal not specially provided for."

William L. Monro, Pittsburgh, imported Sheffield plated chased border and centre tea trays and plated epergnes with four arms and five glasses. Assessment was made at 50 per cent. as silver-plated ware, whereas the importer claimed free entry as artistic antiquities. As it was shown to the satisfaction of the board that the articles were over 100 years old, the Collector was reversed.

The board, which of late has been devoting attention to the classification of cameras of different kinds, yesterday made a decision affecting the so-called enlarging type. The Custom House return was at 35 per cent. as optical instruments, while duty was claimed at 15 per cent. as photographic cameras. The testimony showed that, besides their enlarging function, the cameras in question were capable of use in taking original pictures. The board reached the conclusion that the articles were not optical instruments, and ordered a reversal.

J. I. Gavin & Co. were upheld in a claim regarding the duty rate on infants' capes ornamented with beads. The Collector asserted that the capes were appliqued, and on that account took duty at 60 per cent. The importers claimed that the articles were not appliqued, and that they were properly dutiable as silk wearing apparel at the rate of 50 per cent. Judge Howell decided that the putting on of the beads did not make the goods appliqued, and ordered a reversal of the higher rate.

Favor Ruhl & Co. imported varnishes put up in bottles of less than two and a half pounds gross weight, similar in all material respects to other varnishes allowed entry at some ports at 10 per cent. The Collector was reversed in his levy of 20 per cent. under the chemical compound provision.

G. Sidenberg & Co., Nottingham and New York, won in a controversy over the value to be placed on silk Brussels netting for dutiable purposes. The merchandise was entered as worth in Nottingham at the date of shipment, April 8 last, 22 pence per yard. Appraiser Sague raised this value. The Collector took higher duties and the firm appealed. Judge Howell held that the entered value was correct, and ordered a reliquidation.

Judge McClelland, in a reappraisement decision involving white and colored handkerchiefs, approved advances aggregating 120 per cent. The goods were shipped to New York by Horsche Sutter, Appenzell, Switzerland. Each handkerchief was entered as having a value of 1.25 francs, whereas the General Appraiser approved the local Appraiser's action in returning the goods at 2.75 francs each. Unless a reviewing board cuts the advance below 75 per cent. the handkerchiefs will be seized.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

CHAS. S. BRYAN, residing at New Windsor, Orange County, N. Y., formerly a Wall Street stock broker, and Treasurer of the Interstate Chemical Corporation, has filed a petition in bankruptcy here, with liabilities of $281,672, and cash assets of $39. All of the liabilities are for indorsing notes of the Interstate Chemical Corporation. Among the creditors are the Lincoln Trust Company, $149,672, secured by bonds and stock of the Interstate Chemical Corporation, and a note of the Gennopert Manufacturing Company; D. J. Thilmes, Nyack, $25,000, secured by real estate; F. B. & S. Tilgham, $7,000 secured; Charlotte National Bank of Charlotte, N. C., $17,500; National Bank of Baltimore, $37,500. Mr. Bryan was a member of the New York Stock Exchange for fifteen years, and was a partner in the firm of Sharp & Bryan, who made an assignment on Aug. 5, 1903, and afterward made a settlement with creditors and resumed in November, 1903. The Interstate Chemical Corporation was an agricultural chemical company of New York and Charleston, S. C., and was a combination of several companies in the South. It was organized about five years ago.

MAX WASSERMAN, manufacturer of undergarments at 24 East Twenty-first Street, has made an assignment to Arthur H. Hawkins. A petition in bankruptcy was also filed against him by these creditors: Ira Janowsky, $262; Clifford & Lawton, Inc., $135, and Sherman & Sons' Co., $336. Liabilities are $9,000 and assets $4,000.

HOFFMAN & SACHS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Nellie Hoffman and Annie Sachs, comprising the firm of Hoffman & Sachs, dealer in millinery at 1,751 Amsterdam Avenue, by these creditors: Abraham Chaimovitz, $193; Jennie Sadler, $192, and Max Feist, $243.

MAURICE M. RINGLER, real estate broker of 42 West 117th Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $9,293 and no assets. The largest creditors are Harry A. Wilkus, $2,560, and Edmund Wright, as assignee of Wilkus, $2,500.

FRED J. WHITE, designer of 26 West Ninety-seventh Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $834 and no assets.

JOHN DAVIS, a stationary engineer of 254 West 123d Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $212 for rent and assets of $6 cash.

ROSENZWEIG BROTHERS, INC., dealers in diamonds and jewelry at 15 Maiden Lane, have filed schedules showing liabilities of $66,127 and assets of $34,440, consisting of stock, $4,200; fixtures, $100; accounts, $29,625, and notes, $465. Among the creditors are Silas Musliner, $8,367, and Keystone Watch Case Co., $4,846.

W. L. SERGEANT & CO., (Corporation,) of 50 Church Street has filed schedules showing liabilities of $4,638 and assets of $1,468.

SAMUEL RUSKIN, dealer in hardware and housefurnishing goods at 1,626 Madison Avenue, has filed schedules showing liabilities of $5,108 and assets of $2,008 in stock.

A. W. DE LONG & CO.—Creditors of A. W. De Long & Co., manufacturers of house trim at 88 Alexander Avenue, are to receive a dividend of 18 per cent. A petition was filed against the corporation on Feb. 9, 1912, and claims amounting to $16,758 were filed.

AMERICAN REAL ESTATE CO.—Judge Mayer has ordered the following officers of the American Real Estate Company to appear for examination before United States Commissioner Alexander Gilchrist, Jr.: Edward B. Boynton, President; William B. Hinckley, Vice President; Austin L. Babcock, Secretary and Vice President, and Robert T. Lingley, Treasurer.

DR. JOHN GRANT LYMAN.—Judge Mayer has ordered the Nyack National Bank to open the box or vault in the name of John Grant Lyman, trustee, and surrender the contents to John L. Lyttle, the receiver. Judge Mayer also ordered the receiver to deliver to Lyman all his personal wearing apparel in possession of the receiver, except a fur overcoat, and denied Lyman's request for personal effects other than clothing.

KNELL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, printers' and lithographers' supplies, at 115 Nassau Street, has made an assignment to Wm. J. Barker. The company was incorporated on Jan. 16, 1912, with a capital stock of $10,000, and William M. Place is President.

ISAAC POLONSKY, dealer in cloaks and suits at 58 Division Street, has made an assignment to Morris M. Lessler.

THE RUSZITO COMPANY, INC., dressmaker and furrier at 7 East Forty-eighth Street, has filed schedules showing liabilities of $75,475 and assets of $42,580.

Out of Town.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 18.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Spence & Co., Inc., of Boston, millinery, at the instance of J. J. Silverman, representing three creditors. An assignment for the benefit of creditors and preferential payments are set forth.

Frank Goldman, trading as the Beauty Waist Shop, Boston, has been petitioned into bankruptcy at the instance of J. J. Silverman, representing three creditors. An assignment for the benefit of creditors and preferential payments are claimed.

The Improving Bond Market has brought about a demand for sound 6% Public Utility Bonds that is rapidly consuming the available supply.

With new financing being done by 5% Bonds, the market value of the 6% Bonds should materially advance. Their present purchase is therefore especially advisable.

We offer and recommend the First Mortgage 6% Bonds, due serially 1919 to 1933, of a sound Public Utility Company, to yield about Big Move in Reading Leads List —European Liquidation of Our Securities.

Enough happened in the stock market yesterday to make the trading community, in searching for the explanation of the day's occurrences, abandon talk of general influences, such as the possible early coming of peace, to busy itself with real or supposed developments in the affairs of individual corporations. The price movement was interesting in that the railroads as a group again came into the leadership and showed gains much larger than those in the industrials, both sharing in the upturn after several days of reaction.

The interest in the rest of the market, however, was subordinated to that in Reading, which outdid all others, both in strength and activity. An advance of $10 per share or 20 per cent. in a railroad stock in two days was a sufficiently unfamiliar incident in late market experience to make it the centre of discussion for the day. Of facts accounting for the advance there were few; of rumors there were a plenty. These are set forth elsewhere, and it is sufficient here to point out that the ability of the Reading Directors to do something more for its shareholders than the payment of the dividends which the company has been disbursing has long been recognized. If the Directors have decided that the time is opportune for some special distribution or for some capital readjustment no authoritative information to that effect was available to the market yesterday, although rumors which centred around this possibility did most to support the day's speculation in the stock.

If the advance which occurred in the railroad shares and more particularly in Reading had taken place over a long period instead of recurring suddenly it is probable that no one would have thought it necessary to look further for the explanation than the excellent earnings which the railroads of the country have lately been reporting. They have hardly been adequately reflected in the market of recent weeks, although the good news of this sort has lately been supplemented by some really extraordinary railroad returns. Fear of heavy foreign liquidation should the railroad stocks be bid up has been one of the standing explanations of the apparent reluctance to translate these earnings into market results in the shape of an advance in prices. That fear, if it really had much to do with the matter, was evidently discarded yesterday in the case of more than one of the prominent railroad shares. This might be due to the theory that the liquidation in these stocks had been completed through the exhaustion of the foreign holdings of them, which would hardly accord with known facts; to the theory that the end of the war was near at hand, with an inferable cessation of foreign selling, which cannot be established on known facts; or to the compromise theory that conditions favoring the railroads are sufficiently good to offset the effect of further possible selling from abroad. This last assumption would at least fit the facts so far as they have to do with the present earning power of the railways, and it would also be in keeping with past experience, which has shown that foreign selling, though conducted on a large scale, was not effective in preventing a forward movement when this seemed warranted by conditions at home.

Through one of these theories the market was again linked with the peace talk which has been current, but there was nothing new in this particular field of discussion, which still lies in the realm of conjecture. It is worth noting in this connection, however, that the theory that foreign liquidation of American securities will end with the coming of peace is definitely provable only on the assumption that by the time peace comes Europe will have no more of our securities to sell. American securities have been sold by Europe not because they have seemed any less attractive than they formerly seemed, for as a matter of fact they have in some respects become more rather than less attractive, but because Europe needed the proceeds of the securities. She may still be in need of funds obtained in this way when the war ceases. The prospect is not one which need be disturbing from our point of view, for never before was the country so well equipped to take over these foreign holdings as it has been of late and is now.

LONDON MARKET FIRM.

Money Plentiful Despite Large Purchases of Treasury Bills.

LONDON, May 18.—Money was plentiful today despite large purchases of Treasury bills. Discount rates were dull.

The firmness continued on the Stock Exchange with special strength in Brazilian issues due to the improvement in Brazil's trade and finances. Home rails and special mines were active and copper stocks strong while Japanese bonds, the war loan and a majority of the gilt-edged securities turned against buyers and the stock appeared to be short in most instances. American securities were dull, but steady.

Trading Active on Paris Bourse.

D., L. & W. SEEKS ACCOUNTING

Sues Morris & Essex Railroad Over Bonds of Leased Company.

TRENTON, N. J., May 19.—The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad brought suit in the Court of Chancery today for an accounting of moneys expended for the Morris & Essex Railroad, leased by the Lackawanna in 1868.

The suit avers that the Morris & Essex refused payment of $9,380,000 bonds as required by the lease. It is also set up that since July, 1914, $685,682 has been spent on the Morris & Essex for improvements, and payment has not been made.

The Farmers' Loan & Trust Company is a co-defendant with the Morris & Essex, the allegation being that the company has refused certificate of some $3,000,000 Morris & Essex bonds under a mortgage of 1900.

On April 24, 1915, stockholders of the Morris & Essex brought suit against the Lackawanna for an accounting and to compel the payment of $1,500,000 alleged to be due in dividends. It was alleged that the Lackawanna had charged expenses against the road which, under the lease, should have been borne by the Lackawanna itself, with the result that the Morris & Essex stock guaranteed by the Lackawanna had paid only 7 per cent. in dividends. An annual 1 per cent. additional was claimed for ten years. The case was heard in New Jersey last month. No decision has been rendered. At the last annual meeting the protesting stockholders were successful in ousting the Lackawanna Directors and placing their own board in office, with Adrian H. Larkin as Chairman.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Long Wait Ended.

The declaration of a dividend on Distillers Securities shares yesterday ended a long period of watchful waiting in the commission houses. There was no surprise evident, however, because of the size of the disbursement, and the stock afterward gave small evidence of the stimulus which might be expected to be imparted by a renewed dividend. Previous to each of the three quarterly Directors' meetings before yesterday's, the Street had been entertained with predictions that now a 6 per cent. annual basis would be decided upon. Each time the prophecies had to be taken back with more or less good grace on the part of the prophets, and it was because of this deferred hope, perhaps, that the stock never got far above 50. Everybody has known for months that earnings were large and that ultimate dividends could be expected. A 6 per cent. stock at 53 looks low, but traders evidently have not forgotten that last year the quotation was as low as 6¼ while the highest price of 1914 was 20½.

Woolen and Distillers' Shares.

The income yield on Distillers Securities and American Woolen common stock at the closing prices was almost exactly the same, slightly more than 11 per cent. When woolen shares went on a 5 per cent. basis two months ago the quotation was approximately the same as Distillers' price when the dividend announcement came out yesterday. Since then woolen has gone back. Traders' interpretation of the sagging tendency of the latter has been that the dividend was too new to be considered "solid" and that a period of seasoning would probably have to be gone through with before the stock attained a positive place in the market.

A Railroad Session.

While Reading held the centre of the stage yesterday, and almost monopolized the attention of traders, it was not the only railroad issue to show both strength and activity. It was one of those rare sessions in which the railroad shares acted as though they might furnish opportunities for shrewd traders to make some money. There was almost as much activity in Erie as there was in Crucible Steel, or in Distillers, which adopted a dividend policy yesterday. As for Reading, it supplied such a large proportion of the day's dealings as to leave no room for argument as to the right to leadership. Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Rock Island, Erie, and so on down to the Wabashes proved both popular, and with negligible exceptions, strong. Fifteen of the rails supplied 23 per cent. of the day's dealings on the New York Stock Exchange.

X, the Unknown Value.

One reason that Reading always proves a good speculative medium when it starts going North is that it is almost impossible to get any real information on the company other than that contained in the earnings statements and annual reports. There will be half a dozen life-sized stories floating around the brokerage offices to account for a rise, and no one with any authority can be made to credit or discredit any of them. "I would take on some Reading if I only knew what is back of this rise," said a customer. "Better buy it on account of the mystery," said the broker. "That is the strongest point in favor of any stock in a bull market."

A Doubting Architect.

An amateur designer of market charts made a graphic record of the ups and downs on Midvale Steel from the time that the stock first appeared on the Curb. There was a certain regularity about the diminishing heights of the successive peaks, and a uniformity as to bases that showed the points at which a trader could have sold and bought every few weeks with unerring certainty of profits. The chart ended with a dotted line illustrating the probable course of the next move. The designer, who had made several successful turns in Midvale stock, believed his system to the end of the black line, but he decided against another operation in the market based on the probable move as shown by the doted portion.

The Trend Toward Peace Stocks.

In the stock market yesterday a railroad stock which was inconspicuous in the halcyon days of the market in the war brides was the leader and other rails, whose average price formed the criterion of market movement in the ante-bellum days, followed Reading in activity and were impressively strong. Industrials which were speculative favorites before the war were bought and sold in large amounts. In the stocks selected as mediums of lively speculation only since the war, trading was less active and the speculation much less spirited. The same trend has been noted on several days since peace rumors began to circulate about Wall Street, but yesterday the line of cleavage was more distinct and in some of the larger commission houses there was noted a return to the market of old and wealthy speculators who would have nothing to do with the war market, but are again attracted to securities now that their old favorites show chances of substantial profits.

Good Reports From the West.

James B. Forgan, President of the First National Bank of Chicago, and dean among bankers in his section, was in the city and spoke eloquently of business conditions in the Middle West and optimistically about the future. Mr. Forgan's opinions, authoritative enough of themselves, have been supported by many other expressions of similar purport from interior bankers in a position to know and with ability to judge. The expressions have impressed local bankers the more favorably because latterly they have been in doubt about crop prospects and on that account inclined to advise caution in purchases of rails in the big crop sections. But with these latter advices, it is now a prevalent New York banking opinion that general business has received an impetus which should carry it over a year of crops somewhat below the average. "Business is so good," said a banker recently returned from a long vacation, "that there must be some let-up in the future if for no other reason than that times are too good to last."

Earnings

When you consider the purchase of a high grade railroad bond, for example, don't you look to the earnings of the property for its payment?

A great many people have overlooked this vital principle in making loans on city real estate. Under the Straus Plan of safeguarding such loan, we lay great emphasis on the earnings of the property, requiring that it yield, net, at least two or three times the greatest annual interest charge.

We are now offering first mortgage bonds, secured by the best grade of New York and Philadelphia property, to net 5½%.

DOUBLE PAR REACHED BY READING COMMON

RUMORS OF MELON CUTTING

164,000 Shares, More Than One-fifth of Day's Total, Change Hands—Second Preferred Advances.

The common stock of the Reading Company yesterday fulfilled a prediction made many times in the last ten years and sold at 100, or double par, the equivalent of 200, according to the old system under which the stock was dealt in on a percentage rather than a par value basis. The record high price was reached just before the close of a market session in which the stock had contributed 164,000 shares, or more than a fifth of the day's total, and had advanced from a Wednesday closing at 93. Yesterday's closing price was 99⅝, a gain of 6⅝ points on the day. It compares with 89⅝, par value, the high price previous to this week and a mark reached in 1912.

As in its many spurts of bullish activity in the days before the war, the advance was accompanied by many reports of melon cutting in the shape of extra dividends, increased regular dividends, segregation or distribution of assets, and change of control. Nothing official came out to justify the reports. On the other hand, there was no official denial, and speculators for the rise profited as much from them as if they had been confirmed.

A great deal of the buying was done by a house whose customers speculated heavily in some of the war stocks. That buying did not look substantial. But it was reported on ordinary trustworthy authority that a large block of the stock had recently passed into the hands of a banker long interested in the company and this buying was considered of prime importance, not only as bearing on the melon rumors but as cutting down a floating supply which has long been limited for the reason that Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central own $68,000,000 of the $140,000,000 stock of all classes.

Reading second preferred made a tardy advance to the upward movement in the common but closed at 51, which compares with a high price of 58¾ in 1909. Of the $42,000,000 outstanding of this issue $28,530,000 is owned by the two dominant railroads and in event of melon cutting would participate only on the exercise of the management's privilege to convert the stock into half common and half first preferred. Comporting with the rumors, there were also market gains in Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central.

There was another report to the effect that the management contemplated a distribution of the company's holdings of Jersey Central stock. That report lacked the support of the tape. Not a share of the Reading bonds under which Jersey Central stock is deposited as collateral changed hands.

A banker who is well informed on the affairs of the company prefaced his comments on the company's position by saying that less than a year ago some of the Directors urged a reduction in the dividend. He added that a great change had come over the conditions and prospects of the company since that time. There was no spirit of despondency in the board now, he declared, and the company was in a position to dispose of the Wilkes-Barre Coal stock owned by the Jersey Central in a manner to profit Reading holders, to increase its dividend or distribute other assets. Though disposition of this coal company stock has been ordered by the lower court in a dissolution suit now pending before the United States Supreme Court, the banker insisted that no plan for its disposal or any other extra disbursement had been agreed upon.

At the same time the banker pointed out that the late George F. Baer persistently opposed all plans for extra dividends or distribution of assets. None of the present officers or Directors, it was said, is in a position to exercise such influence now, even if so disposed, and the point was also made that the controversy between anthracite operators and miners has been settled and that new and higher prices for coal have been promulgated. The upshot of it all was that the management was in a position to carry out its long-reported plans of extra disbursement if it considered the time propitious.

MORE GOLD FROM CANADA.

J. P. Morgan & Co. Receive $2,000,000—$10,456,000 in Ten Days.

The inflow of gold from Canada was further increased yesterday through the receipt of $2,000,000 more gold bars by J. P. Morgan & Co. The gold was deposited in the Assay Office and brought the total received in the last ten days up to $10,456,000.

Sterling exchange displayed the most substantial show of strength that had been seen in a fortnight, presumably as the result of the gold imports. Demand bills sold as high as $4.76 3-16, compared with quotations below $4.76 for each previous day of the month. Another element working to cause firmness in the sterling market, according to dealers, was the buying of checks and cable transfers for the purpose of sending to London the proceeds of securities sold on the local market yesterday and the day before.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Reading was the feature of the dealings on the Consolidated Exchange. Its upward movement for a time exerted a favorable sympathetic influence upon other sections of the list, particularly upon the railroad shares. In the late afternoon, however, there was a degree of irregularity, although the general tone continued firm.

SINCLAIR OIL & REFINING CORPORATION
FIRST LIEN 10-YEAR CONVERTIBLE 6% GOLD BONDS

DUE MAY 1, 1926

Price 99½ and accrued interest

Redeemable until May 1, 1917, at 110 and accrued interest; thereafter at 115 and accrued interest
Convertible into stock at $55 per share until May 1, 1917, and thereafter at $57.50 per share
CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

From a letter signed by H. F. Sinclair, President of the Corporation, we summarize as follows:

SECURITY

A first lien, through pledge of securities, on established oil refineries, pipe lines, and producing oil properties and leaseholds in Kansas and Oklahoma, having an estimated value, determined by independent experts, in excess of $40,000,000.

EARNINGS

Net earnings for 12 months beginning May 1, 1916, estimated by experts at over $10,000,000.

SINKING FUND

A minimum annual Sinking Fund of 5% of the total amount of bonds issued, payable semi-annually, first payment of $400,000 due November 1, 1916. In addition 20% of the net earnings in each year after provision for interest and minimum sinking fund payments. Proceeds of the Sinking Fund must be applied to the purchase of bonds through tenders to the Trustee, at or below 110 and interest until May 1, 1917 and thereafter at or below 115 and interest. If tenders sufficient in amount to exhaust the Sinking Fund are not made the balance must be called by lot at these prices.

Based on $10,000,000 net earnings for the next 12 months, the total sinking fund accruing for that period would amount to $2,448,000, equivalent to over 15% of the entire $16,000,000 now issued.

CONVERSION PRIVILEGE

Bonds are exchangeable for stock of the Corporation at $55 per share until May 1, 1917 and thereafter at $57.50 per share. If called, the right to exchange for shares continues for 30 days after date of call.

EQUITY

Followed by 520,000 shares of stock of no par value selling in the open market at about $48 per share.

Based on the above estimate of $10,000,000 net earnings for the next 12 months, the balance applicable to dividends on 520,000 shares of stock, after deduction of all interest and sinking fund payments, will be over $12.50 a share.

Chevrolet Motor Company Stock

The Company's present schedule calls for an output of 96,482 cars in 1916, and to date this schedule has been easily maintained. With this production the company should earn over $8,000,000 in 1916, or about $40 a share on the stock. Already orders are being received from agents for 1917 deliveries and invariably they call for larger allotments than 1916. It is estimated that 150,000 cars will be needed to supply next year's demand and on this output the company should earn close to $70 a share in 1917.

COTTON PRICES SOAR IN HEAVY TRADING

Highest Point Recorded in More Than 40 Years at This Time of the Year.

PEACE RUMORS CAUSE RISE

Every Option on List Now Comfortably Above 13 Cents—Liverpool Reports Gain.

Cotton yesterday showed renewed strength and activity, with trading in heavier volume. The market opened higher, and showed a good tone throughout the whole session, with prices closing around the top, at an advance of 13 to 17 points. Every option on the list is now comfortably above the 13c level, and prices are higher than they have been for more than forty years at this stage of the season.

Liverpool again showed an upward tendency, with prices for spot cotton higher than at any time since the apex of the Sully boom in February, 1904. Cables reported a better demand from spinners, with buying of contracts for old and new crop delivery. The Liverpool quotation for spot cotton was 8.66d for middling, which is equivalent to 17.32 cents.

The impulse of the buying appears to be furnished chiefly by underground rumors of peace. It is hard to tell whence these come, particularly as a wireless message was received from Germany by a local firm yesterday morning saying: "Nothing known here of peace endeavors."

The weather is more settled in the eastern belt, although more or less rain is reported from Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas. Texas wires yesterday stated that conditions were too cold and wet for favorable progress of the cotton crop. Precipitation was reported from about thirty-five stations in Texas, ranging from one-quarter of an inch to nearly three inches, with minimum temperatures ranging from 45 to 76 degrees. A Galveston message which reported a northerly storm, with a velocity of 40 to 60 miles an hour, caused a good deal of buying in the late afternoon, and the highest prices of the day were registered on this spurt.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were steady, 10 to 20 points advance. The local market for spot cotton was steady, 20 points advance, middling 13.35c. Futures closed steady.

DEPOSIT REAL ESTATE BONDS

Reorganization Committee of American Co. Gets $10,000,000.

Bonds of the American Real Estate Company, now in the hands of a receiver, having a face value of more than $10,000,000, have been deposited with the General Committee of Reorganization of the company, according to a statement issued by its Chairman, Lawrence McGuire, yesterday.

"A statement going into the most minute details of the company's business will be made by the receivers, who are now working on the books," said Mr. McGuire. "In the meantime we are engaged in the endeavor to unite all holders of the company's obligations for the purpose of concerted action in avoiding, if possible, a forced judicial sale of its assets, and holding the property for such reasonable and ample time as would ordinarily be taken by individual owners for liquidation."

The bankruptcy proceedings recently instituted do not affect the purpose of the committee, but only emphasize the importance of combined action by creditors.

Edward B. Boynton, President of the American Real Estate Company, said yesterday regarding the statement in the petition of the bankruptcy proceedings against the company, that the assets of the company were valued at $18,000,000 and were subject to mortgages of about $10,000,000.

"As a matter of fact," asserted Mr. Boynton, "the company's balance sheet showing the condition of the finances as of Dec. 31, 1915, gave as the value of the total assets of the company $26,726,331.12, of which amount $24,627,745.93 was not the value of the real estate fixed by officers of the company, but the values placed upon the properties by the committee of real estate experts of unquestioned standing, namely, Joseph P. Day, Pease & Elliman, E. Osborn Smith, J. Romaine Brown Company, Williamson & Bryan, J. Clarence Davies, Burton Thompson & Co., John M. Thompson, and Fish & Marvin.

"Regarding mortgages, there is not a second mortgage against any of the company's properties placed thereon by the company except in one case in which, in connection with securing a large cash deposit made by the lessee under a valuable long term lease, a second mortgage was given.

"Contrary to the intimations that have been given out regarding the payment of bonds and certificates prior to the receivership, such bonds and certificates were redeemed in the ordinary course of business when they became due and payable, and, in fact, all obligations of the company prior to the receivership, which had been presented, have been paid. During the twenty-eight years of the company's operations some $15,000,000 has been returned to the bondholders of the company in principal and interest, and under proper protection and conservation the assets of the company should be amply sufficient to meet the claims of all the creditors."

DISTILLERS' DIVIDEND AGAIN

Securities Corporation to Pay 1 1-2 Per Cent.—War Helps Earnings.

The Distillers' Securities Corporation renewed dividends on the $30,843,481 stock yesterday with a declaration of 1½ per cent. for the current quarter. Payment will be made July 5 to stockholders of record June 3. The Directors also decided at the meeting to cancel $2,000,000 of the 5 per cent. bonds, applying a part of the accumulated cash to this purpose. This action will reduce the amount of bonds outstanding to $12,083,236.

The company's earnings have been large since the war brought about an increased demand for alcohol. It is estimated that the year ending June 30 will show between $3,000,000 and $3,600,000 of revenue available for the stock, equal to between 10 and 12 per cent. The growth of income in the fiscal period is displayed in the official report that $500,000 was produced in May, compared with no more than $18,000 last July from the sale of spirits alone.

The last dividend was one-half of 1 per cent., paid in October, 1912. At yesterday's closing price of 53, the stock on the new dividend basis yielded more than 11 per cent. to the buyer.

LADY STEELE HAD $302,000.

Estate Here Consisted Chiefly of Downtown Business Property.

An appraisal of the property in the United States of Lady Steele, who died on Feb. 6, 1915, the widow of General Sir Thomas Steele, K. C. B., of London, was filed yesterday by Transfer Tax Appraiser Ludden. Her estate in this country at the time of her death was valued at $302,030.

The assets that were taxable were: an undivided one-third interest in each of the following parcels, the interest only being shown: 6-8 Ferry Street, $9,900; 257-265 Lafayette Street and 54-60 Prince Street, $41,250; 53 New Bowery, $1,200; 602-622 Grand Street and 4-6 Tompkins Street, $33,000; 172-174 Broome Street, $14,400; 176-178 Broome Street, $34,500; 1-11 Broome Street, $15,300; 126-128 Clinton Street, $15,600; 22 Beekman Street, $16,200; interest in bulkhead property, pier and wharf, East River, between Grand and Broome Streets, $31,560; total value $212,850, less taxes, leaving a net estate of $268,614. The beneficiaries of the New York estate were: Julian McCarty Steele, George Frederick Steele, and Charles Montagu Steele, the three sons, each receiving $69,538.

The realty was given to Lady Steele under the will of her father, Thomas S. McCarty, who died in 1843.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was very weak yesterday and prices broke 2¾ to 3⅛c from the final of Wednesday under very heavy liquidation and selling on stop loss orders. In the local cash market No. 1 durum was quoted at $1.25; No. 2 hard, $1.24; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.31; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.30, all free on board New York.

OATS.

The oats market was weaker with wheat and corn and under quite general liquidation prompted by favorable reports regarding the crop outlook. There was a moderate export demand with sales of about 100,000 bushels. The local cash market was easy; standard quoted at 51½c; No. 3 white, 49½ to 50c; No. 4 white, 48½ to 49c; fancy clipped white, 51½ to 52½c; ordinary clipped white, 49 to 50½c, all elevator.

COFFEE.

The coffee market experienced a further advance of 7 to 10 points yesterday and prices again made new high records for the season. The upturn was attributed to the continued strength in Brazil and to more aggressive buying on the part of local bulls, as well as covering. The local spot market was inactive, but prices were very firmly held, with Rio 7s quoted at 9¾c. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The market for sugar futures experienced an early decline of 5 to 14 points for the active positions under active liquidation which uncovered stop loss orders. The selling movement was thought to have strengthened the technical position, and late in the session there was active covering as well as new buying, and the market regained most of the loss. Closing quotations were 3 points net higher for May and 1 to 10 points lower for the other positions. Total sales for the day were 18,950 tons. Range of prices:

There was no change in the local market for refined sugar, with prices listed on the basis of 7.65@7.75 by leading refiners, although it was reported that second sugars were available at as low as 7.45. Trading was quiet, and refiners were said to be behind in deliveries, owing to the recent labor disturbances. The local market for raw sugar was easier, with Cuban prices ⅛c lower under sales of between 10,000 and 15,000 bags of Cubas to operators for prompt shipment at 5⅛c cost and freight, equal to 6.02 for Centrifugal. Porto Rico sugar showed even greater weakness than did Cubas, and on sales of 10,000 bags to a local refiner prices showed ¼c decline. This sharp reaction in Porto Ricos reflected a falling off in the export demand for granulated, and at the close the market was still unsettled at 5⅛c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.40 for Centrifugal and 5.63 for molasses.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 10,179 packages. Continued active trading and a firm feeling on all grades. Current sales are about in line with our quotations, and the range of values is extremely narrow. The medium qualities are particularly strong. Creamery, extras, (92 score,) per lb. 31c; higher scoring, 31½@32c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 30@30½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 28½@29½c; thirds, 27½@28c; creamery, unsalted, extras, 31½@32c; higher scoring, 32½@33c; firsts, 30@31c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 30½@31c; good to prime, 28½@29½c; common to fair, 26½@28c; renovated, extras, 29½@30c; firsts, 28@29c; lower grades, 26½@27½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 27@28c; ladles, current make, firsts, 26@26½c; seconds, 25½c; lower grades, 24½@25c; packing stock, current make, fine, 25½c; No. 2, 25c; lower grades, 24@24½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 32,304 cases. The market maintains a generally strong tone. A good deal of the best stock arriving is going to the warehouses directly, and the offerings of high quality in the open market are very moderate. Some of the finest Northern storage packings cannot be bought at 24c, and occasional sales are reported a fraction higher, although there is a good deal of the supply of storage packed for which 23½@23¾c cannot be exceeded. Current packings rule firm in the higher grades, and there is considerable demand for cheaper goods at hardening prices for stock showing useful quality. Dirties and checks in light supply, active demand, and higher, with a few exceptional sales of fine dirties a fraction above our quotations, which, however, cover most of the business. Nearby white eggs of strictly fancy quality are steady, with a fair demand; much of the supply is more or less defective and moving slowly; a large part of the offerings is going around 25c, with ordinary lots lower. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 24½@25c; storage packed, firsts, 23¾@24½c; regular packed, firsts, 22¾@23½c, seconds, 21@22½c; thirds and poorer, 19@20½c; dirties, No. 1, 21c; No. 2 and poorer, 19@20½c; checks, good to choice, dry, 19¾@20c; under grades, 17¼@19½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 25½@26c; ordinary to good, 24@25c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 23½@25c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 23@24½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 24½@25c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 22½@24c; duck eggs, State and nearby, Indian runner, 25@26c.

AT A SPECIAL TERM, PART 1, OF THE Supreme Court of the State of New York, held in and for the County of New York, at the County Court House, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 1st day of May, 1916.—Present, Hon W. Warley Platzek, Justice.—In the matter of the application for the dissolution of the corporation of E. FUCINI & CO, INC.—Order.

On reading the petition of Enrico Fucini, a stockholder and Director of E. Fucini & Co., Inc., a corporation created under the laws of the State of New York, having its office and place of business in the County of New York, and the schedule thereto annexed with the exhibit, duly verified by the petitioner on the 13th day of March, 1916, the affidavits of Luigi Casazza and Rudolph Thomitz, verified the 20th day of March, 1916, and the affidavit of Enrico Fucini, verified the 21st day of March, 1916; and it further appearing that this case is one of those specified in Section 172 of the General Corporation Law; and on reading the notice of this application, dated the 13th day of March, 1916, with proof of due service thereof and of said petition and schedule, and a copy of this order on the Attorney-General of the State of New York, and with proof of due service thereof and of said petition and schedule upon Luigi Casazza and Vittorio Casazza, and after hearing Sol. L. Youngentob, attorney for the petitioner, in support of said motion, and no opposition being made on the part of the Deputy Attorney-General of the State of New York, and Bertram L. Marks, Counsel for the said Luigi Casazza and Vittorio Casazza, appearing in opposition thereto, (and upon filing the opinion of the Court);

Now, on motion of Sol. L. Youngentob, attorney for the petitioner, it is Ordered, That all persons interested in the said corporation show cause before Charles D. Donohue, Esq., who is hereby appointed referee for that purpose, at his office, No. 1 Liberty Street, Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, on the 25th day of May, 1916, at 2 o'clock P. M., why the said corporation should not be dissolved; and it is further Ordered, That a copy of this order be published at least once in each of the three weeks immediately preceding the said 25th day of May, 1916, in the New York Law Journal and The New York Times, newspapers published in the City and County of New York.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Frederick Lewisohn Buys Fifth Avenue Dwelling Held at $500,000—Reade Street Corner Sold to Investor—Charles M. MacNeill Takes Title to Madison Avenue Corner.

The largest private residence deal in the Fifth Avenue home section north of Fifty-ninth Street that has been closed in some time gave an interesting phase to the realty market yesterday. The sale involved the property of John W. Herbert at 835 Fifth Avenue, between Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth Streets.

Frederick Lewisohn is the buyer of the house. He has been occupying it under lease at about $20,000 a year and on the expiration of the present lease in October he will take title. The property has been held at $500,000, but it is understood that the purchase price was somewhat less.

The dwelling is a five-story building erected about five years ago from plans by Harry Allan Jacobs. It covers a plot 25 by 125. Mr. Herbert was appointed a few days ago by Governor Fielder of New Jersey a member of the Good Roads Commission of that State.

William B. May & Co. were the brokers in the sale.

Reade Street Corner Sold to Investor.

Mrs. Theresa R. Irving sold to an investing client of the Cruikshank Company the five-story brick and stone business building, 315 Greenwich Street, corner of Reade Street, on a lot 17 feet 1 inch front by about 71 feet deep by irregular.

Sold for $1,000 Under Assessed Valuation.

At $1,000 less than its assessed valuation of $22,000 Robert P. Green has purchased for investment 226 West Twenty-eighth Street, a five-story tenement with a one-story structure in the rear, on a lot 24.6 by 98.9. Rose Kaplan is the owner of record. Ames & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

C. M. MacNeill Takes Title to Madison Avenue Corner.

Charles M. MacNeill, President of the Utah Copper Company, took title yesterday to the northwest corner of Ninety-first Street and Madison Avenue, 100.8 by 36.8, sold recently by Cardinal John M. Farley.

It was transferred subject to a mortgage of $60,000. Mr. MacNeill last year bought the adjoining property on Ninety-first Street from Andrew Carnegie, and is erecting a residence on the site.

Buyers for Private Dwellings.

An investing client of I. Hillman has purchased from the Benenson Realty Company, 214 West 130th Street, a three-story and basement private dwelling.

Dr. Austin F. Riggs of Stockbridge, Mass., sold to an investing client of Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company 135 East Fifty-fourth Street, a four-story and basement private dwelling, on a lot 22.6 by 100.5.

John J. Hoeckh, Inc., sold for Ludwig Schueler to a client the three-story and basement dwelling at 459 West Forty-seventh Street, on lot 20 by 100.5.

Provident Loan Buys New Branch Site.

As a site for a new banking building the Provident Loan Society of New York has purchased from the Parr estate, a plot 49.11 by 91 by 100, at the southwest corner of 127th Street and Eighth Avenue. There is a one-story building on the site.

New Home for Nursery.

The Bloomingdale Day Nursery has purchased through Pease & Elliman, 62 West Ninety-seventh Street, a four-story and basement private dwelling, on a lot 19 by 100.11. In part payment for the property the nursery gives its present home, at 154 West Ninety-ninth Street, a three-story house, on lot 16.4 by 80, near Amsterdam Avenue, which it has outgrown. Elizabeth L. Murray is the owner of record of the Ninety-seventh Street house.

Louis Sherry Buys Manhasset Acreage.

Louis Sherry has purchased through Pell & Tibbets about fifty acres, with buildings and improvements thereon, adjoining his property at Manhasset, L. I. The property was held at $200,000, and adjoins the Nicholas Brady and William F. Sheehan estates, on which residences are now being constructed, and the property recently purchased by Claus A. Spreckels.

Bronx Sales.

Eugene J. Busher has sold for the Lawyers Title and Trust Company the plot of lots situated on the south side of East 175th Street, 95 feet east of Marion Avenue, 105 by 145 by 119, to the Middleboro Realty Company, President Herman Tuckman. The buyers will erect two five-story buildings, six families to each floor. This was an all-cash sale.

Smith & Phelps have sold the five-story apartment, 50 by 90 by 110, known as 747 East 181st Street, to an investor.

Anna Wiederish has sold to an investor the five-story tenement 423 Brook Avenue. I. Hillman negotiated the sale.

Brooklyn.

I. Salzberg has sold for Jeannette Lipschitz to Sarah Umans a three-story two-family stucco cottage, 40 by 100, on the southwesterly side of Forty-eighth Street, 140 feet of Fifteenth Avenue.

Long Island.

The Meister Builders sold to Albert Jaret twelve lots, located on Columbus Avenue, at Edgemere Crest, Edgemere, L. I., upon which the buyer will erect six one-family houses.

In the Fourth Ward, Borough of Queens, the New York Suburban Land Company sold a plot 40 by 100 feet on Sterling Place to James Canton, and a plot 40 by 100 feet on Kinsey Avenue to Raymond Butler.

R. L. Kilby sold at Addisleigh, St. Albans, to George W. Jones of Brooklyn, a ten-room Dutch Colonial home located on a plot 80 by 100, at the corner of Caxton and Rutland Streets.

New Jersey.

As a site for a new church the Rev. John J. Murphy, rector of Our Lady of All Souls Roman Catholic Church of Ampere, has purchased one of the finest plots of land in the Ampere section of East Orange, N. J., from the George Booth Estate.

The property has a frontage of 250 feet on Fourth Avenue and extends to a depth of 140 feet on Grove Street. Father Murphy has likewise acquired the adjacent property from Florence P. and Walter B. Booth, located on the south side of Fourth Avenue. F. M. Crawley & Bros. were the brokers in the transaction.

The Ridgefield Park Building Corporation, represented by John A. Baldwin, which has been engaged in extensive construction work there during the last year, is now erecting fifty houses, ranging in price from $3,000 to $4,500.

At Garwood, N. J., the New York Suburban Land Company sold a plot 88 by 100 on Spencer Avenue to Mary Spalding.

Westchester County.

The Nelson Estates, Robert E. Farley, Vice President, sold a plot on Union Avenue in the Nelson Estates section of Peekskill, N. Y., to James Pineo, of New Hamburg.

W. J. Ackerman sold for John F. Hall a three-and-a-half-acre parcel, corner Inwood Avenue and Sprain Road at Hartsdale to Arthur L. Cahn.

Recent Buyers.

Matthew J. Ward, hotel broker, is the buyer of 110 West Eighty-second Street, recently sold through the Houghton Company.

Carl Muhlhausen is the buyer of 56 to 62 Seaman Avenue, sold Tuesday by the Smada Realty Company.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

Leon S. Altmayer has procured a second mortgage of $15,000 on the new twelve-story loft building 318 to 326 West Thirty-ninth Street, on plot 125 by 98.9. This mortgage also covers the adjoining property 328 to 332 West Thirty-ninth Street, which is a four-story brewery and tenement. The size of the entire plot is 225 by 98.9.

The Seaman's Bank for Savings has just accepted on this twelve-story building a first mortgage of $300,000 at 4½ per cent. for five years, with an amortization payment of 2 per cent. annually, beginning at the end of the second year. The total rental of the property is about $70,000 per annum.

$456,000 for Queens Buildings.

Plans for buildings estimated to cost $456,000 were filed with the Building Bureau of the Borough of Queens during the last week.

In the Ridgewood section Henry W. Meyer will erect seventeen three-story brick tenements on Schley Street, north of Central Avenue, at a cost of $140,000.

In the Long Island City section Frank Evanovec will erect a five-story tenement on Third Avenue, north of Jamaica Avenue, one block from the new elevated line, to cost $80,000.

Bulkhead Line Hearing.

The Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens has been advised by the New York Harbor Line Board that a hearing will be held on Friday morning, May 26, in Room 407, Army Building, 39 Whitehall Street, to consider modifications of the existing pierhead and bulkhead lines for the upper part of Newtown Creek, for the purpose of increasing the navigable capacity of this waterway by widening and improving its corners and bends.

Dwellings Leased.

Herbert A. Sherman has sublet the large house, grounds and garage belonging to Mrs. J. Howard Wainwright, known as the Gables, at Rye, N. Y., to William E. Shepherd. Mrs. Shepherd is a sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr.

Dr. Henry Herman has leased the Gluck mansion at Portchester, N. Y., for the season.

Archibald M. McCrea leased through G. L. Gilsey & Co., Inc., the E. Mortimer Ward estate at Locust Valley, L. I., for the season.

Julia Beverley Higgens has let for Mrs. J. T. Atterbury her place at Mount Kisco to Dr. Rufus Cole of New York City, and for Frank Potter his place, Aratoma Farm, Katonah, to Robert Ludlow Fowler, Jr., of New York City.

Adams & Keeler have leased William R. Keeler's house on South Main Street, Ridgefield, N. J., to Bolton Hall of New York for the Summer.

Realty Notes

Benjamin F. Haas transferred to Elsie Kick yesterday 505 to 515 West 134th Street, six five-story double apartment houses, each on plot 39.3 by 100, 100 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue. The combined frontage is 235.7 feet. The properties were transferred subject to mortgages aggregating $201,000.

Negotiations are reported pending for the sale of the Queenston Apartments at the southwest corner of Ninety-sixth Street and Madison Avenue, owned by the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

MONITION.
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.

Notice is hereby given that on the — day of April, 1916, the GOODWIN-GALLAGHER SAND & GRAVEL CORPORATION filed its petition praying limitation of liability as owner of the steamtug "C. Gallagher" for any loss or damage arising on or about the 18th day of August, 1915, from a collision between the tow of the tug "C. Gallagher" and the tow of the tug "Spartan"; that petitioner has stipulated to pay into this Court the value of said steamtug and pending freight when appraised, with lawful interest, according to law, and pending said appraisement, has filed an ad interim bond in the sum of eighty-seven hundred dollars, ($8,700.00.)

That all persons claiming damage by reason of said collision are required by the monition issued to me by said court to prove their claims before Alexander Gilchrist, Jr., Esq., Commissioner, at his office in the Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 7th day of August, 1916, at 10:30 A. M., and that persons not so proving claims will be then defaulted.
THOMAS D. McCARTHY, United States Marshal.
FOLEY & MARTIN, Proctors for Petitioner, No. 64 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—At the suit of the United States demanding forfeiture thereof under the provisions of the Pure Food and Drugs act of June 30, 1906, Sec. 10, I have seized and hold EIGHTEEN CASES EACH CONTAINING TWENTY-FOUR HALF-GALLON CANS, 16 CASES EACH CONTAINING 12 ONE-GALLON CANS, AND 9 CASES EACH CONTAINING FORTY-EIGHT QUARTER-GALLON CANS OF OIL.

Notice is hereby given that the cause is appointed for trial at the U. S. Court and Post Office Building, Manhattan, New York, on May 29, 1916, at the opening of Court. All persons are notified then and there to appear and defend their interest, if any, in said goods. All not appearing will be defaulted.
Dated May 9, 1916.
H. SNOWDEN MARSHALL, U. S. Attorney.
THOMAS D. McCARTHY, U. S. Marshal.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—Notice is hereby given that on March 14, 1916, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company filed its petition praying limitation of liability as owner of the steamtug P. R. R. No. 7 for any loss, damage, or injury arising on or about September 15, 1914, from a collision between tug P. R. R. No. 7 and her tow with the motor boat Dorothy; that petitioner has stipulated to pay into this court the value of said tug P. R. R. No. 7 and pending freight as appraised, viz.: $32,000 with lawful interest according to law; that all persons claiming damages by reason of said collision are required by the monition issued to me by said court to prove their claims before Alex. Gilchrist, Jr., Esq., U. S. Commissioner, at his office, Post Office Building, Manhattan, New York City, on or before June 26, 1916, at 10:30 A. M.; and that all persons not so proving claims will be then defaulted.
THOMAS D. McCARTHY, U. S. Marshal.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The disturbances over the northeastern portion of the country are fast disappearing, while the southwestern disturbance noted Wednesday is still central there, although a fast-moving offshoot is now apparently central over the middle Gulf of Mexico. This latter disturbance has caused general showers in the Gulf States, local showers in the South Atlantic States, and some shifting gales of short duration on the Middle and West Gulf Coasts.

There has also been a general fall in pressure over the interior West, with a centre of disturbance at present over Utah, and more or less unsettled showery weather has prevailed west of the Rocky Mountains, except in the extreme Southwest. Unsettled weather with light local rains also continued from the lake region eastward.

It is considerably cooler in the East Gulf States and low temperatures continue east of the Rocky Mountains. They also have fallen in the extreme West, so that temperatures are once more below the seasonal average over practically the entire country.

Except for showers Friday in the South Atlantic States, the weather will be generally fair Friday and Saturday east of the Mississippi River with higher temperatures in the upper lake region, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the East Gulf States, reaching the South Atlantic States and the lower lake region by Saturday.

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coast will be moderate west; South Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest to northeast, except east off the Florida coast.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York, Southern New England, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Friday and Saturday.

Western New York—Fair Friday. Saturday fair and warmer.

Northern New England—Cloudy Friday and Saturday.

3 A. M.	48	45	4 P. M.	56	56
6 A. M.	48	46	6 P. M.	55	58
9 A. M.	54	50	9 P. M.	52	53
12 M.	59	50	11 P. M.	50	50

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 51; for the corresponding date last year it was 53; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 60.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 47; at 8 P. M. it was 54. Maximum temperature, 58 degrees at 5:30 P. M.; minimum, 44 degrees at 4:10 A. M. Humidity, 52 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 39 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.70 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.84 inches.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The Board of Trustees of Hunter College at its recent meeting, made the Misses Bessie Dean Cooper, Ph. D., Claudine Gray, M. A., and Lao G. Simons, M. A., instructors in history, French, and mathematics, assistant professors, Miss Margaret A. Graham, Ph. D., was appointed instructor in history, and Miss Mary B. James, A. B., was appointed assistant registar with the rank of assistant instructor. The Trustees voted unanimously, upon the recommendation of the faculty, to abolish the January commencement.

An entertainment and reception were tendered last evening to Dr. Francis H. J. Paul, Principal of the De Witt Clinton High School, in the School Auditorium by the members of the Sixth Form. An interesting program, including "The Sleeping Car," a one-act play by W. D. Howells, was given.

There will be a joint celebration by several of the east side settlements and public schools tomorrow at 2:30 P. M., in Public School 62. This celebration will be for the young folk of the neighborhood. There will be another program on Sunday evening, at 8.15 P. M. for the fathers and mothers of the district. The celebration is being given under the auspices of the East Side Neighborhood Association.

The "Hunter College Bulletin" has conducted a vocational campaign to help students who wish to choose some work other than teaching. Each week one of the following articles has been contributed: "Vocational Opportunities," by Eva Elise vom Baur, "Educational Director in Department Stores," by Miss Jeannie Hughes; "Office Work as a Step Toward Executive Position," by Eleanor Gilbert; "Library Work," by Adelaide R. Haase; "Law," by Bertha Rembaugh; "Newspaper Work," by Dorothy Dix; "Architecture—Home Making," by Fay Kellogg, and "The Stage," by Jesse Bonstelle. The following articles are announced for future issues: "Insurance," by Sara Lewinson, and "Designing," by Lady Duff Gordon. Under the auspices of the "Bulletin," Miss Mary Snow, formerly research director of the Intercollegiate Bureau of Occupations, recently addressed the student body on "Vocations."

On Saturday the Hunter College Glee Club, led by Miss Charlotte Welhe, will sing at the annual Spring reunion of the Associate Alumnae.

Associate City Superintendent Straubenmueller has notified District Superintendents and Principals that the Board of Superintendents has approved a plan whereby the Bureau of Attendance will notify the Principal of a public school whenever a child on the register of that school is remanded to the care of a children's society, and will again notify the Principal when the child is discharged from the society's custody. He instructs the Principals that they shall record the child, who is reported by the Bureau of Attendance, as having been committed to the society's care, as in attendance in the school until they are again notified that the child has been discharged. If the child does not then promptly return to school they are to report him to the Bureau of Attendance for unexplained absence.

Besides the President and Vice President, the members of the Executive Board of the Student Council of Hunter College, are the Misses Catherine O'Hara, Secretary; Julia Buckley, Treasurer, and Louise McGrath, Chairman of Proctors. The delegates to the Student Council are the Grade Presidents, the Misses Emily Harvey, Amelia Wenderoth, Anna Cowhey, May Geoghan, Mary K. Smith, Charlotte Sundermacher, Dorothy Murdock, and Helen Buchholdt; also, ex officio the Misses Gladys C. Petersen, Editor of the Echo; Marion MacMullin, editor of The Wistarion; Ruth Lewinson, editor of The Bulletin, and Emily Harvey, Chairman of The Student Exchange; also the Misses Elizabeth Gunther, Adelheit Steeneck, Anna Friedman, Adelaide Sheehan, Edith Brittan, Sylvia Saltzberg, Florence Hampton, Dorothy Bunker, Edna Wallenstein, Ruth Ford, Elsa Kanshra, and Esther Baron.

The closing exercises of the Harlem Evening High School for Women were of an interesting character. A feature of the program was a symposium on "preparedness" participated in by President Willcox of the Board of Education, Vice President John Whalen, Superintendent John H. Haaren, Dr. D. J. McDonald, Judge T. C. T. Crain, and Senator James A. Hamilton. Mrs. Willcox presented diplomas to the sixty-one graduates and complimented the Principal, Miss Lilian M. Elliot, and her staff of teachers on the splendid work of the school.

A mass meeting of the Association of Teachers on the eligible list for license No. 1 will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Public School 27, Forty-second Street, near Third Avenue.

The commission announces for June 7, at the New York Custom House, an examination for Assistant Shop Superintendent, for men only, to fill a vacancy, at $5.04 a day, in the Hull Division, Navy Yard, Philadelphia, Penn. The duties consist of estimating, planning, and routing work, either repairs or manufacture, through the various shops of a large shipbuilding establishment. The appointee to this position must have a knowledge of plate and angle shop, pipe shop, joiner shop, and machine shop operations and the requirements for operating and maintaining equipment in the above-mentioned shops. He must be qualified to prepare specifications for the above, to arrange machines or other equipment in the various shops in order to obtain maximum efficiency of production, and to analyze production costs to determine what measures should be taken to increase productive efficiency. Competitors will be examined in practical questions, training and experience. Applicants must have a common-school education or its equivalent and not less than two years' experience in a position the duties of which are similar to those outlined above, or equivalent experience. Age, 25 years or over on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

METHODISTS ELECT THREE NEW BISHOPS

Welch, Nicholson, and Leonard Break the Deadlock in the General Conference.

FOUR MORE TO BE CHOSEN

Social Service Federation Elated Over Welch's Victory—Conference Cheers New Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, May 18.—The Rev. Herbert Welch, D. D., of Delaware, Ohio, President of Ohio Wesleyan University, the Rev. Thomas Nicholson of New York, Secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Adna W. Leonard of Seattle were elected Bishops by the General Conference of the Church today. Dr. Welch was elected on the eighth ballot, receiving 554 votes. Dr. Nicholson was elected on the ninth ballot, receiving 563 votes. Dr. Leonard was elected on the tenth ballot. This left four additional Bishops, or General Superintendents, still to be chosen. The tenth ballot was taken at 10 o'clock tonight.

The standing of the candidates on the tenth ballot will not be announced until tomorrow morning. Dr. Leonard's election was announced unofficially at midnight.

Dr. Welch and Dr. Nicholson were escorted to the platform after the announcement of the vote and presented to the audience. There was tremendous applause.

According to a high authority, Dr. Welch will be suggested for the new Episcopal seat at Seoul, Korea, and Dr. Nicholson may be assigned to Chicago, provided Bishop W. F. McDowell is transferred to Washington or some other city. It is known that Dr. Nicholson would be acceptable to Chicago.

The vote of the leaders, aside from Dr. Nicholson, on the ninth ballot was as follows:

The Rev. Adna W. Leonard, Seattle, 485 votes; the Rev. Matthew S. Hughes, Pasadena, Cal., 408; the Rev. W. F. Oldham, of New York, one of the Corresponding Secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions, 383; the Rev. Charles B. Mitchell, of Chicago, 341; the Rev. Franklin Hamilton, of Boston, 330; the Rev. Ezra S. Tipple of Madison, N. J., President of Drew Theological Seminary, 318; and the Rev. E. G. Richardson, of Brooklyn, 305.

Dr. Welch's election caused elation among the members of the Methodist Federation of Social Service who claimed a large share of the credit for his victory. Dr. Welch preceded Bishop Francis J. McConnell as President of the federation, and assisted in drawing up the recommendations for preference for organized labor that plunged the conference into a debate lasting two days. The group identified with social service work voted solidly for him.

Many others than members of the Federation supported Dr. Welch, however. He received not a little strength from 150 alumni of Ohio Wesleyan University, who are delegates to the conference. The general tenor of conversation as the big crowd poured out of Convention Hall after the eighth ballot was announced that no stronger man could have been selected.

Dr. Welch has been President of Ohio Wesleyan University since 1905, succeeding Bishop James W. Bashford. Dr. Welch was born in New York City on Nov. 7, 1862, and is a thirty-second degree Mason. He is a graduate of Wesleyan University and Drew Theological Seminary, and joined the New York East Conference in 1890. He was pastor of Summerfield Church in Brooklyn in 1893.

Dr. Nicholson has been Secretary of the Board of Education of the church since 1908. He was born in Woodburn, Ontario, Canada, in 1862, and was educated at Northwestern University and Garrett Biblical Institute. After pastorates in Michigan and Chicago he became Professor of Biblical Literature in Cornell College, Iowa, where he remained from 1894 to 1903. In 1903 he was elected President of Dakota Wesleyan University and in 1908 became Secretary of the Board of Education.

Dr. Adna W. Leonard is the pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Seattle. He is the son of the late Rev. Dr. Adna Bradway Leonard of Brooklyn. The Bishop-elect was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, on Nov. 2, 1875. He was educated at the Pennington Seminary, New York University, and Drew Theological Seminary. He has held pastorates in Rome, Italy, at Cincinnati, and Springfield.

Dr. Nicholson was in sixth position in the voting on the fifth ballot announced this morning, but advanced to second place on the sixth. This change was partly attributed to the clearing away of a jurisdictional misunderstanding between the Board of Education and the Board of Foreign Missions, of which the Rev. Frank Mason North is one of the Corresponding Secretaries. It seemed to some of the delegates interested in missionary work that the Board of Education was encroaching on territory belonging to the Missions Board, but Dr. North said this was erroneous in a speech from the platform today.

As Chairman of the Committee on Episcopacy Dr. Nicholson, it was also reported, had stirred up opposition by his unwillingness to establish an Episcopal seat in Malaysia. Dr. Oldham, formerly Missionary Bishop, was urged for one of the General Superintendencies with the view, it was said, of ultimately being sent to Malaysia, and his friends withheld their support, it was said, as a rebuke to Dr. Nicholson. This opposition dwindled, however, and it was taken for granted on the eighth ballot that Dr. Nicholson would be the next one elected.

The date for consecrating the new Bishops depends on how quickly the other five General Superintendents and the three Missionary Bishops are elected. If Dr. Oldham is one of these elected as Bishop an effort will be made, it is reported, to have the General Conference reconsider its action so as to enable him to be sent to Singapore. Dr. Oldham is well acquainted with this field.

The Committee on Home Missions and Church Extension decided today to recommend to the General Conference that there be only one Corresponding Secretary for the Board of Home Missions. The recommendation will receive considerable discussion in the conference.

By action of the General Conference today young ministers who have not completed a course of study equivalent to a high school education hereafter will have to serve three years under a District Superintendent before being admitted to an annual conference. Heretofore an applicant without the necessary record of study could be admitted to an annual conference upon the recommendation of a District Superintendent.

The General Conference this morning ordered the change from the existing practice by adopting a report of the Board of Education. The Rev. W. H. Crawford of Meadville, Penn., President of Allegheny College, supported the report from the platform. He asserted that present requirements imposed on candidates were not sufficient, and as a result applicants sometimes were admitted to the conferences who were not equipped to preach the Gospel. Other delegates expressed themselves with even greater vigor, asserting that the mediocre mental attainments of some of those admitted as pastors inflicted harm on the Church and handicapped its growth.

The report provided further that candidates with a record of three years' successful ministerial service were only to be admitted to the annual conferences on a two-thirds vote.

The General Conference indorsed a report of the Committee on Temperance protesting against the "issuance of internal liquor tax receipts by the Federal Government to the criminals engaged in violating State laws." The report was read to the delegates by Judge Charles A. Pollock of the United States District Court at Fargo, N. D., Chairman of the Committee on Temperance. It urged Federal, State, and individual action for the suppression of the liquor traffic, and the Rev. Ray Allen of Rochester sought to amend the report by including a similarly sweeping indictment of the use of tobacco, but was overwhelmingly outvoted. Some of the delegates made an ineffective attempt to cheer him off the platform.

The report characterized the liquor traffic as one of the prolific sources of insanity, crime, and poverty, a despoiler of legitimate business, a corrupt and demoralizing influence in politics, and one of the most dangerous enemies to human welfare in civil life. It was in part as follows:

"We record ourselves against the issuing of internal revenue tax receipts by the Federal Government to criminals engaged in violating State laws.

"We urge upon the Federal Congress the immediate passage of laws prohibiting all interstate commerce in intoxicating liquors and forbidding the use of the United States mails both to liquor shipments and to liquor advertisements.

"We respectfully but earnestly demand of the Congress to promptly submit to the Legislatures of the several States for their ratification an amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for the absolute prohibition of the liquor traffic throughout the United States. And pending the submission of such an amendment we demand that the Congress enact statutory prohibition to the full extent of its present constitutional powers throughout the nation, including the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, the Canal Zone, and all the islands, reservations, ships, buildings, and premises under Federal police jurisdiction."

The report indorses the Aanti-Saloon League and the Methodist Church Temperance Society, and urges Methodists not to support any candidate for public office who does not stand for the enforcement of the law prohibiting the sale of liquor.

Secretary Edwin Locke of the Conference was instructed to send copies of the report to the proper officials of the various political parties at their National Conventions.

ELOPER IN JAIL FOR FRAUD.

Cole, Young Bridegroom from Michigan, Accused of Larceny.

The telephone bell at the cashier's desk in the Hotel Biltmore jingled yesterday afternoon and over the wire came the voice of a man, who said:

"This is Mr. Cole, Chauncey Cole. I registered there this morning, with my wife, from Battle Creek, Mich. Yes, Mr. Cole. Well, I've just ordered a parcel sent up and I wish you'd take care of it for me. It'll be $43.20. Put it on my account, please. Thank you. Good-bye."

Presently a uniformed messenger, carrying a large parcel, entered the hotel and, approaching the desk, asked for Mr. Cole. The boy was sent to the package room in the basement, where William H. Walsh, the house detective, was struck by the fact that a messenger boy should be carrying a parcel from a big department store. The youngster presented a slip, however, marked with the name of the store and calling for $43.20, so Walsh called William Creamer, superintendent of service in the hotel, and after a consultation they decided to pay the boy and then follow him. The boy went to the Grand Central Station where Cole met him and took the money from him. Cole was arrested on a charge of larceny after a search of his room in which a loaded revolver was found.

Mrs. Cole said she and her husband had run away from Benton Harbor, Mich., and had been married secretly. Cole's father is wealthy. He is President of the Cole Construction Company of Battle Creek, Mich.

MILLS FOR BARNES'S PLACE.

Talk of State Senator for National Committeeman Is Heard.

State Senator Ogden L. Mills is being talked of for successor to William Barnes as Republican National Committeeman from this State, in case the New York delegation to the Republican National Convention should be found to have an anti-Barnes majority, as is expected.

The selection of Senator Mills would be in the nature of a compromise. Prior to his election to the State Senate Mr. Mills was an important factor in the fight on Barnes as State Chairman which was conducted at the time by the leaders of the New York County Republican organization with a group of up-State allies. Recently, however, he has not taken sides with Governor Whitman in the latter's fight on Mr. Barnes. When he voted for the re-election of Frederick C. Tanner as Republican State Chairman against a candidate who had the backing of Barnes, he did so for purely local reasons.

MAY FREE MISS BLAKELOCK.

Movement Started Seeking Her Release from River State Hospital.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 18.—Miss Marion Blakelock, daughter of R. A. Blakelock, the painter, and herself an artist, may soon be released from the Hudson River State Hospital in Poughkeepsie. A movement similar to that which won freedom for her father from the Middletown Asylum is under way among art patrons in Chicago, it was said by Supt. Charles W. Pilgrim today.

Miss Blakelock's works have found ready sale, although done under adverse conditions in the local asylum. As an incompetent, she is having difficulty in marketing the paintings. Within a few days a committee will be chosen by the local court, and habeas corpus proceedings to obtain her freedom will follow.

Mrs. Horkheimer Gets $1,500 Verdict.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., May 18.—Mrs. Benjamin Horkheimer won a verdict of $1,500 today before Judge Howard Carrow in her suit against the executors of the estate of the late Morris Horkheimer, a wealthy Philadelphia manufacturer. She sued for $5,000, the bequest left to her late husband. The defense endeavored to show that the amount had been paid by the executors. One of the defendants was Edmund Horkheimer, head of a film company in California, who was co-executor with Mrs. Cecelia Horkheimer of Atlantic City.

PRESBYTERIANS HOPE TO AVOID A CONTEST

HAS NEW YORK'S SUPPORT

Dr. McEwan, Urged as a Man Who Could Resist "Poison of Unbelief," Beaten by Vote of 616 to 237.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 18.—The election this afternoon of the Rev. Dr. John A. Marquis, President of Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, as Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which opened here today for its one hundred and twenty-eighth meeting, indicated that the party in the assembly seeking to prevent an open split between the New York Presbytery and the Presbyteries of the Middle West and South on questions of doctrine and the relation to the Church of Union Theological Seminary would prevail.

Dr. Marquis is generally recognized as "sound" in doctrine and he admits that he is an "old line conservative," but the feeling among many of the delegates to the assembly is that he is of a fair and tolerant disposition and will be an influence for harmony in the denomination. The balloting was secret, but it is not disputed that Dr. Marquis had the support of the majority of the New York commissioners.

The difference between the two bodies of thought in the Church may yet be fought out on the convention floor, for the frankness with which the Rev. Dr. William L. McEwan of Pittsburgh was urged for the office of Moderator as a man who could resist "the poison of unbelief in the Church" and the number of votes he received made it evident that those who consider the New York Presbytery and Union Seminary heretical are present in the assembly in force, but at the same time the overwhelming victory of Dr. Marquis and the prevalent belief among many of the commissioners, or delegates, that the very platform upon which Dr. McEwan was run turned from him votes that he would otherwise have received, cause most observers to predict a harmonious meeting for the current General Assembly.

First Ballot Fails to Elect.

There were two ballots in the election. The first one resulted in 430 votes for Dr. Marquis, 274 for Dr. McEwan, and 159 for the Rev. Dr. George L. Robinson of McCormick Seminary, Chicago. As 432 votes were necessary for election, the retiring Moderator, the Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, called for a second ballot, but before this was taken Dr. Robinson's name was withdrawn in favor of Dr. Marquis. The final vote was: Dr. Marquis, 616; Dr. McEwan, 237.

Dr. Marquis was nominated by the Rev. Dr. Frank C. McKean of Des Moines, Iowa, who introduced him as "a great leader" who could wisely and fairly steer the Church through difficulties, and he then admitted that his candidate was a favorite son.

"Dr. Marquis has claims as a man," said Dr. McKean, "but he also has the right of territory. The great Middle West is asking for recognition today. It's time for the Presbyterian Church to begin to be fair. New York, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, and Chicago have had their turn in power and it's Iowa's turn now."

Dr. Robinson was nominated next, and then Dr. McEwan was placed in nomination by the Rev. Dr. Hugh K. Walker of Long Beach, Cal., who, answering the argument advanced for Dr. Marquis, said that the assembly should 'rise above geographical considerations and elect the man who filled all conditions." Dr. Walker did not allude directly to the imminent heresy difficulty, but emphasized the fact that Dr. McEwan was a man whose theological convictions were "positive and well known."

McEwan's Nomination Seconded.

The Rev. Dr. John Y. Ewart of Colorade Springs, Col., seconded the nomination. He asserted that Dr. McEwan was the candidate of orthodoxy against heterodoxy. Although Dr. Ewart's speech seemed to be well received by the Commissioners from the Cincinnati Presbytery, which has asked for the expulsion of the New York Presbytery from the Church, and by those who want to recover large bequests from Union Seminary on the grounds that, because of its alleged heretical teachings, the seminary is misappropriating money intended for orthodox instruction, the majority of the convention did not receive Dr. Ewart at all cordially. Laughter greeted the remark, "The ship of our beloved Church is in danger of being torpedoed." The speaker continued:

"Our Church is facing a great crisis. There are those who are injecting the poison of unbelief into the Presbyterian body. Dr. McEwan stands solidly upon the fundamentals of the Presbyterian faith. He believes in the Bible and the faith founded upon it."

An imperative voice interrupted at this point, shouting "Who does not?"

The question was applauded, but Dr. Ewart continued in the same strain. In a few minutes Commissioners began stamping their feet, and others shouted "Sit down." For a while the speaker could scarcely be heard. He finished his plea, however, and was applauded when he finished.

Dr. Marquis would not state his position on the doctrinal questions involved. "I want to find out the facts in the case," he said in an interview. "I don't know the facts yet. I will say that I am descended through 300 years of pure Presbyterian blood and am a conservative."

While balloting was going on, Dr. Marquis was seen in the company of a number of the New York commissioners who, evidently, were among his strong supporters. Several of the New York men admitted hat they wanted him because of his judicial ability and fairness of mind.

Dr. Marquis was born in Pennsylvania in 1861, and received his education at Washington and Lee University, and at Wesleyan Theological Seminary. He was pastor of churches in Greensburgh, Penn.; Redlands, Cal., and other places before 1909, when he went to Coe College.

In making his speech of acceptance Dr. Marquis asked the assembly for its "support and forebearance in whatever problems might arise."

In opening the convention this morning, the Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, the retiring Moderator, said that the world war was "a challenge to the Church," and later in his address he urged harmony to thwart "the commissions and boards" which were disturbing the Church.

The assembly will meet daily in the Music Hall on the Steel Pier through Friday, May 26.

CHESEBROUGH KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Yacht Designer's Car Goes Into Bay—Senator Colt's Son Injured.

BRISTOL, R. I., May 18.—Albert S. Chesebrough, a yacht designer of international reputation, was killed tonight when an automobile in which he was riding skidded on the driveway of the estate of Colonel Samue P. Colt and fell over the seawall into Narragansett Bay.

Le Baron C. Colt, son of United States Senator Colt, and Vice President and General Manager of the National India Rubber Company, and Luke H. Callan, Superintendent of Highways of Bristol, who were riding with Mr. Chesebrough, were rescued by men employed on the estate. Mr. Colt was unconscious at a late hour tonight, but was expected to recover.

Mr. Chesebrough, who was 49 years of age, was a nephew of Nathaniel G. Herreshoff, the well-known yacht designer. He leaves two children. Among the boats designed by Mr. Chesebrough were the steam yacht Alvina, owned by the late Charles Fletcher of Providence, and the Cassandra, owned by Roy A. Rainey of New York.

Henry P. Davison Urges Banks to Aid Campaign for Members.

More than 2,000 members were added to the New York County Chapter of the Red Cross yesterday, all of them from the financial district. Fifty-seven New York banks, which are co-operating with the General Metropolitan Committee, reported the result of their canvass at a meeting held at the New York Clearing House. Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co. presided at the meeting.

"The 100,000 members which the Red Cross is seeking to raise in New York should be easy to obtain," declared Mr. Davison, "if the city responds as it has responded to appeals in the past. If New York does its share the rest of the country will follow. I can see absolutely no reason why every American who is worthy of the name should not belong to the one organization which the Government makes it his privilege to support.

"If one man should come to me and offer to give $1,000,000 to the Red Cross to support its work I, as one member of the Executive Committee, would vote against it. The Red Cross needs funds of course, but what it wants above all else is that its activities be supported on the broad basis of a loyal, enthusiastic, and patriotic membership reaching into a million American homes."

A second report is to be made by the Clearing House next Thursday.

FOUR ARRESTS AT RACES.

Police Vigilant in Preventing Bookmaking at Jamaica Track.

The vigilance with which the police of Queens Borough intend to watch the race tracks in that borough this season was revealed by the arrest at the Jamaica Race Track yesterday afternoon, the first day of the racing season, of four men, alleged to have been making hand-books outside the race track inclosure in South Jamaica. The arrests were made by Detectives Philip Marx, Patrick Fitzgibbons, Peter Trumpfeller, and George M. Billafer of Inspector Thomas Kelly's staff in the Twelfth Inspection District.

The detectives assert they approached near enough to the quartet to hear them offer odds on horses and solicit bets. The four, however, are charged merely with disorderly conduct. This charge can be disposed of by a City Magistrate, and the detectives place more faith in thus disposing of the cases than in charging the men with being gamblers and having them held for trial in the Court of Special Sessions. In that court last year, after a score or more of alleged bookmakers had been rounded up, most of the cases were thrown out of court because the detectives had not seen their prisoners actually recording bets.

The four arrested near the race track gates yesterday are Robert Canfield, 29, of 14 Irving Place, Jamaica; Albert Leyrer, 54, of 18 Irving Place, Manhattan; John Corrigan, 31, of the Mount Morris Baths, 125th Street and Madison Avenue, Manhattan, and Norbert Harth, 50, known as "The Count," of 320 East Nineteenth Street, Manhattan. Each prisoner described himself as a clerk. The quartet will be arraigned this morning before Magistrate John Kochendorfer in the Jamaica Police Court.

SUES RICH RUSSIAN FOR UNDEFINED DEBT

Czar's Munition Envoy Says if He Owes McKenna $45,000 It Is for Roulette and Void.

ADMITS HE SAT IN A GAME

Demand for Payment Made in Court Gives No Hint of How Obligation Was Contracted.

Suit has been brought in the Federal District Court by Timothy J. McKenna, whose address is not given, against Nicolas Riabouchinsky of Moscow, now a guest at the Hotel Vanderbilt, for a settlement of "several accounts" upon which Mr. McKenna alleges there is still a balance due him of $45,000.

Behind the papers filed yesterday there is a half-told tale of a roulette game in which thousands of dollars changed hands. M. Riabouchinsky came to this country with his wife in October of last year. He is a member of the Organization of the War Committee of Moscow, which is active in providing for the National War Budget. In addition to his social and political prominence, it was announced when he arrived that he came here as the representative of Russian capitalists who desire to invest several million rubles in United States machine tools and other appliances for turning out war materials in Russia.

The complaint was filed by J. Ward Follette of 223 Broadway, as attorney for McKenna. Mr. Follette refused yesterday to discuss the case or give any details of the transaction through which McKenna claims $45,000.

"I told my client that I would not talk about it or give any information regarding himself, and that promise I intend to keep," said Mr. Follette.

The latest move in the case was made yesterday by Weschler & Kohn of 42 Broadway, the legal representatives of Riabouchinsky, who filed a brief answer, coupled with a request that the suit be dismissed. M. Riabouchinsky frankly admits having played roulette, but he does not admit that he owes McKenna the sum the latter seeks to recover. In the words of his answer, he "denies each and every allegation," and more than that he says that on Jan. 19, 1916, he and the plaintiff engaged in a game of chance known as roulette. This he says was the only transaction between them, and he believes that the dealings set forth in the papers filed by McKenna refer to a game of chance. He further alleges that "all transactions and all acts between the defendant and the plaintiff were wagering contests which are without consideration and void."

Because of this, Riabouchinsky asks that the suit be dismissed. His attorneys were unwilling yesterday to go into the details of the roulette game, but it was contended by Walter Kohn last night that M. Riabouchinsky had no clear knowledge that he had ever met McKenna, much less that he owed him any such sum as he has been sued for.

M. Riabouchinsky could not be found last evening. At the Vanderbilt Hotel it was said that he was not in his suite and that he and his wife had gone out for the evening. In a well-known restaurant where Mr. McKenna is usually to be found it was said that he was "not around."

A large sturdy man is the Russian visitor, with long, glossy brown hair and a brown curly beard that hangs from his chin, his cheeks being smooth shaven. This beard is cut off square in front and gives him the appearance of a Frenchman rather than a Russian. He speaks little English and his young Italian wife acts as interpreter for him. He is the proprietor of "The Dawn of the Nation," a newspaper published in Moscow and his brother Paul is President of the Imperial Council, President of the Moscow Stock Exchange and associated with Nicolas in the proprietorship of the newspaper. He brought to this country, which he reached by way of Japan and San Francisco, thirty-one old masters, formerly of the collection of the late Count Galmitcheff Koutousoff of Russia. These he sold here on April 26 and from the sale $31,850 was realized.

An art critic and a writer on art subjects, M. Riabouchinsky several months ago gave an exhibition of Russian sketches in Paris which attracted much attention.

A suit to recover in a gambling transaction, in which a Tim McKenna figured, was brought in January, 1910, when Frank McDougal brought suit in the Supreme Court to compel William H. Nolan to make good on a check for $13,600 drawn by Nolan to McKenna and cashed by McDougal.

The money for which the check was written was lost in a faro game on Oct. 12, 1908. Nolan did not deny signing the check, but charged there had been a conspiracy to defraud him. After the case was thrown out of court Nolan said that he had been playing faro with McKenna and finally, when he was out about $100,000, he decided to quit. He paid McKenna what money he had on him and gave him the check. Later he was informed by a friend he met in Broadway that he had been "steered wrong," and upon the advice of the friend he stopped payment on the check. It was not until over a year later that McDougal brought suit. McDougal, Nolan said, was the dealer in the game.

SHOWS BANK'S STOCK DEALS

Government Puts Data in Evidence in Riggs Perjury Prosecution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—By various witnesses today, details in evidence of stock transactions conducted by the Riggs National Bank through the defunct brokerage house of Lewis Johnson & Co., were brought out in the trial of C. C. Glover, President; W. J. Flather, Vice President, and H. H. Flather, former Cashier of the bank, on the charge of perjury.

William A. Mearns, a member of the Johnson firm, testified to negotiations with Mr. Glover as President of the bank for the establishment of a stock brokerage arrangement by which the business of the officers of the bank, which had formerly been done through Post & Flagg, would be conducted.

Mr. Mearns said when the Johnson firm took over the business of Post & Flagg, it was discovered that the business coming from the bank went to the latter firm and he went to Mr. Glover to see if it could be taken over by Lewis Johnson & Co. A discussion of the question whether Lewis Johnson & Co. could borrow money from the Riggs Bank on good collateral, as the firm of Post & Flagg had done, led to an understanding by which the Johnson firm became a borrower of the Riggs Bank. Mr. Mearns said there was a private telephone wire from the Johnson switchboard to the bank, running from the desk of H. H. Flather in the bank to that of Pitt Cooke, in the office of Johnson & Co.

The court ruled against admitting statements of conversations held over the telephone by Mr. Cooke, who is dead, and there was no direct evidence as to who was talking at the other end of the line. The defense allowed Mr. Mearns to retire without asking him a question.

Morris W. Lammond, who testified yesterday and Tuesday as to transactions he handled as bookkeeper for Johnson & Co., was again called, but objection was made by the defense. The court ruled that with the complications in the present case, it was necessary to allow Government council to present their case in the orderly and progressive manner which had been proposed and agreed to by the other side. Mr. Hogan, for the defense, at this, charged that while the court had discretion to rule in such a manner, it was, in the langauge of the court, an abuse of discretion for him to make the ruling.

The examination of Mr. Lammond proceeded during the rest of the day until there had been placed in the record fifty-three stock transactions out of the 932 which the Government is prepared to present.

ORPET'S RUSE IS DEFENDED.

Lawyer Says Youth Wished Merely to Trick Parents with "Alibi."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 18.—William Orpet's mind was free from evil when he arranged an alibi before leaving the University of Wisconsin for a clandestine meeting in Helm's Woods with Marian Lambert, the high school girl sweetheart he is accused of poisoning, according to James H. Wilkinson, chief of counsel defending the college lad in his trial for murder. The jury would be told in the opening argument, Mr. Wilkinson said today, that the trip was made in disobedience to the wishes of the boy's parents, and that every move to keep the trip secret was to deceive them. There was absolutely no other motive, he asserted.

"The boy was not planning a crime—he was planning a deception—when he arranged to make it appear to the world that he never left Madison," said Mr. Wilkinson. "Of course, the girl's death on Feb. 9 in the woods of poison makes his plans appear suspicious, but his mind was as free from evil as that of a baby."

Attorneys for both sides denied they had received any information that Orpet spent a part of the night of Feb. 8 at the Lambert home.

Only three jurors had been tentatively accepted when the fourth day of the trial closed today. In the four days 223 veniremen have been examined.

ALLISON ANSWERS CHARGES

Admits He Got $100,000 Checks from B. F. Yoakum Here.

OTTAWA, May 18.—Colonel J. W. Allison, around whose activities centre the Kyte charges in Parliament of huge profits obtained on fuse contracts, was a witness today before the Meredith-Duff Commission of Inquiry. He admitted commissions had been paid to him on other than fuse contracts, but refused to state the amounts.

Colonel Allison told of his friendship with Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia. Following the outbreak of war, General Hughes was asked to ascertain the prices of harness, saddlery, blankets, ammunition, and other supplies, and he sent for Colonel Allison, the witness said. For supplies that later came to Canada for Canadian troops, Colonel Allison said, he got nothing by way of commission.

In other respects, however, when he placed manufacturers in touch with the British War Office direct and orders resulted, Colonel Allison said he felt himself entitled to compensation. Counsel inquired as to the amount of these commissions.

"I do not propose to give any of my private business here at all," answered Colonel Allison.

In England, Colonel Allison said, he met General Hughes, but while the latter knew of his business in a general way he did not discuss it with him. Finally, in February, Colonel Allison came home, and it was then that he met B. F. Yoakum of New York.

He added that Yoakum had given him two checks for $100,000 and that $5,000 more is due him as commissions.

Women to Oppose West Side Tracks

The Women's League for the Preservation of Riverside Drive will meet this evening in a mass meeting to be held in the Ansonia Hotel at Broadway and Seventy-fourth Street to protest against the New York Central plan for tunneling along the Hudson River front, by which many trees will be destroyed. Mrs. Charles A. Bryan will preside.
